$1.5 million vote on golf course set for Sept. 25

A referendum to finance the Arlington Heights Park District golf course at the former Nike Base has been tentatively scheduled for Sept. 25.

If the referendum to approve about $1.5 million in general-obligation bonds is successful, construction of the 18-hole course will be started this year, park officials said.

A public meeting to explain, and possibly expand the referendum is set for Aug. 17 at the Arlington Heights Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

THOMAS THORNTON, parks director, told a meeting of park commissioners Tuesday the referendum might be expanded to include development of six park sites and improvements at existing facilities at a cost of an additional $1.25 million.

The development and improvement package includes projects already planned for, but not yet undertaken because of lack of funds, Thornton said.

Commissioners said the decision to possibly include the other developments in a referendum will be based on citizen reaction at the public meeting.

Letters of invitation to the meeting are being sent to homeowners' organizations and other civic groups and service clubs.

The land for the golf course, which will double as a village flood-control project, was donated to the park district by the U.S. Army after it was declared surplus.

The land, valued in excess of $1 million by park district attorney Charles K. Bobinette, must be developed by the district for recreational uses as part of the Army agreement to deed it over.

Vargo laid to rest with full honors

by JOE SWICKARD

Arlington Heights Police Patrolman Alan J. Vargo was buried Wednesday.

It was three days and a few hours since Vargo, 24, was struck down while directing traffic around an accident early Sunday.

The notice was sent out over police teletypes Monday afternoon. Almost 100 cars from more than 80 departments answered and formed Vargo's escort.

Led by five motorcycles, the procession rolled past with Mars lights twirling silently toward the church.

It was something not often seen — something not many want to see repeated.

A POLICEMAN keeping the route clear said, "Have you ever seen anything like it? It's unbelievable."

More than a mile long, the line of cars rolled through Arlington Heights, cars from Blue Island, Oak Park, Chicago, Palatine, Des Plaines, Kane County, Aurora and Joliet.

The the hearse followed by the family cars came into view. Vargo's wife of 10 months, Teri, was barely visible as the family surrounded her in the big limousine.

Paramedics from the Arlington Heights Fire Dept., who had fought Sunday to save Vargo's life, passed by.

"VARGO'S PARTNERS, 40 patrolmen, stood at attention in the church driveway. Six others in dress uniforms and white gloves lifted him from the hearse. His muted bronze casket was covered with the village flag.

Inside, three priests, one from his old parish in Wilmette, celebrated the funeral mass. Men stared to stop the blinking and what that would bring.

The procession to the cemetery went through the village, past the municipal building, its entrance draped in purple and Vargo's star, 162, above the door.

By the time the last mourner's car passed the municipal building, the lead car was at Golf and Algonquin roads.

ALGONQUIN ROAD rises as it approaches St. Michael the Archangel Cemetery and the line of flashing lights blended into the shortened horizon.

It took more than 10 minutes for the escort to enter the cemetery and park four-abreast. Members of the honor guard raised their night sticks as Vargo's casket was carried past.

The priest's words were carried and lost in the wind. A police radio was crackling with a call as the prayers were read.

The cars, lights now still, left the cemetery.

The family — an older member now turning her head in tears — remained.

Even while the squads had entered the cemetery, one had suddenly peeled off, siren activated. Even then, the work went on.

NORTRAN'S still alive— but not exactly kicking

by LYNN ASINOF

The North Suburban Mass Transit District will continue to operate buses in the North and Northwest suburbs for at least one more week in hopes that local communities will provide needed operating funds through emergency loans.

The NORTRAN Board Wednesday night voted unanimously to ask the 21 NORTRAN communities to come up with $300,000 to fund bus operations through Sept. 7.

Des Plaines, one of the three largest NORTRAN communities is being asked to contribute $37,000. Wheeling is being asked for $8,300.

An estimated $100,000 is needed to keep the system operating past July 30. Without the funds the district, which serves 15,000 daily riders, will be forced to close its doors. A meeting is scheduled Wednesday to determine whether continued operations are possible.

THE REGIONAL Transportation Authority created the financial crisis when it failed to adopt its 1976-77 budget June 30 as required by law. Suburban directors blocked budget approval in an effort to force the resignation of Chairman Milton Pikarsky. This stopped the flow of needed subsidies to NORTRAN.

Although the budget was approved this week as part of a compromise agreement, the RTA cannot spend any part of its $177 million budget until the courts rule on the validity of the document.

NORTRAN Chairman Bart T. Murphy said a court ruling could come "anywhere from early next week to several months."

"The money to pay these bills is lying dormant in the bank. The monies are there and should be flowing to the carriers," Murphy said, noting the communities will be paid back once RTA funds are available.

NORTRAN EXECUTIVE Director Joseph DiJohn said Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel will support NORTRAN's funding request. A special city council meeting will be scheduled to consider the request, DiJohn said.

"He's been one of our best supporters," DiJohn said of Behrel.

The bulk of NORTRAN's service in the Northwest suburbs is in Des Plaines. The district also operates a commuter-feeder line from Buffalo Grove to Arlington Heights and a limited service from Wheeling to the Loop. A small portion of Mount Prospect also is served by NORTRAN buses.

Murphy said several village boards will meet early next week to vote on the emergency loans.

"BY NEXT Wednesday we should have a pretty good idea if the major contributors will provide the needed funds."

"If they don't we're right back to facing a shutdown next week," he said.

The NORTRAN board also considered a temporary fare hike to raise operating funds, but DiJohn said this would not provide enough funds to cover either insurance or fuel costs.

Board members said they would like to sue the RTA for release of the funds, but said that is virtually impossible while the RTA budget is before the Illinois Supreme Court.

Restructure of Dist. 59 evaluated

The reorganization of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59's administration, instituted this year, has placed more responsibility at the local school level, school officials said Wednesday night.

Supt. Roger Bardwell Wednesday night discussed the district's decentralization plan, which went into effect during the 1975-76 school year.

The plan recently has been criticized by parents of special education students who feared it would disrupt current programs.

"Decentralized managegment allows decisions to be made by persons closest to the problems," he said.

Under the reorganization, two levels of central office personnel — assistant superintendent and consultants — were replaced by the administrative council and school clusters.

THE ADMINISTRATIVE council, which includes principals and central office staff, acts as an advisory group to the superintendent and reviews district curriculum changes and resources.

A school cluster exists for each of the five junior high school areas and includes the feeder elementary schools and junior high school principals. Each cluster decides how the special services staff, such as music teachers and learning disability teachers, assigned to the cluster should be

30-day building ban OKd in Elk Grove

A 30-day moratorium on the issuance of new building permits which involve plumbing has been imposed by the Elk Grove Village Board. The moratorium is to halt any additional demands on the village's strained water system while an engineering study is made to determine what effect new construction will have on the water system. Two trustees, Michael J. Tosto and George T. Spees, opposed the moratorium, with Spees calling it a "political move." Residents pressured the village board for a building moratorium in the wake of a village sprinkling ban imposed June 2. "I think the moratorium is a pacification move to a group of people who appeared at the board meeting and its need is not supported by evidence," Spees said. In a related matter, the village administration reportedly is considering recommending an across-the-board water rate hike in the village. A rate hike would be the first in the village in nearly 20 years.

Water woes called 'serious'

A report by Rolling Meadows City Engineer James Muldowney on the current water shortage in the city has termed the situation as "serious" and requiring immediate attention. The report includes recommendations on short and long-range remedies, including the construction of a seventh city well, acquisition of Lake Michigan water, requiring large commercial and industrial sites to drill shallow wells for irrigation, requiring smaller flush tanks in new buildings, using filters in all existing flush boxes, revising water rates to charge more instead of less as water usage increases and increases in the general water rates. Portions of the report will be included in a special newsletter the city will send to residents shortly explaining the current water crisis.

Golf course vote Sept. 25

Arlington Heights Park District officials have set Sept. 25 as the tentative date for a referendum to finance construction of an 18-hole golf course on the site of the former Nike Base near Central and Wilke roads. If the referendum to approve about $1.5 million in general-obligation bonds is successful, the September referendum date will permit construction of the course to start this year. The land for the golf course, which will double as a flood-control project, was donated to the park district by the U S Army after it was declared surplus.

Water rate hike bid hit

Two Mount Prospect residents, testifying against Citizens Utilities Company's request for a water and sewer rate increase, Wednesday told the Illinois Commerce Commission that "rust" and "odor" problems in water should be corrected before any increases are granted. Marie Caylor, president of the Euclid-Lake Homeowners Assn., and another resident, Charles E. Freibert, attended the hearing on the firm's request for hikes totaling 70 per cent in water rates. "First they must improve their services, then ask for the rate hike," Freibert told the commission The utility serves about 2,300 residents in Mount Prospect's New Town area.

Unit to ask Crane aid in obtaining lake water

SHARE + 3, a coalition of Northwest suburbs trying to get Lake Michigan water, will call on U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12, to help alleviate area water supply problems.

The group plans to ask Crane to support a bill that would permit Illinois to divert additional water from the lake during high water periods, said William H. Muhlenfeld, executive director of the Northwest Municipal Conference and liaison to SHARE + 3

At present, Illinois by law cannot divert more than 3,200 cubic feet of lake water per second. Total requests for water already exceed 4,000 cubic feet per second.

A bill, expected to come up for a vote in Congress this winter, would allow the state to take more water out of the lake during times of highwater levels, Muhlenfeld said.

AN AIDE TO Crane said a meeting between SHARE + 3 officials and Crane will be set up, probably sometime early this fall.

"We do not know at the moment exactly what we can do. As I understand, it (lake water diversion) could have an effect on Canada and neighboring states," said Earl Lewis, a spokesman for Crane in Arlington Heights. "We'll have to get some background and then see what we can do to be helpful."

Muhlenfeld said that he has been told the bill has a "reasonably good chance of passing this year."

HE SAID HE DID not think Crane could help SHARE + 3 with its request to the state for a lake water allocation this year. The Illinois Dept. of Transportation is expected to announce lake water allocations by the end of the year.

SHARE + 3 officials say that lake water is the only long-range solution to water shortages in the Northwest suburbs.

The organization represents Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, Mount Prospect and Palatine.

Scientists elated with the lander's success decided to send Viking 2 to a more northern, and more risky, site where there is a better chance of finding life. The second landing is set for early September.

Project director James Martin said it was decided to target Viking 2, now 2 million miles from Mars, toward an area between 44 and 50 degrees north because of the greater chance of finding liquid water, and therefore life there.

The historic rusty hued photograph that Viking 1 radioed 214 million miles back to Earth from the cold, desolate desert of Mars' Chryse Basin looked as if the three-legged robot had been looking at Arizona's Painted Desert.

The reddish color of the Martian soil confirmed scientific speculation that the red plane has had an environment closer to that of the earth than the moon.

It was noon on Mars when Viking took the picture and radioed it in the form of three color-filtered images. Scientists electronically formed the color frame much as an artist mixes his pigments.

Dr. Thomas Mutch, head of the photographic experiment, said the reddish tint presumably was caused by the oxidation of iron-rich rocks, apparently at an earlier age when Mars had more oxygen or water in its atmosphere.

Adding to the increasing storehouse of knowledge being gathered by Viking 1 was the discovery Tuesday that the planet has about 3 per cent nitrogen and 1.5 per cent argon in its carbon dioxide-rich atmosphere.

Dr. Michael McElroy of Harvard University said this had important implications for Mars' early history and suggested the planet once had the ingredients necessary for the development of life.

Biologists hope Viking's three life detection experiments will answer the ages-old question of whether life exists on Mars. The first biology data is expected in about three weeks.

After observing the color image, Mutch said, "The odds (of finding life) certainly haven't been going down since Viking landed."

"Isn't that lovely," Mutch exclaimed when he first saw the color shot on monitors at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Although the soil was red, the rocks littering the landscape had a gray or greenish cast which Mutch said could result from various weathering processes. He said the greenish cast raises some questions because different chemical processes would be involved in producing the two types of minerals.

A black and white picture stored in the lander's tape recorder and transmitted back early Wednesday showed windblown sediment piling against small boulders. The picture was recorded shortly after sunrise on "Sol" 1, the first full day of Viking on Mars. The sun was low in the eastern sky and the shadows from the rocks were distinct.

"It's nice to know the sun rises in the east and sets in the west," Mutch said.

British envoy to Ireland killed by exploding mine

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — Suspected Irish Republican Army extremists killed Britain's flamboyant ambassador to Ireland Wednesday by exploding a mine under his official car. The blast also killed a woman secretary and seriously wounded the chauffeur and a top British civil servant in Ireland.

Ambassador Christopher Ewart-Biggs, 54, whose aristocratic bearing was enhanced by a black monocle worn over the right eye he lost in the battle of Alamein, arrived in Dublin only on July 8 to end what he called the British hibernation since London's embassy was burned in 1972.

Killed with him was Judith Cooke, 27. She was secretary to Brian Cubbon, permanent secretary to the Northern Ireland Office, who was seriously injured. The ambassador's chauffeur, Brian O'Driscoll, a married man with two young children, also was gravely wounded.

The Sinn Fein, political wing of the IRA, condemned the killers "without reservation."

Police sources said the bombing "bore all the hallmarks of an IRA attack," however, and Irish Foreign Minister Garret Fitzgerald said "the most likely (perpetrator) would seem to be the Provisional IRA or groups of that type." The government offered a $36,000 reward for the murderers.

Ewart-Biggs was en route to a meeting at the embassy with Fitzgerald when the explosion occurred.

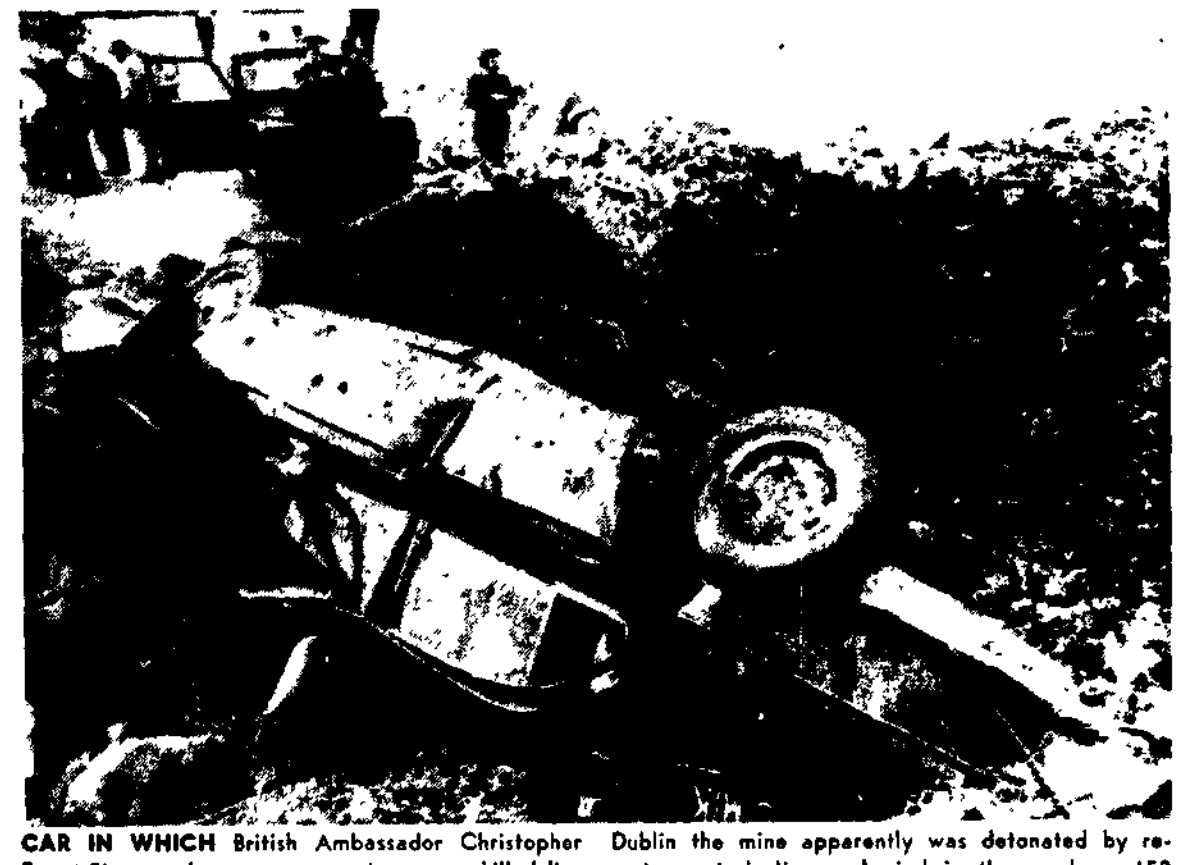
The IRA launched a campaign of violence seven years ago to try to unite British-ruled Northern Ireland with the Irish Republic. Since then 1,585 persons have been killed by bombs and bullets in Northern Ireland. Ewart-Biggs was believed to be the first British diplomat killed in the Irish Republic since the Irish War of Independence ended in 1921.

The bomb, estimated by police to have contained several hundred pounds of explosives, was planted in a pipe under the roadway leading from Ewart-Biggs' official residence. It apparently was detonated by remote control when the ambassador's blue Jaguar sedan passed over it ahead of an escort car of armed detectives.

The 10 a.m. blast shattered a nearby granite wall and left a 10-foot-deep crater in the quiet suburban road 150 yards from the official residence at Glencairn, Sandyford, on the southern outskirts of Dublin. The wrecked car lay on its side with a woman's shoe and neatly furled umbrella spilled on the ground beside the twisted rear door.

Immediately after the explosion, two gunmen with blackened faces were seen running across the field to a getaway car being pushed by a third man. Police later detained known IRA members in Dublin for routine questioning. Two were arrested while attending a funeral.

Colleagues described Ewart-Biggs — married with a 13-year-old son and two daughters aged 9 and 15 — as "an extremely competent man whose work was his life."



CAR IN WHICH British Ambassador Christopher Ewart-Biggs and a woman secretary were killed lies in crater caused by mine explosion. Police said in Dublin the mine apparently was detonated by remote control. It was buried in the roadway 150 yards from the Ambassador's residence.

Hunt wealthy kids in bus kidnap

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (UPI) — Police tracking the kidnapers of 26 children and their driver switched the search Wednesday to the lush suburbs south of San Francisco where they were reportedly hunting sons of the wealthy who may have been members of a thrill-seeking cult.

Sheriff John R. McDonald of San Mateo county said no arrests had been made but that a number of warrants were being sought.

Sheriff Ed Bates of Madera county, where the kidnaping occurred in the small town of Chowchilla last Thursday, hurried to Redwood City to set up a command post in a 45-foot-long trailer.

McDonald said the warrants would have to be signed in Madera county or in Alameda county across the bay where the kidnap victims were entombed for 16 hours last Friday before breaking out of their underground prison.

"We have enough good leads to set up a command post," McDonald said.

The flurry of police activity followed the publication of newspaper reports that at least seven sons of wealthy persons living in an area of estates and stately homes may have been the kidnapers.

One of them was reported to have been the purchaser of a moving van that was used to form the underground dungeon where the children and their driver were abandoned after the mass kidnaping.

The Sacramento Bee and Fresno Bee quoted an unidentified investigator as saying the sons of prominent families in San Mateo county were the suspects.

Soon after the report was published San Mateo Sheriff McDonald said his office had entered the investigation. During the afternoon, word circulated that three suspects had been seized, but various officials, including McDonald, denied there had been arrests.

The search appeared to be centered in the San Mateo County area of Portola Valley, which is dotted with a number of large estates.

Law enforcement sources said the young men may have joined in a "cult-type" group. They said the motive for the kidnaping, not yet established, might have been "thrills."

One source described the suspects as "a collective of kids from well-to-do families." He indicated both drugs and guns were involved.

A reported prime suspect in the case, a 24-year-old member of a prominent Portola Valley family, apparently has dropped out of sight after being under surveillance since last Saturday.

Stranded Yanks may leave S. Viet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vietnam has agreed to allow all Americans stranded in that country at the end of the war to leave beginning Aug. 1 and take their Vietnamese families with them, it was disclosed Wednesday.

Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and George McGovern, D-S.D., released similar telegrams from the Vietnamese ambassador in Paris, Vo Van Sung, announcing the government had authorized the departure of all the Americans, their wives and children.

The announcement came as State Department and Congressional officials accused Vietnamese government officials of not fulfilling promises that the stranded Americans would be allowed to leave.

There was no exact figure on the Americans remaining in Vietnam nor of the number of wives and children.

But Rep. G. V. Montgomery, D-Miss., chairman of the House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia, estimated the number of Americans as at least 40.

The telegram said: "Americans blocked in South Vietnam will be authorized to leave South Vietnam, according to their wishes, and with their wives and children beginning Aug. 1, 1976, with the help of the United Nations High Commission on Refugees."

At a meeting of Montgomery's committee earlier in the day, the congressman and Philip Habib, undersecretary of state for political affairs, accused the Vietnamese of reneging on promises to let the Americans leave.

"Despite assurances given to this committee by North Vietnamese officials that all Americans would be free to leave, a substantial number are still stranded in Saigon," Habib said. "There were recent reports that another group of Americans would be coming out, but this had not happened."

Senate OKs permanent prosecutor bill

The Senate Wednesday passed a bill to establish a permanent Watergate-type prosecutor to investigate criminal acts by top government officials, including the President, his cabinet and the Congress. Later passage in the House is expected. In other action: The Senate voted to override Ford's veto of a $3.95 billion public works bill that Democrats said would create 300,000 jobs. The House is expected to vote an override on Thursday.

'Wait, see' flu shots called risky

The prestigious "Medical Letter" Wednesday told its doctor subscribers that a "wait and see" policy on swine flu shots is risky. The newsletter also told doctors that for those not immunized against swine flu, a drug, Amantadine, is active against the influenza. "It would have to be taken at the first sign of an epidemic, and continued daily until the epidemic was over," the Medical Letter reported.

Thousands of cars polluting air: EPA

Thousands of 1975 model Ford, Chrysler and GM cars are polluting the air because dealers and drivers have misadjusted their carburetors, some apparently deliberately, the Environmental Protection Agency said Wednesday. The agency gave the three manufacturers until Aug. 9 to tell it what they will do to correct the situation, which apparently resulted from a combination of errors by dealer mechanics and tampering by some car owners. The problem was uncovered in tests made by EPA in Chicago, Houston, Phoenix, St. Louis and Washington, D.C.

Peace-keeping troops fired on in Beirut

Ultrarightist Christians opened fire Wednesday on a column of Arab League peace-keeping troops, shattering plans for a buffer zone along the volatile "green line" bisecting Beirut. New fighting also erupted around the besieged Palestinian refugee camp of Tal Zaatar in southeast Beirut, forcing the International Red Cross to postpone once again an evacuation of 100 persons reportedly dying from their untreated wounds. A U.S. embassy spokesman announced, meanwhile, that presidential envoy Talcott Seelye, sent to Beirut after the murder of Ambassador Francis E. Meloy Jr. last month, was returning to Washington for consultations.

14 hostages held at Wisconsin State Prison

WAUPUN, Wis. (UPI) — Convicts at the Wisconsin State Prison seized 14 hostages Wednesday in a "bicentennial revolution" and holed up on the top floor of a penitentiary building.

State officials began negotiations with the convicts in an effort to free their captives.

The discussions started after the convicts released one of the hostages with a list of demands and after two or three of the leaders met outside the building with Warden James Mathews.

Sheriff Edwin Nehls said about 75 inmates were involved in the takeover of a three-story industrial building on the west side of the prison. None was believed to be armed.

All of the hostages were men. Joseph Scislowicz, public information officer for the state Department of Health and Social Services, said three of them were civilians and the rest were guards. The guards taken hostage, he said, did not carry guns.

Nehls said the convicts' demands were not specific, but included a request to meet with Gov. Patrick J. Lucey. A representative of Lucey's office, Ronald SanFelippo of the Division of Emergency Government, was taking part in the discussions.

A Molotov cocktail was thrown at a guard tower and flammable liquids were dropped from windows. The resulting fires were quickly extinguished.

The inmates leaned out of windows most of the afternoon and displayed signs reading, "Bicentennial Revolution," "Stop Treating Us Like Dogs," "Two Inmates Beaten," "Time to Think and Free Us Now," and "Caution — Congressmen at Play." The latter sign was printed on a "Children at Play" roadsign and carried a drawing of a boy and girl.

Nehls said food was being taken to both the inmates and the hostages.

The building involved was a stone structure which houses shops and storage facilities for paint and chemicals. The rebelling prisoners were confined to the top floor.

Nehls said he thought the disturbance started as "a spur of the moment thing."

Police and sheriff's officers from many nearby counties were called to the prison and the Wisconsin National Guard Armory was being used to coordinate efforts.

Panczko thinks quick, but nabbed anyway

People

• Joseph "Pops" Panczko, 62, Chicago's celebrated burglar, has run afoul of the law again, for the 80th (or 3,000th) time since his first arrest in 1940. In Panczko's latest legal joust he claims he was the victim, his own car stolen while he strolled to the corner coffee shop. Police arrested him anyway. Their story was that his "stolen" car turned up in the rear of a residence. A luxury car was parked in front and it contained several thousand dollars worth of women's clothing. A witness identified Panczko as the man he saw looting the car in front of the house. The looter fled on foot, apparently when he heard police sirens arriving. Panczko, a quick thinker, walked into a nearby police station minutes later to report the theft of his car. Panczko denied any guilt in the attempted dress heist. "I'm retired. I haven't been involved in anything in 30 years," he contended. Authorities listened to him, then charged him with attempted grand theft. Police records show 80 previous arrests for Panczko. He scoffed at the figure — said it was 3,000.

Judge orders HEW to act on bias case

A federal judge in Washington has ordered the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare to begin enforcement proceedings against Chicago and five other city school districts for violating school desegregation requirements, it was learned Wednesday. An aide to U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica said the court gave HEW 60 days to finish investigating the Joliet and Maywood school districts for alleged violations of the 1964 Civil Rights Act. And the ruling, issued late Tuesday, also called for HEW to determine if the Cahokia school district is still in violation of Title VI, and if so, to begin enforcement proceedings against it as well. Title VI prohibits federal aid to schools that discriminate on the basis of race, color or national origin. The four Illinois districts were among a total of 46 which Sirica cited. The order does not mean HEW must cut off funds immediately, but must begin "enforcement proceedings," which includes scheduling hearings, hearing appeals and other due process requirements before actual cut offs can be made. Chicago and five other school districts had been found ineligible to receive federal funds under the Emergency School Aid Act because of "various discriminatory practices," Sirica ruled. The other district in Los Angeles; Rochester, N.Y., Richmond, Calif.; Jeffersonville, Ind., and Princeton, Ohio.

Chamber asks school aid veto

The Illinois State Chamber of Commerce Wednesday asked Gov. Daniel Walker to veto the major school-aid formula bill passed during the spring legislative session. The measure (H3518) was sponsored by Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie, and would make several changes in the formula. "This measure started out as a sincere effort to help school districts with fiscal problems caused by declining enrollments, but later was substantially amended to reallocate additional state dollars among school districts with no regard to efficiency," the chamber told Walker in a letter. "A patchwork job on an extremely complex formula is not in the best interests of the schools of this state, the taxpayers, or most of all the children." Jaffe's bill is the only major formula bill that survived the spring session. Walker is expected to act on the major school aid measures — including Jaffe's bill and two major appropriations bills — late this week or early next week.

Kidnaped Florida child found

An 18-month-old boy, kidnaped June 29 in Florida, was found unharmed and in good spirits in a southern Illinois cornfield early Wednesday, authorities said. Bryan Constantino had been taken from the West Palm Beach, Fla., Social Economical Services Agency facility. He was found walking around in the cornfield by Ed Downen, who lives in a rural area near Shawneetown. The boy was turned over to the Illinois Children and Family Services Agency in Harrisburg, and Florida authorities were notified.

Scandal figure resigns post

State Rep. Robert Craig, D-Danville, Wednesday stepped aside temporarily as chairman of a legislative commission but vowed, despite his recent conviction in the cement truck bribery trial, to attend and take part in commission meetings. "Until my situation is resolved," said Craig in opening the Motor Vehicle Laws Commission meeting, "with the advice of my attorneys, I'm temporarily stepping down as chairman, but I'll still be voting and everything." Craig emphasized he is not quitting as commission chairman but merely handing the gavel to Rep. Frank Giglio, D-Calumet City, until his legal woes are over. The commission did not take an official vote at Wednesday's meeting.

Craig and four other lawmakers were found guilty June 25 by a federal court jury of taking part in a bribery scheme to allow heavier cement trucks on Illinois highways. Craig also faces federal charges in another case.

Metropolitan briefs

Daley 'doesn't know' about CTA increase

Mayor Richard J. Daley Wednesday said he hopes another Chicago Transit Authority fare increase can be avoided, but said that might not be possible. "I don't know, I hope we can avoid it," Daley said when asked about the issue at a senior citizens picnic in Lincoln Park. "If it's unavoidable, we have to operate the CTA to give the people the best service that's given any place in the country." CTA officials have said they may be forced to raise fares or cut service because of financial problems.

Marzano's eyes betray him

Pasquale Charles Marzano's eyes betrayed him Wednesday and cost him a chance at a little more freedom before beginning to serve a 20-year prison term. Marzano, 41, convicted as the mastermind in the $4.3 million Purolator Security Inc theft in 1974, requested the delay Monday so he could "wind up my affairs." U.S. District Court Judge James Parsons said he wanted to see Marzano's eyes — "to scrutinize them," to see if Marzano was sincere, before ruling on the request. The judge looked, then ordered Marzano taken into custody.

5 indicted in car rental fraud

A federal grand jury in Chicago indicted five men Wednesday on charges they ran a fraudulent car rental franchise scheme in which 35 customers lost an estimated $450,000. Named in the nine-count mail fraud indictment were Herschell Lewis of Highland Park, his son, Robert Lewis, St Paul, Minn ; Allan Stone, Chicago; Sheldon Rothman, Skokie, and Robert Moseley, Atlanta, Ga. The indictment charged the five men operated Daily Auto Rental Service and sold franchises at about $17,900 apiece. The victims brought franchises entitling them to 12-car fleets, which they could offer for rent to persons whose cars were in repair shops.

Rothman, Skokie, and Robert Moseley, Ga. The indictment charged the five men operated Daily Auto Rental Service and sold franchises at about $17,900 apiece. The victims bought franchises entitling them to 12-car fleets, which they could offer for rent to persons whose cars were in repair shops

The defendants allegedly gave investors the names and telephone numbers of references who reportedly had operated successful franchises. The indictment charged that Robert Lewis and Rothman acted as references, but did not, in fact, own franchises and the investors were deceived into making the purchase. Rothman was only named in five of the mail fraud counts. The others were charged with all nine counts.

Execs say they fixed prices

Twelve container company executives pleaded no contest Wednesday to charges they conspired to fix prices from 1969 to 1974. Chief U.S. District Court Judge James B. Parsons, accepted the pleas from the men who earlier had pleaded not guilty. The 12 were among 50 executives and 23 corporations indicted last Feb. 18 on charges they conspired to fix prices on cardboard cartons. They face maximum sentences of one year in prison and $50,000 fines. Twenty of the corporations charged in the alleged scheme pleaded no contest earlier this week and were fined $50,000 each. Another 22 of the corporations and 48 of the executives have filed requests to change their pleas from innocent to no contest. Parsons will consider more requests Thursday.

Petition investigators accused of intimidation

by STEVE BROWN

State elections board officials who are checking names of persons who signed petitions circulated by the Coalition for Political Honesty were accused Wednesday of intimidating and harassing petition passers.

Patrick Quinn, one of the organizers of the group, said he had received calls from a number of persons active in the drive to collect signatures who said they felt harassed by Illinois Board of Elections researchers.

Franklin Lunding, chairman of the elections board, said the 10 persons who are working to authenticate the petitions have been instructed to be polite.

"We are not trying to harass anyone, we are trying to determine if the signatures on the petitions are valid. I'll fire anyone who harasses people," he said.

LUNDING SAID the researchers are talking with persons who obtained a large number of signatures on petitions to have three constitutional amendments aimed at strengthening state ethics laws on the ballot. The coalition's efforts currently are being challenged in court by a group of persons who drafted the 1970 Illinois Constitution.

"They are asking leading questions attempting to disqualify signatures from the petitions," Quinn charged. He said the group might consider taking legal actions to block further interviews with the elections board representatives.

"If they wanted to ask questions, they should call a hearing and have the people who passed the petitions come in and testify," Quinn added.

He also challenged the authority of the board to make the inquiry.

"THEY HAD UNTIL May 11 to receive protests over the signatures. That time is long past. Now they should just certify the signatures," he stated.

The group needed 375,000 signatures, but actually collected over 630,000 names for the amendments. The amendments will ban legislators from collecting pay in advance, prohibit double dipping — holding two public jobs — and strengthen the conflict-of-interest law.

Two of the persons questioned by the election board officials this week said they objected to the procedure.

Walter Biernet of Chicago said while the two researchers were not rude, he questioned their authority to conduct their investigation.

"THEY WANTED to know if I asked all these people if they were registered voters and questions like this," said Biernet, who is active in the 23rd Ward Republican Organization.

Louis Savage of Palos Hills said the researchers who contacted him had told his daughter they were working with the coalition to get his work address.

"They asked all sorts of questions, anything they could to get the names thrown off the petitions," he added. Savage said he collected more than 1,000 signatures himself in the effort.

"SOME PEOPLE might be threatened by the procedures. This might discourage people from getting involved if they know they might get interrogated later on," Savage added.

He said the two men who questioned him were John Morrissey and William Wrech.

Lunding said all of the persons who are collecting information about the petitions are either regular elections board employes or temporary workers who have been thoroughly trained on procedures.

Lunding said he intends to contact Quinn to discuss the reports he has been receiving in the next few days.

Deficit looms in Harper budget

Harper College will spend $900,000 more than it receives in income during the 1976-77 school year and will need a tax increase in 1977 to keep from depleting its cash reserves, according to the 1976-77 tentative budget.

The budget, which will be reviewed by the Harper Board of Trustees tonight, calls for operating budget expenditures of $14,056,080, up 21.1 per cent from 1975-76 expenditures. Projected 1976-77 revenues will total $13,151,000, up 18.5 per cent from the projected 1975-76 revenues.

A 5.5-cent per $100 equalized assessed valuation tax increase will be needed in 1977, said William Mann, vice president of administrative services. Without an increase, which would have to be approved in a referendum, the college would deplete its reserves in the next two or three years he said. The 5.5-cent increase would add $5.50 to the tax bill on a home assessed at $10,000.

USE OF $905,080 from the college's invested cash surplus will balance the 1976-77 budget. However, when added to the $508,340 in reserve that the college used to balance its 1975-76 budget, Harper will spend more than $1 million than it received in income for the 1975-77 period.

The bulk of the college's expenditures will be made in its education fund, which covers costs such as teachers' salaries, administrative costs and student services.

Tuition is the major source of the anticipated $9,407,000 education fund revenues. The budget projects that 38.5 cents of each dollar in education-fund revenues will come from tuition. Tuition has been raised from $14 to $15 per credit hour for the coming year.

Local taxes account for 25.7 cents of every dollar, while state aid accounts for 25.1 cents.

The cost per student will increase by 4.5 per cent from $1,345 to $1,406.

Aid from the state will increase $464,000 over last year, totaling $4,184,000 for the college's education and building funds. State aid as a percentage of total income is declining however, Mann said. He said for schools it seems, "The recession is now."

MANN SAID THE college can expect state aid to decline while expenses continue to rise. That situation makes the projected 1977 tax increase necessary, he said.

The college's building funds expenditures are projected at $2,353,180, a 12.9 per cent increase over 1975-76 expenses. Expendetures in the bond and interest fund will increase 139 per cent to $1,410,300. The large increase is attributable to retirement of debts and interest on bonds.

New welfare rules OKd by township

Social service personnel approving persons for general assistance payments in Wheeling Township will be guided by new rules adopted this week by township auditors.

The township's social service department had been using guidelines formulated by the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid. Many of those provisions were included in the township's policy for the distribution of $178,050 in the 1976-77 general assistance budget.

The new guidelines, containing several additions and corrections submitted by human services coordinator Charlene Hawthorne, now go to Township Atty. Richard Cowen for his review.

THE TOWNSHIP guidelines are divided into five categories; general assistance, medical care, medically indigent, rights of applicants and recipients, and respectable burial arrangements.

Much of the auditors' discussion centered on problems of youths and non-English speaking persons applying for general assistance.

The auditors deleted a sentence in the proposed guidelines that would have "urged" non-English speaking applicants "to obtain the assistance of an interpreter in completing the application form and the interview."

Auditor William Reed suggested the township should provide such an interpreter, but Auditor Ray DeMaertelaere questioned whether the guidelines "should saddle the township with the duty of finding an interpreter."

Township Supervisor Ethel Kolerus assured the auditors the township's social service workers "already make every effort to get an interpreter" for those unable to speak or understand English. Such help is often found at Northwest Opportunity Center.

ANOTHER QUESTION arose over the statement in the proposed guidelines that "parents are legally responsible for providing support for children under 21 years of age." DeMaertelaere, a lawyer in private practice, said his experience in divorce litigation shows that parents can be, but are not necessarily legally responsible for their children.

Mrs. Kolerus said the age support definition was used by the state in welfare matters and was necessary to discourage some adolescents from seeking public aid.

"More and more emancipated children are leaving home today and possibly could come here tomorrow (asking) to be set up by us in food and rent rather than take out the garbage and do a few things at home," Mrs. Kolerus said.

The age limits of parental support were referred to Cowen.

The township guidelines also include provisions requiring applicants to liquidate their capital assets such as boats, campers, valuables or jewelry to first meet their needs before applying for general assistance from the township.

The guidelines also provide for the township financing burial should the deceased not be covered by either veterans' benefits or Social Security.

Dist. 21 to decide on vote tonight

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education will decide tonight if a referendum will be held for a tax increase.

The board will meet at 8:15 p.m. at the administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The tax referendum was recommended two weeks ago by a citizens' committee studying district finances. The committee recommended a tax increase of 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation to help relieve the district's financial problems.

If a tax referendum is approved by the board it will be held in September in order to provide funds for the 1977 fiscal year, district officials said.

Other items on tonight's board agenda include adoption of a $12.7 million tentative budget for the 1976-77 school year, and the appointment of a new board member to fill the vacancy created by Jack Lane's resignation.

An 'Endeavor' to wage warfare on the waves

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Bill Kuhns will set out on a sailor's dream Saturday as part of a 10-man crew sailing in the annual Mackinac race between Chicago and Mackinac Island, Mich.

The two-day race across Lake Michigan is one of the top sailing events in the Midwest and draws 250 vessels annually.

It will be the third Mackinac race for the 48-year-old Prospect Heights park commissioner. He will sail on a 41-foot sloop owned by a friend, Harold Sumi, of Racine, Wis.

HE SAYS HE keeps coming back because of the adventure and challenge involved — because it's not often that the working man can tear himself away from his responsibilities and embark on a voyage.

"Sailing puts me back into the natural environment and takes me out of the cities of buildings and concrete," said the advertising executive, who has been sailing since his boyhood days.

Kuhns, 9 N. Parkway, looks forward to racing each season in many of the Lake Michigan races, which take him from Chicago to Waukegan and Milwaukee to Muskegon, even though his crew has never placed among top finishers in any of the contests.

When he and "The Endeavor" crew take off at 2 p.m. Saturday from the Chicago Yacht Club on their 666-mile race, there's every chance that they could win or place, he said.

"EACH OF US HAS a job to do on the boat," says Kuhns, whose responsibility is "holding the ropes" and making sure the sails are trimmed properly to make the most of the wind, land Kuhn said.

Sailing is far from an easy job and involves alternating four hours of intense manouvering with four hours of rest during long races like the Mackinac

Depending on the weather and winds, "The Endeavor" could dock Monday or Tuesday at Mackinac Island Kuhsn said.

Perils could arise during that time, Kuhns said, like they have in the past.

His first bout in the Mackinac was with a severe thunderstorm, high winds and a near collision with another sailboat.

IN HIS 15 YEARS of sailing, he has contended with 12-foot waves, rain, fierce winds and even snow.

"Sixty-mile-per-hour winds can place the fear of death in you," Kuhns said, but they also spark the spirit of challenge in a man.

And Kuhns always is ready for a race because he jogs and exercises regularly. He just packs up his life jacket, storm gear, suntan lotion and camera and takes off.

"These races are a lot of fun, but someday I would love to sail from the United States to Europe," he said, "or sail on one of the tall ships that were in New York for the Bicentennial."

Jim Mack runs to keep 'freedom'

Today

Mike Klein's people

Very few disappointing moments have occurred for me since The Herald began publishing this column last December But today I must inform you about one of them

You might remember an article about Jim Mack which appeared here less than two weeks ago

Jim is 31 years old He lived his teen-age years in these Northwest suburbs

Then he went bad and for the past 10 years, Jim has shuffled himself from one crime to another, and from one prison or jail into the next

Nevertheless, Jim received the chance to come clean He was released this month from Cook County Jail, pending an appearance last Friday in the Hoffman Estates branch of circuit court

I spent four hours with him two weeks ago. Jim said his life had been worth nothing and he concluded, "I want to say that I've accomplished something Up to this point, I've done nothing"

JIM SAID he wanted to work with young people

I watched for signs of bitterness, or for evidence that Jim was a volcano looking for someplace to erupt

But he showed none of those tendencies Instead, he appeared to be a man who sincerely wanted one more chance to redeem something from his slipshod life

Perhaps he still does But there is some doubt now about his methods

Jim Mack did not attend court last Friday He became scared and chose to run again Jim copped out

His family said that Jim had written a letter to me It arrived early this week and, in part, that July 15 letter said

"DEAR MIKE.

"As fate would have it, I must leave the State of Illinois Just out of plain fear for what they will try to do to me if I go to court

"I was hoping to see more response from the article so that I would have something to show the court At least let them see that I was trying to accomplish something good But they are only concerned with results and not with good intentions

"Freedom is the most important thing now Because if the people of Illinois feel they don't need or want my services then I will have a chance to give the same offer to people in another area

"I would like to have stayed here to offer help to the people I grew up with, but people will not forgive or forget But there are people in other parts of this country who know me only as an honest citizen and truly like me So this is where I must go I need trust and faith to accomplish anything"

HE CONCLUDED, in part, "I want to thank you for your help and for being a friend No once can say you didn't try. But as we found out, trying to change a legend is difficult"

I finished reading the letter and then spoke with Jim's brother, Jere, who also is disappointed

"He was looking to that article too much," Jere said. "I told him, 'Don't hope for too much. You'll have to do it yourself'

'That's his problem He expects results too fast," Jere said "I've been working long enough to know it doesn't go that way I tried to tell him that, but he thinks things should happen right away.

"Even when he was married, he expected everything too quick," Jere said. "Money problems would frustrate him. Hell, I have money problems every day

"There's nothing I can do now You try to help him along, but he's his own person He's got to do things himself Sometimes, it's like talking to a little kid."

Jere said that Jim had sought to take a lawyer into court last Friday. But the lawyers with whom he spoke wanted $300 cash upfront, then $200 later

Jim does not have any money 'I didn't have it to lend him either," Jere said

Then my telephone rang late Tuesday afternoon It was Jim Mack I asked him what he was doing and why he had decided not to attend court

"You can go into court without a lawyer or you can get a public defender," Jim said "But they eat lunch with the judge What more can I say?"

Jim thought he would be ripped off in court So he just split He would not tell me his location.

We talked for nearly 30 minutes He kept saying that his chances for success outside crime are better away from Cook County and Illinois

"I want you to know. and I don't care about the police or the governor. . . I want you to know that I would have enjoyed staying here to help (young people)," Jim said He kept saying that, and I continued to wonder

Jim had the chance to stick around and see his problems through court But he chose another route He ran Now his record is one more entry longer

And a good case can be made for whether Jim Mack will ever escape his long dark tunnel of crime and confusion I still hope that he does

County home rule study needs to be examined

Cook County officials seemed to waste no time this week looking for a place to file the long overdue report of the county board's home rule study commission.

Several issues are raised by the report, which was developed to set some parameters for the county board's use of the home rule power granted under the 1970 Illinois Constitution. They should be disposed of and not left to simmer.

First it appears possible the efforts of the commission will be wasted.

Second, the report seems to present some far-fetched ideas for the future financing of county government operations. The potpourri of new taxes — ranging from off-track betting to gasoline taxes — is not accompanied by any estimates of revenue that would be produced.

The report includes a proposal to begin electing the 16 members of the county board by districts. This might not be a bad idea, but the last time the Chicago Democrats who dominate the county tried to draw a boundary map, a number of independent congressmen nearly found themselves out of a job. We are concerned that a district plan would be used to rob the suburbs of the representation they now have in county government.

The chance for an open discussion of the study, which was prepared over the last two years, seems slim because County Board Pres. George Dunne has already announced the commission's efforts will be "placed on file."

There should be public discussion of the report to resolve some of the questions it raises. There should also be an effort to determine how the county might implement some of the ideas covered in the report.

Suggestions that the number of special taxing districts be reduced and that agreements be made between the county and municipalities over future property incorporations seem to warrant such consideration.

Suburban members of the board would like to have some general discussion of the concepts presented in the study. The county board has gotten into some difficulty with the public over proposed extensions of its powers under home rule, and a general determination of philosophy would help clear the air.

Israeli raid needed even if casualties were higher

by NEA/LONDON
Economist News Service

President Ford sent a letter to Israel's prime minister expressing his "satisfaction"; Helmut Schmidt told Yitzhak Rabin by cable of the West German government's "gratification and relief." France has chosen the unsplendid isolation of silence. Britain, in the harassed mutter which is its diplomatic accent in this era of its economic dependency, said only that it was pleased the Entebbe hostages' lives had been saved.

That Israel's feat of arms in Entebbe was legitimate seems reasonably clear, for all the usual obscurity of international law. Gen. Amin complains that Israel committed an act of war against Uganda by landing troops at his capital's airport and rescuing the hostages by force of arms. But if Gen. Amin's troops were helping the hijackers — and the rescued hostages' evidence suggests that they were — his government had already committed an act of war against Israel (and against France and Britain, both of which had their citizens among the last group of hostages).

The Israeli action might have been justified in international law even if Gen. Amin had genuinely been trying, which he was not, to free the hostages without satisfying the hijackers' demands. Many people believe that a country has the right to rescue its citizens from another country if they are in danger and if the government of the country where it is happening seems to be incapable of saving them. Even if Gen. Amin had wanted to rescue the hostages from the Entebbe terrorists ,it is doubtful whether his army had the special counter-terrorist training needed to do it.

One precedent for the Israeli action at Entebbe was the Belgian-American airborne operation in 1965 which rescued 1,400 people from Stanleyville, in the Congo, when the Congo government was powerless to help them. Other countries have done similar things on other occasions. Actions of this kind are not violations of Article 2(4) of the United Nations charter, which tries to define when the use of force is illegal, unless they affect the "territorial integrity or political independence" of the country concerned; and the Entebbe raid leaves Uganda territorially whole and politically independent, if quite properly crestfallen.

To be sure, the Israelis were lucky at Entebbe. It was only just within the reach of their aircraft, even allowing for a refueling stop at Nairobi on the way back. To find the airport in the dark, land three large planes on it and still surprise the hijackers and the Ugandans is something no planning staff could have counted on — even using Israeli officers who had once worked at Entebbe. That only three of the hostages were killed in the fight is a minor miracle. The Israelis would probably have faced tougher opposition if the hijackers had been able to take the captured airliner to Algeria or Libya; they would face tougher opposition if the operation had to be tried again in Uganda.

The next time — and there probably will be a next time — the hijackers may carry their victims beyond even the farthest range of Israeli rescuers (and will another government then match the political decisiveness and military skill of the Israelis?)

ALL THIS WILL eventually temper the Israelis' first exhilaration over their success at Entebbe. Yet the harsh truth remains true: that this operation would have been justified even if it had not gone so cleanly, and more of the hostages had lost their lives; and future operations of the same kind will be justified even if the casualties are heavier.

There are two objectives in dealing with terrorists who take hostages and use them to make unacceptable demands. The first is to save as many of the hostages as possible. The other is to make sure that the terrorists' hostages tactic fails, which will not always be compatible with the first, but many nevertheless have to take precedence over it.

Finds Carter worth trusting

Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter, in his speech of acceptance, Thursday evening, July 15, was either the greatest premeditated snow-job given to the voting public of the United States of America, or the best presidential hope we have had for the office since Harry Truman.

I believe in him and his ideals, skeptical though I am. His words and promises were outright, gut-provoking and gave hope to the poor of our states.

Presidential powers are very direct, and under emergency almost a dictatorship, that is why we have to be so aware and astute in our voting and election.

WHEN OUR Constitution and our government laws were devised, our forefathers realized that the president must have power in emergency, but not have enough power to corrupt.

Restraints were offered to be imposed by the senate. The senate now has a repeal under way and pending, a new bill, to curtail some presidential power. This may be the answer to any infamous doings like Watergate.

I am citing this so voters will know there probably will be a change in the morals and mores of our government.

Jimmy Carter seems to be acutely aware of this. Whether it is ideological or fact only time will tell.

Worthy of note

We wish to thank the following paramedics for their help in saving my husband's life the evening of July 14: Roy Wente, Lee Plate, John Forsberg and Thomas Bergmann who are part of the paramedic team of the Palatine fire department.

We also wish to thank Jack McGregor, a police officer in Palatine, who with his life-saving efforts kept my husband alive until the paramedics arrived. The paramedics' special skills and personal devotion helped my husband to recover from an electrocution caused by the storm. They also helped me to bear the agonizing moments of uncertainty.

God bless them all!

Clearbrook Park drainage ruined

What was once an eyesore to our community, was then turned into a beautiful area, named "Clearwater Park."

The basin when first constructed was graded to provide a natural drainage of rain water and overflow to the main half of the basin and into the small lake. But now the basin has been divided in half by building an earth dam. The natural drainage that was so cleverly thought of was destroyed by some idiot who thinks it's better to provide pools of stagnant water for mosquitos to breed and enough weeds, which now cannot be cut, to supply enough pollen to drive anyone with an allergy clear out of his head.

Oh yes, it can be remedied, just get the taxpayer to cough up the money and we will correct it, which seems to be the attitude of our village politicians. And why not, it's our money they're spending for their mistakes, not their own.

Okraphobia 'll get you if the peanuts don't

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Now that Jimmy Carter has been duly annointed as the Democratic presidential candidate, political analysts are saying he faces problems reminiscent of those that confronted the late President Kennedy at the outset of the 1960 campaign.

Just as certain voters then had misgivings about Kennedy's Catholicism, certain voters now feel uneasy about Carter's Southernism.

Here are some of the fears and suspicions, mostly groundless, that have arisen:

• If Carter is elected, he may turn the White House rose garden into a peanut patch.

• Secret plans have been made to have the Marine Band replace its arrangement of "Hail to the Chief" with a rousing chorus of "Dixie."

• Carter might change the U.S. Motto from "E Pluribus Unum" to "The South Shall Rise Again."

Some pundits have suggested that Carter deal with those qualms at an air-clearing session similar to Kennedy's meeting with Baptist ministers in Houston.

FAIR ENOUGH. The question is, what form should such a confrontation take?

It has been my experience that misconceptions about the South are largely okraphobic. Which is to say they are based on an illogical aversion to okra.

Being unable to understand why southerners eat okra, outlanders come to view southerners themselves with suspicion. Which can hamper the efforts of southern politicians to gain a national following.

It is my belief that if Carter were to appear before a panel of Yankee gourmets and answer their questions fully and forthrightly, it would go a long way toward dispelling such concerns.

Some of the questions he could anticipate are:

Q. Why do southerners speak so slowly?

A. The so-called southern drawl developed because the colonists who settled in that region happened to have slow ears. The average southerner does not hear as fast as people elsewhere do. So the tempo of their speech has slackened accordingly.

Q. What about the insect problem?

A. The South has some trouble with bowl weevils, an insect that chews up cereal and salad bowls, but otherwise the problem is no worse than anywhere else.

Q. Is cornpone dangerous?

A. If accidentally dropped on the foot, cornpone can cause external injuries. But if taken internally, it is perfectly harmless.

Q. What causes red-eye gravy?

A. When someone with a hangover tries to fry country ham, the salty fumes arising from the skillet make his or her eyes water. Some of the moisture may drop into the pan, creating the phenomenon known as red-eye gravy.

We're tired of excuses on railway crossing

It's time to open up the Ridge-Walnut railroad crossing in Arlington Heights which for months has been delayed by the railroad.

The crossing, designed to provide a major north-south link through the Village of Arlington Heights, was approved by the Illinois Commerce Commission in 1970 despite objections from the railroad. Then came a three-year special assessment battle, followed by a disagreement concerning the share of right of way compensation between the village and the railroad.

The Village of Arlington Heights completed its part of the work — highway work and installation of stoplights — in January. We have waited until now for the railroad to complete its work. We continue to wait.

During the last week in May, we asked a Chicago and North Western Ry. spokesman when the work would be finished. We were told within 30 days. It hasn't been, and now we're told of further delays caused by a difficulty in obtaining a piece of equipment for the railroad signal.

Two weeks ago, a signal master refused to give us a new target date for completion, saying "people would only get upset if it was printed and then not finished by that date."

He's correct. We're all tired of hearing the excuses.

0.5% cost-of-living increase in June

Rising fuel prices overshadowed a general easing in the rate of increase for food costs in June, driving the over-all cost of living up 0.5 per cent, the government said Wednesday. Economists generally agreed that Americans can expect "more of the same" in the way of inflation in the months ahead. The June consumer price rise — the second largest of the year — represented a slight decline from the 0.6 per cent increase recorded in May. Translated into a yearly figure, this would mean annual inflation rate of 6 per cent. The Labor Dept. said inflation rose 6.1 per cent as a whole for the spring quarter, April through June. This compares with a 2.9 per cent increase in the first three months of this year. The Labor Dept. said a steep rise — 1.9 per cent — in prices for gasoline, heating oil, coal, electricity and natural gas accounted for almost one-third of the over-all increase in the Consumer Price Index. A month earlier, energy prices had advanced 1 per cent. In June, food prices rose 0.2 per cent, considerably less than the 1 per cent increase registered in May.

U.S. enters cannery strike

The top federal labor mediator moved into the California cannery workers' strike Wednesday to try to end the dispute before it cripples the state's farm industry and hits the nation's food buyers in the pocketbook. Oregon officials asked for a court order to force striking grain inspectors back to work before their idleness causes the state's record 60-million-bushel wheat crop to be dumped on the ground. In the East, a strike protesting federal court interference in coal mine labor disputes spread deeper into the West Virginia coalfields. Up to 7,000 miners in seven counties were idle.

UOP earnings at $9.1 million

UPO Inc., Des Plaines, reported its net income in the second quarter of 1976 rose to $9,180,000 or 80 cents a share. The figures compare to year-earlier earnings of $575,000 or 4 cents a share. Income from continuing operations during the second quarter reached $6,325,000 or 55 cents a share compared to $1,503,000 or 13 cents a share in 1975. Gross revenues were tallied at $177,360,000 compared to $143,162,000 for the same period in 1975. The company's net income for the first half of the year amounted to $13,517,000 or $1.18 a share compared to $4,933,000 or 48 cents a share for the first half of 1975. The UOP Board of Directors voted to pay a dividend of 10 cents per common share starting the third quarter of 1976. It is payable Sept. 24 to shareholders of record Sept. 3. James V. Crawford, president and chief executive officer, said the board's actions reflect UOP's improved earnings performance and confidence in the firm's future growth.

$2 million net for C&NW

The Chicago and North Western Transportation Co. reported net income of $2,180,000 or 49 cents a share in the second quarter of 1976 compared to a net loss of $6,236,000 in the second quarter of 1975. Second quarter operating revenues reached $135,975,000 compared to the year-earlier figure of $106,218,000. For the first six months of the year, net income totaled $2,813,000 on operating revenues of $260,327,000.

U.S. in hamburger market

Agriculture Sec. Earl L. Butz announced Wednesday his department will begin immediately to buy hamburger — probably including some produced from choice and prime grade cattle — to help bolster sagging cattle prices. Butz' action came on the heels of appeals from cattlemen and Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., who urged that the government step into the market because many producers are losing money at current prices. Curtis said consumers might face beef shortages later if the low cattle prices continued to discourage future production.

11 cities may get overseas routes

The Civil Aeronautics Board Wednesday proposed opening 11 U.S. cities to nonstop transatlantic service for the first time and giving two additional airlines authority to fly the profitable route. The decision will have to be approved by President Ford before it goes into effect. Whether the airlines exercise the option to fly the routes will depend on permission from the countries involved across the Atlantic Ocean. Under the decision — described by board officials as the most important case to be acted on in a decade — Cleveland, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Denver, Kansas City, Minneapolis-St. Paul, Dallas-Fort Worth, Houston, Atlanta, New Orleans and Tampa, Fla., would all become "gateway" cities from which flights could depart nonstop for Europe. The ruling also would allow Northwest Airlines to serve Europe for the first time and would give Delta Air Lines its first truly international service with a route from the Texas cities and Atlanta to London.

Dress codes individually tailored

by LEA TONKIN

See-through. Low-cut. No tie. Tight-tight.

These are employe dress styles that drive some supervisors up the wall. Others, perhaps enjoying the view, leave the informal versus straitlaced decision up to individual workers.

A check of several area employers shows mixed opinion on the necessity for employe dress codes. Although business surveys turn up written or unwritten dress codes at most companies, the traditional business suit is giving way to sport coats, turtlenecks and leisure suits.

Wilfred VonMayr, personnel director at Harper College in Palatine, said the college's dress code consists of one sentence: "Decency and good taste are the only guidelines.

"We do not care to have short-shorts and halters, but if they feel it's decency and good taste, we can't do anything about it," VonMayr said.

"MEN DON'T HAVE to wear suits and ties," the personnel director said. "It's more individual taste than the nature of the job." Exceptions include uniforms provided as a convenience to maintenance workers.

Employes are free to set their own standards for attire at the Speedfam Corp., in Des Plaines, a machine tool manufacturer. No dress code is used at the Arnar-Stone Laboratories Inc., Mount Prospect.

Appearance standards are strictly enforced for public employes of United Air Lines, Elk Grove Township, said Jim Kennedy, director of public relations. On-the-job garb of flight attendants, receptionists and other public contact employes "creates an impression on customers," Kennedy said.

"UNIFORMS ARE MORE contemporary," he said. "There was a time when a stewardess uniform had very much of a military look. The mini skirt came in. It changed and took on that look. Then slacks came in." Uniforms for male attendants also have been revamped to keep up with changing styles.

Good judgment is the policy for employes who do not regularly meet the public, Kennedy said. A supervisor will make sure attire suits the job, however.

United's office workers who travel aboard company aircraft are expected to dress neatly. Tank tops, Bermuda shorts and sandals are taboo.

Female employes at the Bank and Trust Co. of Arlington Heights wear special uniforms, said Marian Cornell, assistant vice president and personnel director.

"IT'S AN identification. People who come into the bank will associate them as someone who can help them," she said. Skirts, vests and jumpers are included in the bank attire for women.

Men are expected to dress "in a businesslike manner," Mrs. Cornell said. Suits, sport coats, slacks and ties are acceptable. The bank never ruled out colored shirts as some banks have done in the past, she said.

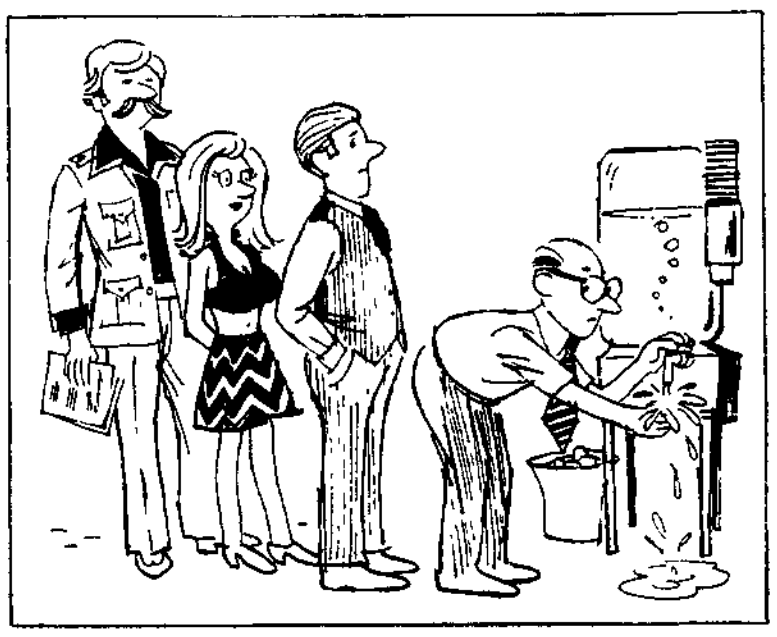
The traditional business suit is vanishing from the office scene, reports the Dartnell Institute of Business Research, Chicago. A Dartnell survey of employe dress codes shows 98 per cent of the participating companies approve of sport coats for office wear. Sixty-five per cent of the firms said a necktie is not required apparel for work.

TIES REMAIN VERY much in vogue at "bastions of conservative dress," the Dartnell report said. These holdouts include banks, insurance companies, financial firms and a number of hospital, school and government offices.

The pantsuit for women is acceptable in most offices in U. S. and Canada, the Dartnell survey showed. A coordinated appearance is generally favored. Nearly one-third of the companies surveyed frown on miniskirts and 75 per cent turn thumbs down on blue jeans.

Many companies rule out halter tops. As one company advised female employes in a memo, "Now that summer is here, each staff member needs to discriminate between acceptable business clothes as opposed to attire suitable for home, active sports, etc. Please remember that any clothing (low-cut, see-through, bare midriff, tight-tight) which is too revealing is unacceptable in a business situation."

Employe dress standards are more relaxed than most executives recall from years back. "They also tend to see a continuing trend in this direction," the Dartnell report said. "Quite a few actually said, 'We like it.' "



Stocks come out of slump

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market scored its first gain in four sessions Wednesday in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange against a mixed news background.

The Dow Jones industrial average, a 2.54-point loser Tuesday, gained 1.15 points to 989.44. The blue-chip average had been ahead more than five points in the early afternoon and barely managed to hold onto a small gain.

Since reaching a 41-month high of 1,011.21 on July 12, the Dow, representing a quarter of the value of all NYSE stocks, has been in a slump. Analysts said its numerous failures this year to hold above the 1,000-level has hurt the market over-all.

Right in line with the Dow, the NYSE common stock index gained 0.08 to 55.50 and the average price of an NYSE common share increased by five cents. Advances edged declines, 733 to 655, among the 1,845 issues crossing the tape, and 457 remained unchanged.

Standard & Poor's new 500-stock index, which includes some over-the-counter stocks, gained 0.10 to 103.82.

Volume totaled 18,350,000 shares, compared with 18,810,00 traded Tuesday.

Ask Andy

Volcanos clear island of snakes

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Nancy Berge, 13, of Hinton, Iowa, for her question:

WHY ARE THERE NO SNAKES IN NEW ZEALAND?

Many scientists now believe that at one time all the land on earth was joined in one large land mass. Slowly, over a period of 200 million years, the continents drifted apart. Islands appeared and disappeared. Strange as it may seem, this has quite a bit to do with why there are no native snakes in New Zealand. Meandering continents take their animal and plant life with them on their global tours. But many forms of life fail to reach isolated ocean islands.

In the blue Pacific Ocean, some 6,400 miles southwest of California, floats the island country of New Zealand. The country consists of two main islands and dozens of much smaller islands. All together, the total land area is just about equal to that of Colorado. And like Colorado, it has glistening, snow-capped mountains, lush, forested slopes and gemlike lakes. But unlike Colorado, New Zealand is surrounded by water, and the closest land — Australia — lies some 1,200 miles away.

Millions of years ago New Zealand was connected to the continent of Australia, which was itself a portion of one huge supercontinent. Gradually this great land mass cracked and pieces drifted away to become our present-day continents. Whole chains of ocean islands rose and sank during this time. The portion of Australia that was to become New Zealand drifted to the southeast, but as yet it was not an island but rather an underwater land mass.

In time, fiery volcanoes erupted again and again to build up New Zealand to the status of a sure-enough island. And as time passed plants and animals began to establish themselves. Fossil remains show that the plants and animals that lived during this period were primitive, old-style life forms. But the island was still young, and changes were still to take place.

Later, during the northern ice ages, New Zealand sank down below the surface of the ocean. Perhaps the peaks of the tallest volcanoes remained above the surface to become refuges for a few animals, but most of the wildlife was destroyed. Once again the volcanoes went to work and in time the land was built up.

Nature repopulated these new islands with a wondrous assortment of plants and animals. Most of these new tenants came from faraway continents — perhaps on bits of floating debris. No snakes arrived, however, probably because they could not crawl across the water or were not strong enough to swim the wide expanse of ocean.

Because of its isolation from the other continents, New Zealand has some forms of plant and animal life not found anywhere else. The kiwi, tui, bellbird and the kea are but a few of its unique birds. New Zealand's only reptile — the tuatara — lives in no other location. Scientists estimate that the tuatara should have become extinct 100 million years ago. Seems he fooled even the experts.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Paul Dougherty, 9, of Great Bend, Kan., for his question.

WHAT TYPE OF METAL IS BRONZE?

Thousands of years ago man discovered that the metals copper and tin combined very well to make a hard, strong, corrosion-resistant substance — bronze. Today, bronze is not always an alloy of these two metals alone. Phosphorus, lead, zinc and other metals are often added to give bronze certain characteristics. For example, statues frequently are made of bronze with lead added, as are articles which need to be lubricated, such as bearings. Most things made of bronze last a long time. If exposed to the weather, the shiny surface changes to a warm brown color or is covered by a green film.

Silicon bronze is copper with from 1 to 3 per cent silicon added, along with small amounts of iron, nickel or manganese. This alloy resists even the corrosive action of harsh chemicals, and so it is used for chemical containers. Another bronze alloy may contain from five to 10 per cent aluminum. Some aluminum bronzes can be hardened until they are as strong as steel.

Bridge dummy plays well

Here is another hand from the ABTA quarterly. According to Betty Lind, her daughter sitting East opened with a psychic bid of one spade.

Betty bid two spades and West got into the act by trying four spades. For some reason or other North didn't double, but when Betty bid five hearts North raised her to six.

Betty ruffed the spade lead high and counted 11 easy tricks. She decided to try for the 12th by means of a trump coup.

At trick two Betty led a low trump to dummy's eight to guard against a 4-0 trump break which would spoil the potential dummy reversal. Once both opponents followed the rest was easy.

She ruffed a second spade high, entered dummy with the king of clubs, ruffed a third spade high, entered dummy with the queen of diamonds, ruffed the last spade, led her last trump to overtake in dummy, discarded one club on dummy's last trump and was held to six when East kept a diamond stopper.

A nice hand but to forestall some of our scientific readers, we will mention that the hand can also be made by letting the defense hold one spade trick and developing a squeeze.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B V A X R is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letter apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Visitation will be from 7 to 9:30 p.m. today in Ahlgrim and Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine. Services and interment will be private on Friday.

Income base increased in school meal plan

Income guidelines for families eligible for free-or reduced-price breakfasts and lunches in Illinois schools have been raised an average of 14 per cent in family income levels.

State Schools Supt. Joseph M. Cronin said the yearly adjustment in the guidelines should assist some families by allowing them to reach a higher earning level while still qualifying for the free-or reduced-price breakfasts and lunches.

Free-and reduced-price lunches are available at all public and many parochial and nursery schools. Maximum cost for a reduced-price lunch is 20 cents. Maximum for the reduced-price breakfast is 10 cents.

State and federal reimbursement is provided local schools to offset the costs of serving free and reduced-price meals. The income guidelines for the meal program are:

FAMILY SIZE	FREE	REDUCED PRICE BREAKFAST & LUNCH
1	$ 1,650	$ 3,750

State to tell new energy program

by LEA TONKIN

Industry and citizens groups will be asked to support a new statewide energy conservation program in Illinois, said J. Ernest Dunwoody, manager of energy conservation and alternative energy within the Illinois Dept. of Business and Economic Development.

Dunwoody said he expects a mid-August announcement by Gov. Daniel Walker on the new statewide program. Federal energy legislation and Illinois efforts to meet the conservation requirements will be discussed by Dunwoody at a July 28 public meeting in Palatine.

The public is invited to attend the meeting at 7:30 p.m. in the Palatine Public Library, 500 N. Benton. "The new Illinois energy conservation plan assesses the potential for conservation in Illinois by evaluating the 50 most important measures," Dunwoody said.

Dunwoody has served as energy conservation researcher at the University of Illinois Center for Advanced Computation and associate ecologist for the Illinois Institute of Technology Research Institute. He has degrees in horticulture, agriculture and entomology from the University of Illinois and has studied energy resource management.

James Rapier of Barrington will serve as chairman of the July 28 meeting.

WHEN THE WEEKEND comes to a close, a group of enterprising teens from Maryville Academy in Des Plaines heads for nearby forest preserves and roadsides to collect aluminum cans discarded by drinkers.

J. Ernest Dunwoody

The cleanup project is a combination of environmental concern and fund raising for the group's camping activities, said supervisor Larry Boller. "It's a pretty standard operation," Boller said. Good can-hunting areas abound, he said.

On the Monday after the Fourth of July, the Maryville teens picked up 4,000 aluminum cans. The containers are put into plastic bags and turned in for cash at a Reynolds Aluminum center in Addison.

"We put the money into a fund for camping," Boller said. "We've made about $100 this year. It's a lot of cans."

Boller said the recycling project is a good opportunity to discuss the impact of throw-away habits. "We talk about the effect of the landfill and that when aluminum cans are thrown in they don't disintegrate as fast as steel cans," he said. Steel cans collected by the teens are put in refuse containers. "If the cans were all aluminum, we'd be rich," Boller said.

URBAN SOIL and water conservation will be discussed by Ronald Gebhardt of the Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District at tonight's meeting of the Spring Valley Nature Club. The program will start at 8 p.m. in the Meineke Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way, Schaumburg.

U.S. SEC. of Interior Thomas Kleppe can renew the department's challenge of the proposed Bailly nuclear power plant siting near the Indiana Dunes recreation area, said Tom Eisele of the Lake Michigan Federation. The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission Chairman Marcus Rowden recently rejected Kleppe's informal request to reopen the case. A court challenge or a formal bid to reopen the licensing case are Interior's options, Eisele said. Environmentalists criticize the Bailly site near the dunes for safety, ecological and esthetic reasons.

'Sons' meet Saturday

Suburb homes for low-income families

by KURT BAER

Low-income families will be able to afford apartment homes in the suburbs under a new housing subsidy plan that gets started in northern Cook County Aug. 4.

The Housing Authority of the County of Cook will begin taking applications on that date for housing assistance that will place low-income families in existing suburban apartment buildings. The plan will pay up to 85 per cent of the rent for qualified families.

Participants will have to pay no more than 15 to 25 per cent of their gross income for housing — rent plus utilities. The Cook County housing authority pays the balance directly to the landlord.

Cook County housing authority officials will be accepting applications for rent assistance at 9 a.m. Aug. 4 at the Rand Park Fieldhouse, 2025 Miner St., Des Plaines.

RESIDENTS OF and workers in suburban Cook County (north of Devon Avenue and outside the City of Evanston) whose incomes are at or below the specified maximums are invited to apply.

Applications will be taken, evaluated and housing assistance awarded on a first-come, first-served basis.

Scott Lancelot, field representative for the Cook County housing authority, says there is enough money available to help low-income families pay the rent at 76 apartments across northern Cook County.

The U.S. Dept of Housing and Urban Development, which sponsors the Section 8 housing assistance program, has given the housing authority $8 million to run the plan for five years.

PERSONS WHO participate in the program must find their own apartment at a rent that does not exceed the maximum established by the housing authority.

Landlord participation in the program is voluntary. Apartment owners and managers can contact Cook County housing authority if they are interested in joining the program, or for additional information.

The Section 8 plan has benefits for the low-income family and the landlord as well as the community, Lancelot says. Northern Cook County is the last section of the county to be included in the plan.

"So far it seems to be working pretty well in other parts of Cook County. Most of the applications are being made where the family already lives. But participants are not restricted to any geographic area. They can choose an apartment anywhere they want to go in Cook County where we have jurisdiction," he said.

PERSONS MAY use the subsidy for apartment rent anywhere in Cook County except Chicago, Oak Park, Lansing or Cicero, communities not governed by Cook County housing authority.

For the landlord, Section 8 means a guaranteed rental income, greater stability among tenants and a guaranteed annual rent increase to keep up with fair market values, Lancelot said.

"The rent is guaranteed by contract and for many landlords, this is far more insurance than they have had previously.

"He's also guaranteed an annual increase in rent to the fair market price. We'll absorb the increase, rather than the family, if their income doesn't go up.

"THE LANDLORD also is entitled to special adjustments for something that affects landlords as a class — property tax hikes or utility increases, for example.

"In the event a family breaks the lease, or has to be evicted, we will pay 80 per cent of the rent for two months during the search for another tenant, if the landlord wants to remain in the program."

Though it is the tenant's responsibility to find an apartment and ask the landlord to participate in Section 8, housing authority officials stand ready to explain the plan, Lancelot said.

"The landlord retains all the same prerogatives to rent or not to rent, within the confines of the law, that he would have otherwise. The housing authority doesn't interfere in the tenant-landlord relationship at all, unless we're called in," he says.

FROM THE community's point of view, the program's advantages are "obvious," he says.

"First, there is the immediacy of the program. We're using existing housing and there isn't the need to acquire land, clear it, go through zoning and construction periods that mean a two to three year lag time. The program is for the here and now," Lancelot says.

Secondly, Section 8 program tends to integrate low-income families into the community socially and economically because they are not residents of a stigmatized low-income housing development.

"Rather than have low-income people jammed together in public housing, people are free to go where they wish and live in a safe, decent, sanitary building," Lancelot says.

PERSONS SHOULD bring up-to-date income information as well as details on medical expenses and any unusual expenses for child care or care for a disabled family member when they apply for the program.

Assets other than income also will be calculated in determining eligibility. Either income from outside assets of 10 per cent of the assets' market value over $5,000, whichever is greater, will be counted.

Savings account bank statements, real estate appraisals and lists of stocks and bonds should be supplied at the time of application.

Cook County housing authorities will verify each request for housing assistance with employers, case workers, physicians and others.

LANCELOT SAID the housing authority undoubtedly will receive applications from more than 76 eligible families and will keep a waiting list for persons who cannot be admitted to the program immediately.

The first rental assistance payments probably will be made in the north suburban area sometime in September, he said.

He also said that the tight housing market may make it difficult for low-income persons to find an apartment and landlord that are right for the program.

"Given the apartment vacancy rate of 2 or 3 per cent that we have in most of Cook County, it is hard for someone in the private market to find an apartment," Lancelot said. North suburban Cook County also has above-average income residents, he says, which often means higher apartment rents.

"WE DO KNOW that housing for the Section 8 program exists. But it's going to take some hard work on the part of the tenants to find it," Lancelot says.

Cook County housing authority now has rental assistance contracts with landlords in more than 20 communities, most of them in the southern and western suburbs.

Aug. 4 will be the only day that officials will be in Des Plaines to accept applications. After that date, applications may be filed at the Cook County housing authority's office, 407 S. Dearborn St., Chicago.

Additional information is available from Patricia Jones, field representative for north Cook County, at GR 5-3100, ext. 310 or Alon Jeffrey, housing assistance payments coordinator, at 663-5447.

A few rules to help

Common sense can make for happy apartment life

Living in an apartment can be a pleasant experience if everyone knows the rules and follows them. But if even one tenant is inconsiderate, he can make things fairly miserable for everyone else.

"Apartment rules amount to a common-sense effort to avoid problems that can come up with many people living in the same building, and to solve problems when they arise," explains William D. Sally, vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc.

Since apartment complexes vary, and specific rules may change from building to building, it's a good idea to find out what the rules are when you move into a new building, and then do your best to follow them.

BEFORE YOU move in, check with the management to find out when the apartment will be ready and where and when you can pick up the key. Sometimes, but not always, you can move into the apartment a few days early, but you have to work this out with the manager.

"It's a good idea to check ahead to make sure the party who now lives in the apartment has moved out," Sally noted. "You don't want to arrive at your new place only to find that it hasn't been vacated. A professional manager will let you know about this in advance, but it's still a good idea to call ahead and check if you haven't heard anything."

Find out what entrance you must use to move in furnishings. If the building has an elevator, contact the manager or the official mover for the building to learn when you can reserve it.

"This is important," Sally said. "During peak moving periods, such as May 1 and Oct. 1, the moving traffic can get pretty heavy. Even if you're a do-it-yourself mover, you must reserve elevator time and be sure not to exceed it, or else you'll throw the party behind you off schedule." Also, make sure the furniture you plan to move will fit the elevator and the apartment.

DON'T BE YOUR own decorator. In most cases, your new apartment will be freshly decorated by the time you move in. Most building managers will offer you a choice of light colors, because these are the easiest to paint over.

If you decide to do custom decorating, such as applying dark colors, wallpapers, or other unusual treatments, you'll be expected to restore the apartment to its original condition when you move, or else pay for the restoration.

"Removing wallpaper and painting over a dark surface can be expensive, so we advise against such treatments unless you're willing to pay for the restoration," Sally said.

Garbage disposals need special attention. If you live in an apartment with garbage cans on the back porch, just make sure the lids are on tight. If you live in a building where you have to carry the garbage down the hall, make sure the refuse is tightly wrapped to avoid soiling the hall floor.

IF YOU OWN a washing machine or dryer, better forget about installing them in your apartment. Most building managers won't allow it, because they consume too much water and are a noise nuisance. You're better off using the laundry room in the building.

"By the same token, don't wash anything in your apartment that doesn't belong there," Sally said. "When a tenant smelled gasoline fumes, we investigated and found another tenant washing his motorcycle with gasoline in the bathtub. He and his motorcycle were asked to leave."

Speaking of flammables, don't store any dangerous fluids or chemicals in your apartment or storage locker. Nor should you use the storage locker for anything besides storage of your own goods. Don't be like the man who tried to turn his locker into a meat curing room and created a horrible stench throughout the entire building.

Know where your circuit breaker or fuse box is, and don't overload the circuits. Overloading can cause your lights to go out, your appliances to be damaged, and can lead to fires.

FOR TV SETS, check with the building management about a master antenna which entails a small charge for hookup. Don't put up your own outside antenna without the building manager's permission. Many buildings don't permit individual tenant antennas because they damage the roof.

Before you hang anything on the walls, have the manager tell you what kind of wall fastenings are permitted. This will depend on what kind of walls you have: plaster, drywall, brick, pyrobar, concrete, or whatever. The point is to avoid cracking or damaging the wall.

"Most managers say that if you leave a hole that can be spackled over by the painters, that's OK," the Baird & Warner executive said. "But if more extensive repairs are needed to patch holes and cracks that you create, you'll be held responsible."

Respect your neighbor's privacy. That means observing the building rules as well as common-sense rules for playing the radio, TV, stereo, or musical instruments, and keeping parties quiet.

Get to know who your neighbors are as a matter of security, and never let anyone into the building or your apartment whom you don't know or who doesn't have proper identification.

"Particularly when entering or leaving a building, never hold the interior security door open for someone trying to get in if you don't know that person," Sally said. "Report any suspicious persons to the manager."

Don't do anything illegal or improper in your apartment. Illegal includes such things as raising marijuana, as one tenant did, or holding a hot dog roast in the bathtub, as another family did.

IF YOU HAVE children, teach them the rules and a respect for property. In one case, the manager of an apartment complex found the recreation room refrigerator-freezer full of yellow ice. Investigation revealed that two of the children who lived in the development were using the freezer to relieve themselves. That's hardly good behavior.

Balconies should be used with care. They're great places for sunning, but not for barbecuing because the smoke can be a nuisance to neighbors.

"Be careful, too about putting planters on balconies," Sally said. "Unless the planters are securely fastened, they can fall off and seriously injure someone. Also, balconies shouldn't be used for storage of household goods."

To keep the apartment complex looking its best, don't put signs, posters, beer cans, or tinfoil in the windows.

"Being a good tenant isn't all that difficult," Sally said. "Knowing the rules and following them can make apartment living more pleasant for all."

Joint title of home important

About real estate

by Don G. Campbell

Remember the old definition of ownership possession is nine-tenths of the law?

As far as real estate is concerned, that other one-tenth is what tells the tale

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

I would like to know if the law states that the wife gets the home if her husband should die?

I have a niece, in Pennsylvania, who married a man with five children. Would the home be hers, by law, if anything should happen to her husband? Or would the children come in on it? Would she have any worries? — Mrs H J (Wilmington, Del.)

ANSWER She could have worries coming out her ears if anything should happen to her husband. The whole thing boils down to how the title to the home is recorded. If it's joint tenancy, then she and her husband both hold 100 per cent ownership of the home and if he should die, she continues to own it outright. If your niece's husband owns the house in his own name and then dies, he would open a can of worms like you wouldn't believe! A lot of the potential problems about ownership of the house will be automatically solved if he has drawn up a will — but a discouragingly small percentage of people ever get around to this. And I suspect that if he hasn't given any thought to his house title, he probably doesn't have a will either.

And, if he should die intestate — without a will and with the house in his name, only — then your niece has a real problem. State laws vary widely, but the process gets very, very complicated, particularly if there's a previous wife somewhere in the background.

DEAR MR CAMPBELL:

We now own our home worth approximately $35,000. We owe about $5,000 on the mortgage. We plan to retire in about seven years and are considering buying a fourplex for about $60,000 with our unused GI loan.

We were wondering if you think a fourplex is a good investment, or should we buy a duplex or a triplex first?

We want to put our equity to work for us and plan on renting our home and moving into one of the apartments. — Mr. C A. (Anaheim, Calif.)

ANSWER A curious idea: to "work your way up" with a single family home, then a duplex, then a triplex and then a fourplex.

A fourplex isn't everyone's cup of tea but a lot of people in contemplation of retirement go this route and find it very satisfactory. I don't see any point in trying out a duplex and triplex first — I'd go directly to the fourplex because, in rental units, the more you have operative the more (proportionately) economical it becomes.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

Among the things you frequently discuss is this matter of "points," which I conclude represents the difference in interest rates available and procurable between the existing and new mortgage as applicable. I also note that in most instances, the points are paid by the seller. My question is why?

How, then, do points exist when there is no existing mortgage, but the purchaser must obtain his own mortgage at whatever rate of interest he may negotiate? — Mr. L M. T.

ANSWER: You've got a fair handle on points, but not entirely. Points come into play only when a new mortgage is involved (they don't enter the picture when an old mortgage is being assumed by the new buyer), and are a bonus to the lender to write the mortgage — and two points on a $25,000 mortgage would be $500.

In the case of VA and FHA mortgages, the seller must pay these points (that's the way the law is written), but on a conventional mortgage the buyer pays them. The whole thing began when there was a two or three percentage spread between the maximum interest rate on VA and FHA and the interest rate that the lender could get by confining himself to conventional mortgages But then, when the gap narrowed, the points had become a part of the system.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

What can a landlord do when he suspects that two of his tenants who share one of his apartments are engaged in immoral activities? I'm referring to two young men who seemed very nice when they first rented from me. — Mrs. W. B. (San Diego, Calif.)

ANSWER: Unless there's disturbing the peace involved, or outright illegality, you're on sticky ground in terms of privacy.

Federal building panel starts work

A new institute has been organized to encourage the introduction of new, cost-saving technology in the building industry through promotion of broadly acceptable building standards and building product performance criteria.

The National Institute of building Sciences had begun operation following nomination by the President and confirmation by the Senate of its Board of Directors. The Board is composed of people from a broad spectrum of interest groups, including the building industry, building product manufacturers, labor, government agencies, trade associations and consumer groups Authorization for the organization, and for start-up funding was provided in the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974.

The Institute — or NIBS — will coordinate the promulgation of performance standards and the testing of building materials now being done by numerous private and public groups. It also will assemble, store and disseminate data on building technology. Federal agencies may contract with it for work on specific projects. NIBS will be a nongovernment, non-profit organization that is expected to become self-sufficient by charging fees for the services it will provide.

DuPage Co. 'hot' growth to continue

DuPage County, which has been one of the "hottest" areas for industrial development in the country during the 1970s, will gain more companies and an even greater share of the Chicagoland market during the 1980s.

"DuPage County is perfectly situated and we feel that its industrial growth will match any of the glamour areas in the Sun Belt southern states during the next decade," said Donald L. Shoemaker, vice president and resident manager of Coldwell Banker Commercial Brokerage Company.

DuPage County already has 10 per cent of Chicagoland's industrial real estate, according to a Coldwell Banker survey of 405 million square feet of industrial real estate from the Wisconsin to Indiana lines.

"Industry migration from Chicago to the western suburbs is on the rise," according to Shoemaker. "Firms looking for new plant and office sites are finding the right factors in Oak Brook, Bensenville, Itasca, West Chicago and other DuPage communities.

"Companies moving here look for well-designed industrial parks, one-story buildings, security, services, favorable taxes and room to grow," Shoemaker said.

The 39.5 million industrial square feet of DuPage County advanced by 4.2 million during 1974 and early 1975. Half of this property is used for manufacturing, 18 per cent for warehousing and the rest for transportation and business services.

"Obviously DuPage's proximity to O'Hare Airport and the expressway system has contributed to the area's rapid growth," Shoemaker notes, "and these factors will continue to be important in the years ahead. DuPage not only is gaining companies that are moving out of Chicago, but those that are beginning Chicagoland operations for the first time. DuPage is ideal for distribution centers as well as manufacturing units."

The average DuPage County industrial building is smaller than Cook County's at 50,333 square feet compared to 62,169 square feet. It also gives more breathing room with a building-to-land ratio of 32 per cent in DuPage compared to 50 per cent in Cook.

Rapidly-expanding industry has produced more square footage per capita and more jobs per capita than other metro-area counties.

According to the Coldwell Banker survey, Bensenville gained the most industrial square footage between January 1974 and June 1975.

Industrial park gains new firm

Richard R. LaReno, President of the I.D.E.A. subsidiary of Arthur Rubloff & Co., Chicago, has completed negotiations for the sale of a 144,000 sq. ft. lot at Schaumburg Industrial Park, Schaumburg.

Industrial Precision Products Company, a manufacturing firm located at 3039 W. Carroll Ave., Chicago, acquired the property from State Mutual Life Assurance Company of America, owners of the industrial park.

The property will be the site of a 55,000 sq. ft. structure, which Industrial Precisions is planning for early construction. Approximate sale price was $130,000.

A few facts to consider when buying an old home

Most older homes on the market are in first-class condition and can be occupied immediately with little or no repair. But some buyers are particularly attracted to the idea of buying an older home that needs some work.

"Incentives vary," said Robert G. Walters, senior vice president of Baird & Warner, Inc. and general manager of its residential sales operation. "The home that is somewhat run-down can be a really good value because of its size, good location, and generally lower price."

But value is not the only attraction, noted Walters.

"Some couples simply want to invest some of their own effort and personality into a house so it becomes more a part of them."

Depending on the time and talent they have to invest, it is possible that a remodeled older home can be a really smart idea for some families.

But Walters cautioned that the costs of remodeling can be far greater than the buyer anticipates. At first the couple figures that only a few thousand dollars worth of improvements will make it better than new. But the result may be that the remodeled home will cost more than a well-built older home that doesn't need remodeling, even though the second home has a higher selling price.

Therefore, if you are one of those couples turned on to the idea of putting your own mark on a house, Walters has these suggestions.

The first is that the house should be structurally suitable for what you have in mind. You may have visions of tearing out walls here, putting windows there, rearranging plumbing, and so forth. Before you start anything, hire an architect or a consulting engineer to review your plans and determine if the house is suitable.

You may discover that supporting beams aren't in the right place for the alterations you plan, or that additional supports are necessary. This may make your plans impossible or they may increase the cost.

Second, get an idea of the cost of the remodeling you have in mind. Even if your plans call for nothing more than replacing the furnace, redoing all the plumbing, including putting in new bathrooms, and upgrading the electrical circuits, you could be facing major costs.

You may be able to do some of the work yourself and save up to 50 per cent of the cost. But remodeling work can be hard and time-consuming, and mistakes can add to the cost.

Third, be prepared for surprises. "When you start tearing apart and remodeling very old buildings, you never know what to expect," Walters said. "It's not uncommon to plan on replacing just a portion of the plumbing, and then find that you have to replace it all. You may also discover structural defects when you begin tearing down walls; these have to be corrected."

Finally, don't expect the total cost of remodeling to add exactly the same amount to the price of your house when you sell it. There are very few remodeling jobs that pay off dollar for dollar. Most of them pay off only in satisfaction for the owner. The prospective buyer may not be willing to pay for the premium that it costs you to remodel.

If you accept all of these cautions and still want to go ahead with remodeling, then contact a Realtor and tell him what you have in mind. He may be able to find a house at a relatively low price that will enable you to remodel to your heart's content, the Baird & Warner executive said.

Mortgage loan failures reach 0.95% in May

Mortgage loan delinquencies at the nation's savings and loan associations reached an estimated 0.95 per cent during May, 1976, the United States League of Savings Associations has reported.

The May tally of 0.95 per cent exactly matches the delinquency figure for March and April.

The League bases its mortgage loan delinquency survey on reports from 894 savings associations and cooperative banks which represent slightly more than 51 per cent of the total assets of the business. For League survey purposes a loan is considered delinquent if payment has not been made within 60 days of the payment date stipulated in the mortgage note. The League survey includes all types of loans — conventional, FHA and VA.

The 0.95 per cent figures differed only slightly from March, April and May of 1975 when delinquencies registered 0.94, 0.92 and 0.97 per cent respectively.

Real estate field jammed with jargon

Most real estate brokers would like to simplify the real estate language that makes every transaction sound like an attempt to rewrite the Magna Carta

'There are details enough for the seller and buyer to keep up with without having to run to a dictionary to dent and sales manager of the Arling-Howard Kagay, assistant vice presi-interpret every third word," observed ton Heights office, 220 E Northwest Highway, and Charles Moser, assistant vice president and sales manager of the Mount Prospect office, 21 E Prospect Ave., of Baird & Warner, Inc

Unfortunately the two said the jargon of real estate defies simplification For example, when you reduce the amount of your mortgage loan through monthly payments, you are amortizing the mortgage Literally you are slowly killing it But what word can you substitute for 'amortization'?

And that amount that is not interest but principal is part of your 'equity" in the home which is the money value of the property in excess of any claims against it like the unpaid mortgage balance It is your ownership right including the cash downpayment, plus the principal amount of your monthly payment, plus the appreciation if the home increases in worth

For instance say you buy a $40 000 house with a cash downpayment of $6 000 and in five years you reduce the principal amount of the loan by $1 500 through your monthly payments Suppose you now sell your house for $15 000 That $5 000 "profit" is also equity Your total equity in the $35 000 house includes your $6,000 downpayment $1 500 of principal, and $5 000 of appreciation a total of $12 500

But the experts haven t got a simple substitute for equity

That applies to a number of other key terms that the Baird & Warner executives said you should try to familiarize yourself with

ABSTRACT A summary of the history of the legal title to a piece of property (See Title Insurance)

AMORTIZATION This is a provision for gradually paying off the principal amount of a loan, such as a mortgage loan, at the time of each payment of interest For example, as each payment toward principal is made the mortgage amount is reduced or amortized by that amount

APPRAISAL An evaluation of the property to determine its value An appraisal is concerned chiefly with market value — what the house would sell for on the open market

CERTIFICATE OF TITLE This is the paper that signifies ownership of a house It contains a legal description of the house and its land

CLOSING COSTS Often referred to as settlement costs these costs are in addition to the price of the house They include the mortgage service charges, title search and insurance, and transfer of ownership charges The Baird & Warner manager cautions "Be sure that your sales contract clearly states who will pay each of these costs — buyer or seller "

CLOSING DAY This is the date on which the title or property passes from the seller to the buyer and/or the date on which the borrower signs the mortgage

CONDOMINIUM Terms provide for individual ownership of a dwelling unit and an undivided interest in the common areas and facilities which serve the multi unit project

COOPERATIVE OR CO-OP This form of ownership often is confused with a condominium, but there is a decided difference The co-op is an apartment building or a group of dwellings owned by residents and operated for their benefit by their elected board of directors The resident occupies but does not own his unit Rather, he owns a share of stock in the total enterprise

DEPRECIATION A decline in the value of a house as the result of wear and tear, adverse changes in the neighborhood and its patterns, or for any other reason

EARNEST MONEY This is the deposit money given to the seller by the potential buyer to show that he is serious about buying the house If the transaction goes through, the earnest money is applied against the downpayment If it does not go through the money may be forfeited unless specifics have been spelled out in the purchase contract

EASEMENT RIGHTS A right of way granted to a person or company authorizing access to or over the owner's land Utility companies (electric, natural gas telephone, water) often have easement rights across your property

EQUITY A buyer's initial and increasing ownership rights in a house as he pays off the mortgage When the mortgage is fully paid off the buyer has 100 per cent equity in the house

ESCROW FUNDS Money, or papers representing financial transactions, which are given to a third party (usually a Realtor or lawyer) to hold until all conditions in a contract are fulfilled

FHA APPROVAL This is a misnomer 'There is no such thing as an FHA approved house,' it was noted 'If a builder advertises FHA approval,' he is misleading you at worst and, at best badly stating his belief that his house will meet the standards for an FHA insured mortgage "

HAZARD INSURANCE Insurance to protect against damage caused to property by fire windstorm and other common hazards Aside from its importance to homeowners such insurance always is a stipulation by the mortgagee (lender) to protect his investment

HOME MORTGAGE LOAN A special kind of long term loan for buying a house There are three main kinds of mortgage financing in the United States for single-family homes, townhomes, or condominiums — the conventional mortgage the VA (Veterans Administration), sometimes called the GI mortgage and the FHA (Federal Housing Administration) insured loan

MORTGAGE COMMITMENT This is the written notice which you will receive from the savings and loan association, bank, or other lender, saying that it will advance you the mortgage funds in a specified amount to enable you to buy the house

MORTGAGE DISCOUNT "POINTS' Discounts (points) are a one-time charge assessed by a lending institution to increase the yield from the mortgage loan to a competitive position with the yield from other types of investments It is important to note here that such points are always paid by the seller at the time of closing

MORTGAGE INSURANCE PREMIUM The payment made by a borrower to the lender for transmittal to HUD FHA to help defray the cost of the FHA mortgage insurance program and to provide a reserve fund to protect lenders against loss in insured mortgage transactions In the case of an FHA insured mortgage this represents an annual rate of one-half of one per cent paid by the mortgagor (borrower) on a monthly basis to FHA

MORTGAGOR The homeowner who is obligated to repay a mortgage loan on a property he has purchased

MORTGAGEE The bank, savings & loan association or other lender who loans the money to the mortgagor

PREPAID EXPENSES The initial deposit at time of closing, for taxes and hazard insurance and the subsequent monthly deposits made to the lender for that purpose

TITLE The evidence of a person s legal right to possession of property, normally in the form of a deed

Lease, not law requires rent in advance

Mr. Meltzer on real estate

by Bernard Meltzer

From the mouths of babes often comes wisdom. Everybody assumes that by law a tenant is required to pay rent in advance — that is, at the beginning of the month. An inquiry from a 13-year-old boy has given us an opportunity to explain that there is no such law.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I am only 13 years old, so please don't discard my letter because of my age. I have asked my priest, my coach and even my teacher — but they don't know the answer. They suggested I write to you

My father is a carpenter. He gets paid when he finishes a job, and sometimes even then he must wait a long time before he is paid.

My friend's father is a television repairman. He works the same way. He gets paid after he does the work.

But there is one person who is special . He is the landlord. He gets his rent in advance. He collected our rent before we even moved in.

I asked the landlord what entitled him to be paid in advance He answered, "It's the law." Why is the law so one-sided as to give preference to landlords over carpenters and television repairmen? — DADDY'S FIRST WITH ME.

First, let me tell you the landlord was telling a fib. There is no law which says you must pay rent in advance. In fact, tell the landlord that under English Common Law, if nothing is said about when rent is to be paid, it is paid at the end of the month. This would still be the case for every tenant, were it not for the following:

The lease your parents signed provided that rent be paid at the beginning of the month, in advance. In fact, every lease I know of, whether oral or written is like that. It provides that the rent is due at the beginning of the month. Here's what this means:

Because both parties to the lease have voluntarily agreed to pay the rent in advance, the rent is due in advance. If it were not for this, then the English Common Law doctrine would apply The rent would be due at the end of the month.

If you could change things and find a landlord who was willing to waive the requirement, then your father could pay the rent at the end of the month. However, I don't know of any landlord who would agree.

Now I hope you understand that landlords are not special, and that there is no law which says your rent must be paid in advance.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I think we are about ready to make some investments where we can take a chance. That's my opinion. My wife thinks we are not ready. I would be interested in your opinion.

For the past 10 years all the extra money has gone into reducing the mortgage. It is now down to a $12,000 balance. The property is worth about $45,000.

Our savings amount is about $5,000. Although I earn in the neighborhood of $22,000 a year, three growing children mean that we are able to save only around $2,500 a year.

I am 48 years old and my wife is 44 — ARE WE READY?

No, you are not ready to make investments entailing risk. Your security umbrella, mainly your savings, is not large enough. Here are guidelines showing how much savings are needed before risk investment is undertaken:

If the breadwinner is 30 years old or less, the minimum savings account should equal at least three months income. Thirty-one to 39 needs a minimum of four months income. Beyond 40, the savings account should be equal to at least six months income. If you are in your 50s, at least nine months income is necessary — preferably one year.

Until a family has savings based on the above, it is not ready for any investment which entails risk.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My case is most unusual. It sounds as if it has been lifted from an old Keystone Kops comedy, but I can assure you it is true. Here's what happened.

We hired a painter to paint our house. The crew he sent out misread the address and started working on my neighbor's house.

When my neighbor returned home that evening, he found two sides of his house painted a hideous yellow. Naturally, he took off after the painter He, in turn, disappeared and has not been heard from since

My neighbor wants me to pay for finishing the job with the right color and clean up the mess. That will cost $800. My neighbor insists that I am responsible because the painter is mine. However I did not tell him to paint my neighbor's house.

Am I responsible for the painter's mistake? — MUST I PAY?

I have good news for you. You are not responsible. You engaged the painter as an independent contractor. Under such an arrangement, you are not responsible for his mistake.

On the other hand, if the painter had been hired by you as an employe, then you would be responsible. For example, if you had hired him to do the house under your supervision and you were paying him by the hour, then your neighbor could have demanded that you make good on the painter's mistakes.

Salesman effort gets homebuyers

To do-it-yourself home-sellers who think that a real estate salesperson doesn't do much to earn a commission, the following may come as a surprise.

According to Baird & Warner, Inc , Chicago area real estate company, a competent salesperson will produce two to three times as many home buyers as any other type of promotional activity.

In other words, a salesman who is active in his profession and community and who has cultivated good relationships with former clients and associates will generate three buyers for every one he can attract by a sign on the property or by running a classified or display ad

And for every two buyers produced by advertising, open houses, office calls, publicity, and other promotions, three are created by a salesman's circulation and activity

This information is contained in an analysis of data taken by Baird & Warner, Inc , from its 31 sales offices serving the Chicago metropolitan area

The company asks both the seller and the buyer in each transaction what attracted him to the property or the company. Each response is recorded by the company's computer which produces an annual "Sources of Business" report

For 1975 it showed that 39 19 per cent of the buyers involved in the company's 4,070 residential transactions came to Baird & Warner to find a home because they are former clients, personal friends of a salesperson (and frequently also a former client), or consulted Baird & Warner on the basis of a referral by a former client or friend

That represents 1,595 buyers. Another 21.61 per cent, or 880 buyers, were referred largely by salesmen in other Baird & Warner offices, by Baird & Warner's Real Estate Service for Employee Transfers (RESET), by out of town brokers through their national association ICR (Inter Community Relocation), by the company's main office and by other members of the staff.

"We think this illustrates dramatically that attentive and responsible conduct is the key to success in real estate sales," observed Robert G. Walters, senior vice president and general manager of the company's residential sales division. "Our performance is measured by selling homes, and last year we sold about 2,500 homes for our clients to people we worked with before, knew personally, or were referred to us by channels outside of advertising and other promotional activity."

Walters said that the analysis reconfirms that one of the strong reasons for a seller to work with a real estate company with a large staff of active and experienced professionals is the supply of potential buyers available to the salesperson because of his widespread contacts.

"This data shows that personal contact is a major attribute in real estate and knowing people ranks a close second to knowing property," Walters said

Refinanced mortgage can bring funds for other uses

Refinancing your home mortgage may be a good way to obtain funds at relatively low cost for a good purpose, such as remodeling your house, paying for a child's education, or even making an investment.

John L. Domeier, chairman and president of GreatAmerican Federal Savings and Loan Association said refinancing pays off your original mortgage and gives you additional funds based on the value of your property. You'll probably pay a higher interest rate on refinancing than on the original mortgage, because rates have gone up in recent years. But the interest will generally be less than what you'd pay on an unsecured loan.

For instance, let's say you need $16,000 to pay for a child's four-year college education. If you refinanced your mortgage to get the funds, you'd pay at current interest rates of 8½ to 9 per cent. If you borrowed the money through a separate loan, chances are you'd pay 12 per cent or more.

In either case, you can deduct interest payments from income when you calculate your income taxes, so your net cost for interest should be less than the stated amount. What the net cost will be depends on your tax bracket.

Because of the rapid appreciation in real estate values, you may be able to get more out of refinancing than you obtained on your original mortgage loan. But remember that you still owe on the unpaid amount of your original loan.

An example may make this clear. Say you bought your house in 1965 for $40,000 and obtained an 80 per cent mortgage of $32,000. Since then you've paid off $8,000 of the loan, leaving a balance of $24,000 you still owe. Your home could easily be worth $60,000 today. If you obtained a 70 per cent mortgage today, that means you could borrow $42,000. In effect, you have borrowed an additional $18,000 — $24,000 that you still owe on the house, plus the $18,000 that adds up to $42,000.

You don't have to refinance up to 70 per cent of the value of your house. You can select any figure up to that, as long as the value of the house will support the loan.

Whether you can refinance your home depends on several additional factors, Domeier said.

First, the lender will want to know how you'll use the money. It has to be for a good, not a frivolous, purpose.

"A good purpose normally includes remodeling or putting a room addition on your house, financing a college education, paying for a wedding, consolidating debts, making an investment in blue-chip stocks or bonds, or even starting a business with a good promise of success," Domeier said.

Second, the lender will want to make sure you can swing the payments for the re-financed loan. If you currently have a 6 per cent loan for 20 years for $20,000, your monthly payments are $143.29. If you re-finance to obtain $30,000 at 9 per cent for 20 years, your monthly payments will be $269.92. That's quite an increase.

Third, besides wanting to know if you can afford the higher payments, the lender will want to know about your credit standing. This includes the number and amount of present debts and how faithful you've been in meeting your mortgag and installment payments.

Finally, there are costs involved in refinancing. Your present mortgage may involve a pre-payment penalty or other fee if you refinance. Also, whether you refinance with your present lending institution or another one, you'll have to pay fees for a new mortgage. GreatAmerican Federal charges 1 to 1½ per cent of the loan amount and there will be $100 to $200 for a title bill; these can come out of the loan proceeds, so you don't pay anything out of your pocket. You may be able to borrow up to 70 per cent of the appraised value of your home for as many as 29 years.

Mall starts phase 2 of block plan

Downtown Des Plaines' $12-million project, Superblock, went into its se-project, Superblock, went into its second phase, recently with the ground breaking of the three-story Des Plaines Mall.

The 185,000-square foot enclosed Mall, which will house 50 stores, a restaurant and several snack shops now available for leasing, is adjacent and connected on the three lower levels to the recently topped out 10-story First National Bank Building. The entire project covers 365,000-square feet.

Spiegler's Department Store, a clothing and general merchandise retailer based in Des Plaines since 1890, will be the Mall's anchor store. Spiegler's will occupy 22,000-square feet on three levels.

Des Plaines Mall is a joint venture of J.R. Gottlieb & Co., Chicago, and Erikson & Stevens, Inc., a Des Plaines architectural firm. Construction lender is Northwest Federal Savings & Loan Association; permanent financing was arranged by Salk, Ward & Salk, Chicago mortgage bankers; participants in the permanent loan are Northwest Federal Saving & Loan, and First Federal Savings & Loan of Des Plaines.

Swimmers still perfect

MONTREAL (UPI) — Her name is Nadia Comaneci, the 14-year-old daughter of a poor machinist from Romania, and these Olympics are hers, as surely as others have belonged to Jesse Owens and Mark Spitz.

She's the only gymnast in Olympic history who can be called "perfect" without exaggeration.

While the men swimmers from the United States were winning two more gold medals and setting yet another world record, and while the U. S. basketball team survived another threat to reach the semifinals, Comaneci rewrote Olympic history Wednesday with an incredible and awesome show of gymnastics wizardry.

Twice the 88-pound sprite of a girl earned perfect 10.0 scores from the judges, setting off tumultuous displays of cheering and screaming from a sellout crowd of 16,000 in the historic old Montreal Forum.

They were her fourth and fifth perfect routines of the games.

Comaneci won the title in the gymnastics all-around competition with 79.275 of a possible 80 points, a record, and became the youngest gold medal winner ever in the Olympics.

She is also ahead in the race for two more gold medals Thursday when competition will be completed on individual pieces of apparatus, and is a close third in the two others. She could possibly win all four, for a total of five, and that would be another record because only one woman, Holland's great track star Fanny Blankers-Koen in 1948 at London, ever has won as many as four gold medals in one Olympics.

Already, United States and Romanian gymnastics officials are talking about a tour by Comaneci and her teammates in the U. S. later this year. Such a tour was taken last year by a Russian troupe featuring Olga Korbut and drew sellouts everyone including Madison Square Garden in New York.

In basketball, the U. S. rallied from a four-point halftime deficit to crush Yugoslavia 112-93 for its third straight victory and assure itself a semi-final berth in the bid for the gold medal it lost for the only time in 1972. All-Americans Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame and Scott May of Indiana had 27 and 26 points, respectively.

The United States men swimmers, meanwhile, were running their string of gold medal victories to seven — although for once, one of them was not achieved in record time.

Matt Vogel, a sophomore at the University of Tennessee, paced a 1-2-3 sweep — the third for the U. S. men — in the 100-meter butterfly, winning in 54.35 seconds. Joe Bottom was second and Gary Hall, who carried the flag in last Saturday's opening ceremony, third. The time was 8-100ths of a second off the world record, the last one still held by Spitz.

An 800-meter freestyle relay team of Mike Bruner, Steve Furniss, John Naber and Jim Montgomery, won in 7:23.22, knocking more than seven seconds off the record that had been established by a makeshift U.S. relay team in the semi-finals earlier Wednesday.

Hall, a silver medalist in both the 1968 and 1972 Olympics, called the bronze this time his "biggest thrill" because it was his final race. His 18-month old son, Gary Jr., at his side waving an American flag, Hall said, "When I saw we swept, I almost came to tears."

"I've been in the Olympics before, but I never swam a race where the guys were pulling for each other as we were tonight."

The U. S. men think they can win all 13 golds, and they will be favored in all but one of the remaining six. The one they are not expected to win is the 400-meter individual medley next Sunday.

Lanny Bassham of Bedford, Tex., became the second American to win in shooting, winning the small bore rifle three positions, but then he almost refused to accept the gold medal. He thought Margaret Murdock of Topeka, Kans., who finished second with the same score he had, should also have been awarded a gold medal.

The rules say that in such a case the winner is whoever had the highest score in the last round. Murdock became the first woman ever to get an Olympic shooting medal, but Bassham called the rule that deprived her of gold "arbitrary rubbish."

"There should have been two gold medals this time," the Texan said.

Two American boxers also won second round bouts Wednesday night. Featherweight Davey Lee Armstrong of Puyallup, Wash., the 1975 Pan-American Games champion, decisioned Anatoly Volkov of the USSR, and lightweight Howard Davis of Glen Cove, N. Y., came off the floor following a first round knockdown to decidion Yukio Segawa of Japan.

Wednesday's victories in swimming and shooting brought the American's total of gold medals to 10 and the overall medal count to 22 with eight silver and four bronze.

East Germany, which had its string of women's swimming victories snapped by Russian Marina Koshevaia (a world record 2:33.35 in the 200 breaststroke), had seven golds and a total of 16. The Soviets had five golds and a total of 13.

American featherweight Davey Lee Armstrong took care of perhaps his toughest Olympic opponent and old nemesis, former Soviet Union champion Anatoly Volkov, in his first fight Wednesday night and lightweight teammate Howard Davis survived a first-round knockdown to gain a unanimous decision over Japan's Yukio Segawa.

Vehe riding road to gold in 1980

There's a calendar hanging in the Logan kitchen that never seems to have enough space to make notations. Paging through it will reveal that plans have been made several months in advance.

Such an events calendar is fairly commonplace in American homes. But do you know anybody who has marked a calendar for as far ahead as 1980?

I met such a long-range planner this week via the telephone. His name is Bob Vehe.

Bob Vehe

He put his hometown, Mount Prospect, on the world map briefly this week by competing in the Olympic games in Montreal.

The 22-year-old former Prospect High School graduate placed 15th out of a field of 31 in the 1,000-meter sprints Tuesday.

Being better than over half the cyclists entered from around the world is an accomplishment in itself. But it didn't mean too much to Bob, who has entertained a lifelong dream of winning the gold medal.

That's where the calendar comes in. It's not on his kitchen wall; it exists inside his competition-hardened body: "Moscow—1980." He'll be trying for gold again.

"I decided a long time ago that I would," said Vehe, who seemed anxious for the next Olympic games so he could erase his acknowledged so-so effort with a medal. "I kind of made it up in my mind that I would first make the Olympic team and then the next time win.

"When I realized how good I was going (speed-wise), my goal was to place in the top 10," said Bob.

His lifetime best had been a 1:07.2 in Mexico as a member of the U.S. team in the Pan-American games. The high altitude had assisted him there.

About five days before his Olympic test, Bob pedaled to a 1:08.3 despite less than ideal conditions.

"I was hoping to be in the high sevens," said Vehe of his Olympic goal. "All systems were go for finishing in the sevens. Usually with competition you always expect to go a second or so faster."

But things didn't go according to plan for this young athlete. "About halfway through, I died."

Unfortunately, he pushed himself to the pain barrier too early, leaving him dead tired. It showed in his time.

Vehe was clocked at 1:09.057. The gold medal winner — Klaus-Jurgen Grunke of East Germany — had a 1:06.927.

In barely over a minute — the length of a TV commercial — came the climax of years and years of intense training. Suddenly, his part in the Olympics was history.

Bob's moment in the Olympic spotlight had been a frustrating one. Still, his will to eventually excel didn't waver.

Next month he'll be trying to win a national title. This winter will find him back in a daily workout routine that he likes a lot — running to a park, skiing to the ice rink (he's a speed skater), skiing and running back home.

"Later (in the day) I go out skiing again," said this special breed of athlete. Sounds tiring, doesn't it?

Starting in February he'll begin "putting in long miles" on his bike. Bob will eventually be pedaling 350 miles a week.

And so it will go for four more long years. Again, it will all come down to a few ticks of a clock in Moscow. That is, if the games are held again. Politics could destroy the Olympics.

"I think they're (athletes) pretty fed up with the politics that has come into the games," said Bob. "The whole thing of standings and what countries are getting what medals . . . It just shouldn't be that way.

"It should be just individuals. I think people would like to know who's the best in each event, not what country gets the most medals or what country has the superior athletes."

Even though he says he has failed to attain his goal this year, Bob hasn't given up in his quest to improve.

It's too bad those who run the Olympic games can't say the same.

Nadia: 10, 10, 10, 10, 10...

MONTREAL — Dark-eyed Romanian Nadia Comaneci radiates with the brilliance of a Fourth of July firecracker on gymnastics equipment, but beneath the warmth are nerves of ice and character of steel.

The 14-year-old pig-tailed pixie, who took the Olympic gold in the all-around gymnastics competition Wednesday, says the only time she ever is nervous is when she fights with her brother.

"I'm not nervous now," Comaneci said when asked whether the international press digging for the intimate details of her life made her edgy.

Nor would she admit to feeling any fear or self-doubt when she went through two perfect (10.0) performances and two more nearly perfect events for the first of five gold medals she is trying to win. She has recorded five perfect scores so far.

She showed no fear on the floor of the Forum, jammed by a standing-room-only crowd drawn by Comaneci's unprecedented perfect routines on the team competitions.

When she and the other 35 competitors walked into the arena, she took off her warmup suit and was waiting to warm up while others were unzipping their jackets. Before her final event, floor exercise, she waited impatiently for the last warmup to end and the event to get under way.

"I knew if I worked hard I would win," she said.

Although two Soviet gymnasts finished second and third ahead of her own teammate, Teodora Ungureanu, whom Comaneci had called her toughest competition, the flippant champion refused to accord the Russians any admiration.

"I do not appreciate Soviet gymnastics," she said. "I'm not in a position to appreciate Russian gymnastics during the Olympics."

Nadia was reminded that thousands of young girls have begun gymnastics training since watching the multiple gold-winning performances at Munich in 1972 of Russian Olga Korbut, who failed to place in Montreal.

"Were you similarly inspired by Olga?" Comaneci was asked.

"No, I was not inspired by her," she replied.

In two prior meetings with reporters Comaneci had exhibited little emotion — a stark contrast with her hot-blooded free-exercise routine, but after winning the gold, she let some emotion show through. She spoke loudly and forcefully into the microphone — giggling occasionally and flashing her large brown eyes.

She denies, however, there would be any celebrating of her victory. She also said the new adulation of a worldwide television audience has not affected her.

"I feel just as I felt before; I feel pretty good normally — nothing special," she said. "I won't do anything special tonight."

Dantley, May lead U.S. cagers

MONTREAL (UPI) — Adrian Dantley and Scott May combined for 53 points Wednesday night to lead the United States basketball team in a second-half surge for a 112-93 victory over Yugoslavia to become the first team to claim a semifinal berth in the Olympic competition.

The Americans overcame severe first-half foul problems at the center position and a four-point intermission deficit as Dantley and May attacked the second half with fire in their hearts and the gold medal in their eyes.

The United States ran off four straight baskets at the start of the second half to take a 59-55 lead, and the lead changed hands twice before May hit a pair of free throws with 15:38 left to give the Americans the lead for good at 64-63.

Those free throws began a string of eight straight points as Dantley added a basket, and May another to push the lead to seven. The Yugoslavians pulled back to within one at 76-75 over the next four minutes with Drazen Dalipagic and Mirza Delibasic each scoring three baskets.

But May scored two baskets as the Americans outscored the Yugoslavians, 8-2, over the next two minutes to take a seven-point lead, and the Yugoslavians could get no closer.

Dantley topped all scorers with 27 points, 15 in the second half, with May adding 26, of which all but 10 came after the intermission.

The Americans are now the only unbeaten team in the B sector of Olympic competition with a 3-0 record, while Yugoslavia and Italy, which lost by 20 points to the United States in the opening round, are in second place with 2-1 marks.

The Americans have only one game remaining against Czechoslovakia, and even a loss there could not deprive the United States of the top seed in the B grouping because of its triumph over Yugoslavia and Italy.

Dalipagic and Delibasic scored 20 points each to lead the Yugoslavians, while Kresimir Cosic, one of several former American collegians playing against the United States in the Olympics, added 10. Cosic attended Brigham Young University in the early 1970s.

Starting American center Mitch Kupchak was whistled for three fouls before the game was 10 minutes old and was replaced by Tom Lagarde, who picked up four fouls in a span of five minutes. Lagarde left in favor of Phil Hubbard, who had his fourth foul by 16:10 of the first half.

His center ranks depleted, Coach Dean Smith dipped into his wealth of forwards and inserted Kenny Carr at the pivot, and Carr was whistled for three fouls in the final four minutes of the first half.

But Carr played most of the way at center in the second half and finished with 15 points. Kupchak returned with four minutes remaining to score three points down the stretch as the Americans built their 19-point winning margin. Lagarde returned for a brief span midway through the second half but fouled out with 10:50 left.

Russians stay unbeaten; Yanks on collison course

MONTREAL (UPI) — Center Vladimir Tkachenko scored 22 points to lead a balanced Russian attack as the defending Olympic gold medalists overwhelmed Canada, 108-85, Wednesday night in the showdown of the two unbeaten teams in the A sector.

The Russians are now 3-0 and are virtually assured the top seed in the A sector when the semifinal round of the tournament begins Sunday. The Russians have two games remaining, against Japan and Cuba, but the two teams have a combined record of one win in six games.

The United States, also 3-0 in the B sector, and the Russians appear likely foes for the rematch of the 1972 basketball final thriller.

The Russians took a 20-point lead at halftime, 51-31, in exploiting the absence of the dominating Canadian center. Canada lost its regular center, 6-foot-10 Ken McKenzie, in an exhibition game against the United States four days before the start of the tournament.

The lead ballooned to as many as 34 points as the Canadians got into foul trouble with Soviet coach Vladimir Kondrashin emptying his bench. All 12 Russians scored with Vladimir Arzamaskov adding 16 points followed by Alexander Belov's 15 and Alexandr Salnikov's 14.

Derek Sawkey scored 18 points for Canada with Bill Robinson and Lars Hansen contributing 10 each. Hansen, normally a forward, played center in McKenzie's absence.

SWEEPING MEDALS for the second time in the Olympic games are these exuberant U.S. swimmers Tuesday at Montreal. Matt Vogel, center, of Fort Wayne, Ind., took the gold with Joe Bottom, left, the silver and Gary Hall the bronze. The United States men swimmers have won seven straight gold medals and 15 out of 21.

Sox sweep pair

by BOB GALLAS

So, who is 'The Bird?'

The White Sox won't face Detroit pitching sensation Mark "The Bird" Fidrych in their current four-game series with the Tigers, but Sox pitchers Wednesday put on an exhibition even "The Bird" himself would have trouble topping.

Rookie Chris Knapp and veteran Bart Johnson, giving up but one run between them, pitched the Sox to a doubleheader sweep Wednesday night at Comiskey Park as the Sox topped the Tigers, 4-1 and 3-0.

After absorbing a 14-9 shelling from the Yankees the night before, Sox manager Paul Richards was a little worried over who he'd use in long relief should his hurlers fall again Wednesday.

"I thought I'd have to ask for volunteers," the Sox mentor grinned. Richards needn't have worried as he got distance jobs from both of his pitchers who gave him and the tired Sox bullpen plenty to smile about.

Knapp notched his first major league win by a 4-1 margin in the first game, giving up just four hits. Johnson shut out the Tigers on just six hits, facing the minimum number of batters in six of nine innings en route to his ninth win against eight losses.

Knapp allowed seven walks in the opener, a faux pas Richards didn't seem concerned with Knapp hasn't had much work since joining the Sox a month ago. His last complete game was also a month ago, a no-hitter for the Sox Iowa farm club against Evansville.

"That fastball of his had a tendency to fool both the hitters and the umpires too," Richards said, explaining he thought the low pitches of Knapp that were called balls by home plate umpire Al Clark were often strikes.

Richards said Knapp could be headed for a spot in the starting rotation with another performance or two like Wednesday. But Knapp isn't convinced.

"I think I have a lot more work to do before that," Knapp said, referring to a regular starting job.

The 22-year-old from Benton Harbor, Mich. has only one year of professional experience, last year at Appleton, Wisc. and a brief stint with the White Sox late last season.

In the first game, the Sox got single runs in the first, third, fourth and fifth innings. All came off of Tiger starter Vern Ruhle, (5-7), who worked the first five innings and took the loss.

Lamar Johnson drove in two of the runs with a sacrifice fly in the first and a third inning single.

The only run off Knapp came in the first inning and was unearned. Ron LeFlore led off the game with a walk and got to third on a throwing error by Knapp on the pickoff attempt. LeFlore scored on a single by Tom Veryzer.

In the nightcap, the Sox got all three runs after two out in the fourth inning. Bill Stein, who is wielding a hot bat with 11 hits in his last 16 trips to the plate, drove in the first run with a single that scored Jorge Orta.

Kevin Bell followed with a single and came home along with Stein when Bucky Dent tripled to right field over the head of Rusty Staub, who fell down going for the ball.

Detroit pitcher Dave Lemanczyk, (1-2), who pitched the distance in the second game for the Tigers, pitched well after giving up the three runs on four hits in the fourth, didn't allow another hit through the next four innings.

Johnson zapped the Tigers in record time, one hour and 45 minutes which is the fastest Sox game this year. He struck out six and walked only one. Johnson is coming on as the most effective starter on the staff. He's 8-4 since being 1-4 early in the season.

SOX SHORTS: Jorge Orta's 17-game hitting streak ended in the first game . . . The Sox and Tigers play another doubleheader tonight starting at 5:30 p.m. . . . Rich Gossage (5-8) and John 'Blue Moon Odom' (0-0) will pitch for the South Siders.

Cubs down for The Count

From Herald Wire Services

SAN FRANCISCO — The Count had the Cubs' number Wednesday afternoon, but his teammates waited until the bottom of the ninth inning to reward his pitching brilliance as the San Francisco Giants trimmed the Cubs, 2-1.

The Count, of course, is Giant pitching ace John Montefusco, and despite firing a thrifty three-hitter at the Cubs, found himself down for the count with the Giants trailing, 1-0, upon entering the last of the ninth.

Marty Perez and Gary Matthews opened the Giant ninth with singles off Bruce Sutter who was summoned in relief of the shutout pitching of Steve Renko.

Sutter was yanked in favor of Darold Knowles who dished up a "bunt double" to Bobby Murcer. With the Cub infield moving, Murcer dumped a squib in the hole at short and wound up at second with Perez scoring the tying run.

Knowles intentionally walked Darrell Evans to load the bases before yielding to Joe Coleman who promptly retired Ken Reitz on a pop foul to the catcher for the first out.

But Chris Speier lifted a sacrifice fly to medium left and Matthews beat the throw home with the winning run.

Montefusco, boosting his record to 9-8, was touched for what appeared to be a dramatic game-winning home run by "Tarzan" Joe Wallis in the top of the ninth, but The Count had only to wait patiently as his teammates bailed the decision out.

NBA-ABA merger nears settlement

NEW YORK — National Basketball Association Commissioner Larry O'Brien said Wednesday that a proposal had been worked out which, if accepted by the NBA Board of Governors, would make final a settlement of a lawsuit which has blocked the NBA-American Basketball Association merger.

"We have a proposed solution which will promptly be presented to the NBA Board of Governors for approval," O'Brien said in a statement. "If it is approved w would expect court approval of the Robertson settlement and the signing with the ABA expansion teams to occur in a matter of days."

He said details of the proposal would not be revealed until the Board members, who will get them this morning, have had a chance to make their decision. O'Brien said there had been person-

Tunisia withdraws from Olympics

MONTREAL — Another country withdrew from the Olympic games Wednesday, but the political turmoil of the past week — which was throwing the games further into debt — appeared to be subsiding.

The Tunisian government announced it had ordered its 37 athletes to return home, the 30th nations to pull out since Friday. Twenty-nine of the countries are black African and Arab.

The Africans are miffed over the refusal of the International Olympic Committee to ban New Zealand, which has sporting ties with apartheid South Africa. The Arabs left to demonstrate sympathy with the African stand. The other country which walked out was Taiwan after it refused to bow to Canadian demands that it not call itself "China." The only African countries still in competition are Senegal and the Ivory Coast.

Kuhn endorses anti-trust exemption

WASHINGTON — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn recommended Wednesday that Congress extend the same anti-trust exemption enjoyed by baseball to all other professional team sports — football, basketball, hockey and soccer.

At an opening hearing of a Special House Subcommittee on Sports, Kuhn and Oakland owner Charles O. Finley clashed again over the proposed new labor agreement with the Major League Baseball Players Association and the Commissioner's ruling blocking Finley's $3.5 million sale of three of his stars.

Kuhn credited the anti-trust exemption allowed baseball under rulings by the court for helping reach the new contract with the union, drastically modifying the reserve clause in the free agent status of players. "I think baseball was able to operate well under the exemption," he said as lead-off witness.

"I also think football and other team sports should have the same benefit of immunity. Sports have a peculiar need to be protected in the competitive operation of the leagues. I would urge that the same immunity situation be applied to other sports by legislation."

Golf field firms for World Series

WASHINGTON — Deane Beman, Tour Commissioner for the Professional Golfers Association, said Wednesday that 18 players already are in the field for the 1976 World Series of Golf and a final field of 22 or 23 is expected. The series is scheduled Sept. 2-5 at the Firestone Country Club South Course at Akron, Ohio.

"The winner of the Canadian Open, which ends July 25, gets a place automatically and on Aug. 1 the PGAs of Britain and Japan will name their players," Beman said.

If the winner of the PGA Championship, which ends Aug. 15, is a player who is not already in the field he will be added. The same holds true for the winner of the summer tour point race. The top five players on the PGA money-winning list already are in the Series field, as are the top five on the PGA scoring average list. But Gary Player of South Africa, sixth at present on that list, has a chance to move up. He also is entered in the Canadian Open and the PGA Championship.

Players also may qualify for the World Series by winning more than one PGA tour event and nine players still have a chance to become a multiple winner. Tom Watson is the defending World series champion.

Leroy Walker's babysitting chores enough to drive most coaches crazy

by MURRAY OLDERMAN

Leroy Walker, Ph D., is the ceremonial baby sitter for a diverse group of taut, emotionally strung out people varying in age from 18 to 38. He is the head coach of men's athletics (synonym for track and field) on the U.S. Olympic squad going to Montreal.

Dr. Walker, 56 and spry, is a dandy. He wears a blue leather jacket and maroon patent leather shoes as gleaming as his brown skin. He is distinctive. In all the years since the Olympic games were revived in 1896, and in which traditionally track and field has been the focal point of the American endeavor, there has never before been a black coach heading the men's team.

"I got it because I had better credentials than anybody else," says Walker, who has been a teacher, coach and administrator at North Carolina Central University for 30 years.

"I had international experience. I coached the Olympic squads of Ethiopia, Israel, Jamaica, Trinidad and Kenya. They called me an advisor but I was really the coach.

"I've always felt a native should coach a team. I had two Ethiopians in the 1972 games and I had mixed emotions watching them compete against Americans for medals."

Leroy Walker as the U S coach is in a pressure situation.

"Munich was our accursed games," says Jesse Abramson, a longtime authority in track and field. "George Woods hit the flag in the shotput. Rick Wohlhuter and Jim Ryun fell. Two sprinters didn't show up. Two quartermilers disdained the American flag and we didn't have a relay team. The pole was barred, and we lost the pole vault the first time ever. The six gold medals we won there were our lowest point ever."

Since 1896, the United States has won close to 50 per cent of the gold medals in track and field. Experts such as Abramson see us winning as few as four in Montreal. Ten gold medals would be a sensational comeback.

But Walker professes no concern.

"I don't care about results," he says. "We've got a talented group; if we don't win as many medals, it's because the rest of the world is so much stronger."

Since all the athletes, from sprinter Harvey Glance to shotputter Al Feuerbach to decathlon ace Bruce Jenner, already come to him finely honed in technique and ability and competitive edge, what can Walker as a coach actually do besides act as a caddy?

"You can mold them into a group," he says, "that has motivation to achieve the best efforts. You have the responsibility of picking out little flaws.

"Last winter we were making a film for the Athletic Institute in Arizona. We had Mac Wilkins (the champion discus thrower), Kathy Schmidt (women's javelin thrower) and Peter Schmock (shotputter). When we showed them the film stopped down, we could pick out possible areas of improvement in technique.

"Of course, the most sensible thing you can do is not change anybody. Much of what we do is to get the athlete to feel it's important for him as a member of the group to do his best at Montreal."

This stress on group endeavor seems to run counter to the Olympic ideal of individual competition, with the stress on participation rather than winning, as pointed out by Baron Pierre de Coubertin in the Olympic creed when he revived the games 80 years ago.

"I coached the 1970 U.S. national team against France, Germany and Russia in summer meets," recalls Walker. "We beat fine French and German squads but lost to an overpowering Russian team, by three or four points.

"I remember Bill Skinner had just upset (Janis) Lusis, the world record holder in the javelin. He was standing in the tunnel, looking at the scoreboard with tears in his eyes. The guy had achieved the zenith and yet he was standing with his eyes welled.

"The same thing happens here in the Olympics.

"Winning the 400-meter relay in Mexico in '68 turned the team around. At Montreal, the 100 and the long jump come the first day. If we do well, it will give the team adhesion. When somebody on your team does well, you're feeling more a part of it.

"What Coubertin said is something different from our social system. At the moment of competition, I want to beat you."

As a high school sprinter in New York, Walker claims he could run the 100 in 9.4 or 9.5, fast for his time, but his time was World War II when the Olympic games wer cancelled for a dozen years. So he switched his energies to education, received a Master's degree from Columbia, a Ph D. in the biological sciences from NYU and coached basketball, football and track and field at Benedict College (his alma mater), Bishop College and Prairie View State before settling down in 1945 at North Carolina Central. There, in athletics, he turned out such as Olympic hurdler Lee Calhoun and eventually progressed to vice-chancellor for university relations.

"The Olympics," he says, "put me back in the classroom because I've been so busy with preparations in the last year that I had to give up my administrative duties."

Walker is critical of the Olympic team selection process. He'd like to have a squad picked two years ahead of time, then add and subtract athletes based on recent performance.

Still, he likes what he sees around him as he prepares the U.S. men's track and field team for the XXIst Olympiad in Montreal.

CHUCK NOLL, Pittsburgh Steeler coach, pats defensive tackle Joe Greene on the back as the Super Bowl Champion Steelers prepare for Friday night's College All Star Game.

Steelers consider 'inputs' of college players, coaches

LATROBE, Pa. (UPI) — Pittsburgh Steelers Coach Chuck Noll believes his Super Bowl football champs are less prepared to grapple with the collegians in Friday's College All Star game than to play an NFL foe

He cited the wide range of "inputs" into his opponents' strategy by the assortment of college coaches that have taken over the job of coaching the All Stars in the annual extravaganza, especially Ara Parseghian, formerly of Notre Dame

"There is no way of preparing for them as a group," he said. "There are too many inputs Right now, we don't know what the heck they're going to do"

Many Steeler players treat the All Stars match "as any other game," but some are bothered by the lack of pre-game films that are normally studied at great length to learn the strengths and weaknesses of an opponent.

"We're going into this probably not as prepared as we would be for NFL clubs," said Noll "We would know more about them"

Defensive tackle Ernie Holmes noted that the Steeler veterans have only had two weeks training in preparation for the All Star game, and won't be in top physical condition until later in the summer when the regular exhibition games begin

"I won't be in my top physical ability as a Super Bowl champ," he said "Also, in the All Star game, there is so much personnel from so many universities that it is hard to study. There are no films of these players working together."

He said he will play aggressively to try to force the offensive into making mistakes, rather than play strategically, anticipating All Star moves.

Noll agrees with this thinking, and says the team has been making only "general preparations"

The Steelers will hold their final practice Wednesday prior to the All Star game before flying to Chicago today for a workout at Soldiers' Field.

A Steeler spokesman said the workout would be normal, but with less emphasis on physical contact The team held a two-hour workout after concentrating on its kicking game in the morning

The spokesman said Noll plans to start all the regulars, including defensive tackle Joe Greene, whose neck injury last season had caused him to be a doubtful starter in the All Star game.

Only two playsrs are expected to miss Friday's game Veteran wide receiver Reggie Garrett remains hospitalized for a sprained back, and rookie linebacker Larry Kain is sidelined with a bruised knee

Ace will win $100 payoff

Each of 160 golfers will have the chance of pocketing $100 for a hole-in-one at the Paddock tournament Sunday, Aug 15, at Hilldale golf club though such payment has been won just once during the first 26 years of the event

Mike Spinello, representing Graft Builder's team in Old Orchard Scratch league in the 1970 tournament at Thunderbird golf club, carded the ace on the par 3, 17th hole

Whether or not one of the expected 160 golfers this time will be able to pocket the $100 prize remains to be seen, though it is certain the 12 individual trophies, the four golf passes and the two dozen golf balls for low net and low gross will definitely be taken by day's end.

First place teams of the twilight leagues as of July 24 are eligible for the big event with deadline for entries Saturday, Aug 7

Girls capture swim trophies

Two Arlington Heights girls recently won championships in the Central AAU Junior Olympic Age Group meet in Joliet

Chris Takata won the 100-yard breaststroke in the 13-& 14-year-old age group Julie Shanahan took first in the same event, but in the 9 & 10-year-old age group

Jay Takata took second in the 11-& 12-year-old 100-yard backstroke and Tom Stahnke took third place in the 100-yard butterfly, 15-18 year-old division

Earlier, Arlington Heights' entry in the Northern Illinois Swimming Conference went down to the final event before losing to powerful Northbrook

Local swimmers excel in Special Olympics

Northwest Suburban YMCA in Des Plaines was represented by 11 swimmers in the recently-concluded Special Olympics State Meet at Curie Park in Chicago

Competing in 22 events, the Northwest entries captured 10 gold medals, eight silver and two bronze in addition to ribbons for fourth and fifth-place finishes.

The meet was highlighted by double-winning performances by Arlington Heights' Steve Zungrone who won the 25-yard backstroke and freestyle, Bob Devinger of Mount Prospect who touched first in the 25-yard breast and 50-yard freestyle and Barrington's Patty Muzzy who earned golds in the 25-free and 25-fly

Other winners were Scott Peters of Mt. Prospect in the 25-back, Mike Lattof of Arlington Heights in the 50-free and Mt. Prospect's Katharyn Till in the 25-breast.

Earning silver medals were Woody Shulman of Arlington Heights in the 25-free, Wheeling's Steve Pearlman in the 25-back, Lattof in the 25-breast, Palatine's Elaine Shaw in both the 25-back and 50-free, Till in the 50-free and Pam Sholty of Rolling Meadows in the 25-back

Bronze medals were awarded to Shulman in the 25-back, and Sholty in the 50-free while Peters finished fifth in the 25-free and Pearlman 4th in the 50-free

The swimmers were members of the "Starfish" Swim Team at Northwest Suburban YMCA which is part of the Special Needs Swimming Program and voluntarily coached by Aquatic Chairman Caryl Crouch, Gerry Grieg, Bill Flowers, Pat Hughes, Vince O'Leary, Al Zelm and Pat Wilcox

What's new with the old?

The mature are helping the aging

by ELEANOR RIVES

Aware that many senior citizens are sorely in need of specialized help and service, the U.S. Congress passed the Older Americans Act of 1965.

In 1973, following the White House Conferences on Aging, a variety of amendments decentralized the bill, making it more of a grass roots operation.

To date, there are 463 Area Agencies on Aging in the U.S., 13 of them in Illinois. The northwest suburbs are among those served by one of these agencies, the Suburban Cook County Area Agency on Aging (AAA).

So what's new with the AAA?

Two programs are brand new in Illinois, but have been successfully administered for some time in four other states. One is the Outreach program. The other is the Nursing Home Friendly Visitor program. Both are manned by older persons, mostly over 60, who put in 15 paid hours a week.

THE AREA'S 30 Outreach workers seek out isolated elderly persons to inform them of available help and benefits they may never have known existed.

"Our Outreach people spend most of their time calling on people — even door-to-door," said David Grigsby, the area agency's acting executive director. "They look for the seniors who are apt to fall through the cracks."

Friendly Visitors are assigned to nursing homes for two-month periods to resolve patient's problems, to help them obtain benefits to which they are entitled, and to assist families in finding alternatives to long-term nursing care by enlisting the support of services in the community.

Ruth Patton is a Friendly Visitor. Harold Wollenhaupt and Nora Mathison are Outreach workers with headquarters at the Northwest Opportunity Center, Arlington Heights. All three are over 60 and exuberantly enthusiastic about their work.

Two Outreach workers share task of assisting elderly with problems

Harold Wollenhaupt of Schaumburg and Nora Mathison of Palatine complement each other as Outreach workers for the Suburban Cook County Area Agency on Aging.

Harold works out of the Northwest Opportunity Center in Arlington Heights three days a week, mainly by telephone. Nora checks in the other two days, but often spends part of the day in the field visiting elderly persons with problems. Sometimes the problem is merely loneliness, the solution merely having someone to listen.

Both Harold and Nora, a practical nurse, have second jobs. Harold is also a building custodian; Nora, who graduated from nursing school six years ago, works on the surgical floor at Holy Family Hospital. Both attend a current six-week training course one day a week at Oakton Community College

"I COULDN'T afford the luxury of being an unpaid volunteer," said Harold, 78 "I heard of this job at a Harper seminar and applied for it I had my own business for many years; now I'm applying business principles to this kind of work."

Wollenhaupt estimates that since he and Mrs. Mathison started work the beginning of March, they have assisted in a substantial way approximately 300 persons Where the problems are minimal, they don't keep records.

Since transportation is a problem with most senior citizens, the telephone is the main contact with Wollenhaupt when roblems arise. And every day something of an unusual nature comes up.

"IT MIGHT be someone having trouble renewing a drivers' license, or someone with eyeglass problems or dental problems," he explained. "Sometimes we refer elderly people who need legal advice to volunteer attorneys here at the Center.'

"Whatever the problem, we have a wealth of information at our fingertips in our referral resource file. We are advocates of the elderly, and we help wherever there is a need."

Nora Mathison heard of the Outreach Program while she was taking Senior Peer Counseling at Harper Community College, a course which emphasizes the importance of good listening. Now listening is a big part of her job.

"SO MANY older women have gone through the traumatic experience of losing their husband, and have never really unburdened themselves. They just need someone who cares enough to listen," she said.

In other cases, she has helped elderly people find subsidized housing, obtain food stamps, get new glasses and dentures. She has acquainted them with bus routes and other means of transportation.

Much of her telephone contact is with people who are completely alone and have nobody to talk to. More often than not, they beg her to come and visit them and she makes a date

"These people really have been pushed around," she said. "They take rebuffs as if they deserve them. Anyone who cares enough to call on them gets an overwhelming reception"

"I enjoy people," she added. "I just wish their needs could be met right now."

SHE CARES ENOUGH to listen and sometimes that's all that is necessary. Outreach worker Nora Mathison, left, goes into the community to visit the elderly and acquaint them with benefits available. Here she gets a sunny welcome from Beulah Meyer, 86, of Arlington Heights. The Outreach program is new in Illinois.

FRIENDLY VISITORS have been so well received that nursing homes are beginning to request them. "At times, a patient simply needs someone to hold her hand," said Ruth Patton, right, shown with Elise Draeger, 91, a resident of Plum Grove Nursing Home in Palatine.

Friendly Visitor program 'recycles' this retiree

Ruth Patton of Arlington Heights loves elderly people, loves being on the go, loves visiting, and is extremely friendly

Perhaps that is why she was chosen to be one of 15 Friendly Visitors in suburban Cook County, or, in the larger picture, one of 110 Friendly Visitors in the state of Illinois, all of them over 50, most of them over 60.

"I love this work more than I can say," exclaimed this dynamic woman, whose enthusiasm and energy belie her 66 years

"I feel like I have been recycled after three years of retirement We 15 people from all walks of life went into the program dull and tired. Now we're recycling other people and we all feel great. Restored. Refreshed. It's a spiritual lift"

A RETIRED businesswoman with a great deal of experience, Ruth first became interested in the elderly when she did a three-year stint of volunteer work at the Lutheran Home for the Aged in Arlington Heights.

One day she heard that the Friendly Visitor program was going into operation. When the suburban AAA announced that it would interview job applicants, she was first in line. Presto! Instant employment!

And with it, instant satisfaction The ensuing three solid weeks of training at Triton College were stimulating enough to influence her later decision to enroll at John Marshall Law School for the optional 13-week law course on Saturdays for community developers and social workers.

INCLUDED IN Friendly Visitor training are orientation visits to participating nursing homes, from the most exclusive private facility to public aid homes

"The public facility we visited wasn't glamorous but it was well-equipped and the activities were fantastic," said Mrs. Patton. "You didn't find anyone staying in his room. This particular place has 700 volunteer neighborhood women — not an organized group, just caring people — who come in to help."

The Friendly Visitors discovered that sometimes all it takes to solve a problem is a fresh viewpoint At this home, some on the residents really missed having a garden Ruth suggested that the home run the elevator up one more floor, fence in the roof, add some garden furniture, and with the help of the many volunteers, plant a roof garden.

IN ANOTHER facility, an elderly woman was depressed because she had lost her husband At the same time, she had lost track of her best friend, a woman who had entered another home somewhere, and the double loss seemed too much to bear Ruth traced her friend and now the two are in telephone and written communication

In some instances, a nursing home director may steer Mrs Patton to a problem patient, or Ruth may bring a patient's problem to the attention of the home. "We are not tattlers," she said emphatically, "but if the nursing home administrators can help with a problem, we don't hesitate to ask We don't report to families, but often we meet the families and they help.

SHOULD SOMEONE'S money run out, Ruth is prepared to point out the right agency to go to for help Should someone need legal aid, Ruth knows where to get it. She has at her disposal an enormous file of help available in such areas as general service, family counseling, employment, food stamps, home-delivered meals, homemakers' service, transportation, recreation, public aid, and many more, including all health concerns — nutrition, vision, hearing, health equipment, etc.

Ruth received her certificate in March 1976 and began actual field work the beginning of May Her first assignment was in the area served by Plum Grove Nursing Home in Palatine

She may spend hours with a patient, usually just sitting and listening. She tries to find mutual interests, tries to build trust. "This is getting down to where life is basic," she said. "You can't fool these old people with a phony smile or a phony act."

FOR MANY, there are no problems nagging them. For some, the problem doesn't surface until she is about to leave. "Oh, before you go . . ." says the patient.

Ruth is aware that she is working on a federal budget, that she is a representative of the U.S. Government trying in a personal way to get down to the people themselves. She realizes that she cannot "fall in love" with any one elderly person and still help many. She must maintain her objectivity, yet be warmly concerned.

"It's a great idea, using the aging to help the aging," she said. "I cannot begin to tell you all the tiny satisfactions — the smiles and thanks I get for such things as a little bunch of violets, snapshots of my cat — when I miniaturize my life down inside of their lives.

"What a beautiful way to fill in my time!"

The doctor says

by Lawrence E Lamb, M D

Excess of uric acid true cause of gout

A couple of weeks ago my husband awakened during the night with severe pain in his big toe. He started to get up but could hardly stand, his toe was so badly swollen. He stayed home from work on the next day thinking it would go away, but it didn't.

He went to the doctor who x-rayed it and gave him a prescription, and told him he had gout and to come back the following week.

I have heard that people with gout have to give up or at least cut down on certain foods and liquids. The prescription he was given did help and he was ok'd for work in about a week.

This doctor asked by husband if any member of his family had gout. I had never heard of it being an hereditary ailment. I have heard it was either too much of something in the system or lack of something. Hope you can enlighten me.

The popular image of the person with gout is a middle-aged, overweight man sitting in his overstuffed chair with his painful foot on a soft pillow on a stool, while he is eating a leg of lamb with one hand and holding a glass of wine in the other hand. That is a concept of antiquity and deserves to be relegated to the archives of medical folklore.

Gout is caused by an excess production of uric acid. The uric acid is a byproduct of the cell regeneration that goes on constantly in your body. It is literally spun off from nucleic acids that are in the nucleus of the cells. This aberration in formation of excess uric acid does tend to occur in families. The women in the family tend to have high uric acid but less often get gout.

Interestingly, the gout and high uric acid levels are common in active, intelligent people. Its tendency to occur in such people led to it being called the king of diseases and the disease of kings.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-3, Gout, Uric Acid, which will give you a more complete resume of what the disease is and how it is treated Others who want this information can send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents for it. Just send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N. Y. 10019.

BEFORE WE HAD the effective medicines we have today the only thing the doctors could offer the gout patient was a diet and medicine to abort the acute attack The diets were low purine diets — literally low in those foods with lots of nuclei in them. This meant giving up the organ meats in particular and limiting the meats However, even the strictest diet will only lower the uric acid level a little bit because the excess does not come from the food but from the excess production by the person's own body cells.

The newer medicines can block the production of excess uric acid by the body cells. That way the blood level or uric acid never gets elevated and the harm caused by the excess uric acid never occurs.

It is important for people with gout to be followed regularly. Most will have to take medicine for life to avoid gouty arthritis, acute attacks as your husband had and more serious problems. The medicines available today, though, make it possible for a person to lead a normal life otherwise.

Careful planning key to successful cooking

Dear Dorothy Please help a fairly new cook. Is there some rule to follow when putting a meal together when you have three different dishes that call for three different temperatures? Or do you just plan dishes that cook at the same heat? Also, since my oven-broiler is all one unit, how do you broil steak and have potatoes at the same time? —Mrs B. Reppe

No rules, just careful planning It's a matter of adding some things, taking out others You learn, for instance, that covered hot casseroles stay hot quite a while so you plan around this. You can have rolls already baked and warm them up in the top of a double boiler If you want baked potatoes with steak, start the potatoes early French fries can be done in the upper part of a stove, but have to be watched because an oven gets pretty hot with the broiler on, as you know

Your next big present to yourself ought to be a broiler or toaster oven. They're great for many side dishes. Too, it doesn't make sense to turn on a big oven just to warm up a couple of breakfast buns or such.

Dear Dorothy Would it help to use trellises with our cucumbers this year? —Jamie Stanley

Absolutely Using a trellis conserves space, helps in disease control and produces fewer cucumbers with yellow bottoms as there is better exposure to sunlight

Dear Dorothy Here's a tip Men's undershirts shrink during the drying so I've found that buying a size larger — and pulling it lengthwise before putting it in the dryer — makes the shirt come out the right length. — Mrs George Maxwell Congress travels and who pays?

Keeping up

by Monica Wilch Perin

— Some summer notes:

As you take off on your vacation this summer determined to see as much as possible on your $200 budget, think of your public servants, the members of Congress, who enjoy $20,000 world-straddling junkets on your tax dollars.

The Washington Post recently obtained State Department travel expense records that had previously been kept secret and reported on a whole string of trips by members of Congress in 1975 totaling $1.7 million in appropriated funds.

The most extravagant junket, The Post reported, was a Middle Eastern jaunt by two dozen Congressmen and their families and staff members, led by House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill. The tab was more than $20,000, not counting government transportation.

THE PURPOSE or benefit of the trip is difficult to determine since there was no report made on it. Members of the delegation, including Rep. John Anderson, R-Rockford, lamely attempted to justify it to reporters with vague declarations that it "contributed to our understanding of foreign affairs."

Some of the "foreign affairs" studied by the group on this trip included the Egyptian Sphinx, the Pyramids, the ancient city of Luxor and dinner on the barge Omar Khayyam on the Nile. The group wound up its strenuous mission with a "rest and recreation stopover" in Barcelona, Spain.

A member of The Post team of reporters who investigated Congressional travels recalled doing a similar story 16 years ago, after which Congress voted several "reforms" eliminating much of the expense accounting that had been done at that time and making the rest non-public.

IF YOU'RE heading to California and are a nature lover, you might want to pay a visit to the Los Padres National Forest, about 50 miles northeast of Los Angeles It is the home of the last remaining flock of giant California condors, and the 50 birds there are now threatened by a proposed mining project.

A Chicago-based company, U.S. Gypsum, holds a permit to strip-mine gypsum and phosphates in a portion of the national forest. Environmentalists say the mining will create noise, air and water pollution that would disrupt and endanger the condors. A recent study by the Bureau of Land Management concurs with that assessment.

THE PROBLEM is that the permit was issued to U.S Gypsum prior to the 1970 National Environmental Protection Act, which requires environmental impact assessment before such permits are issued. U S. Gypsum says they cannot be restrained from exercising their permit rights on the basis of a law passed later.

This case and several similar ones elsewhere are now in the courts where a determination must be made as to whether the 1970 environmental act supersedes all other federal laws, such as the 1920 Mineral Leasing Act under which U S. Gypsum got its permit and which contains no environmental mandates.

There may also have to be a determination on whether the 1973 Endangered Species Act takes precedence over the older law and the permits issued under it. If the decisions go against these two environmental laws, they will be severely crippled.

Flowers a treat for taste buds

by Mary B. Good

Have you ever tasted a flower?

Some gardeners are of the opinion that it isn't enough to simply enjoy the beauty and fragrance of a blossom — they must experience the taste of it as well.

If you would like to embark on a new adventure, consider cooking up a batch of blooms in your dinner arrangement. Imagine the reaction of guests when they comment on your great-tasting soup, and you say, "Yes, I grew it myself!"

Of course, not just any garden flower is edible, but day lilies, calendula, nasturtiums, chysanthemum, roses, yucca blossoms, violets, elderflowers, dandelions and dianthus are. They make up into such varied offerings as chowders, cordials, pickled items, sandwiches, custards, dips, waffles, fritters, ice cream, bombes, omelets and salads.

A PALATE FOR THE exotic in food fare is the main requirement for trying a flower dish. In using flowers in cookery, it is important that the flowers chosen have not been treated with herbicides or pesticides during their growth.

A favorite recipe with some Italians and one I acquired from a community gardener at Prairie Park a few years ago is squash blossom fritters:

SQUASH BLOSSOM FRITTERS

The ingredient list calls for one quart of squash blossoms, one cup of flour, one-half teaspoon salt, two eggs, one and one-fourth cup milk and one teaspoon of melted butter. Using blossoms opened only half way, wash, remove pollen-bearing parts inside the blossom, drain and pat dry. Sift flour and salt together. Beat eggs until lemon-colored and fluffy. Add milk and melted butter to eggs. Mix and add flour gradually, avoiding lumps. Heat deep fat to 370 degrees. Coat blossoms with batter and fry until brown. Drain on paper towel and keep hot in warming oven until all blossoms are fried. Can be served with salt, if desired. Serves four to six. Great with meat or fish.

WILD ROSE JELLY

Heat two and a half cups of canned apple juice almost to boiling. Place one quart of fresh, tightly packed wild rose petals that have been drained in a large saucepan and pour the hot apple juice over them. Boil 20 minutes and strain off juice to another pan. Add three and three-fourths cups granulated sugar and a drop or two of red food coloring. Bring to boil and add one-half bottle of Certo pectin. Boil another minute. Pour in sterilized jelly jars and seal with melted paraffin. Makes six glasses of jelly.

Want something unique for your next cocktail party? Wow them with a nasturtium nibble hors d'oeuvres.

NASTURTIUM NIBBLES

Wash three dozen nasturtium blossoms, drain and set aside. Allow one small package of cream cheese with chives to soften at room temperature. Meanwhile, open one small jar of ham salad spread and one of pineapple cream cheese. Fill each blossom with a spoonful of spread, alternating blossoms with one of the three spreads. Other stuffings that can be used are crabmeat, clam dip, caviar and cream cheese, egg salad.

Here's a good recipe for a fine sauce that goes well with lamb, ham, or tongue:

CARNATION SAUCE

Wash two cups of carnation petals (with their white bases snipped off). Combine with one cup of granulated sugar, one-half teaspoon powdered cloves, one stick cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg and one quart of vinegar. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer one hour. Strain and cool. Keeps indefinitely in a tightly stoppered bottle in the refrigerator.

FOR A DANDY omelette, add one cup of dandelion flowers (no stems) to your eggs.

So many offbeat recipes using flowers come to mind, but space limits my relating them. Have you ever tried mum soup, marigold custard . . .?

Marshall-Burlage

An October wedding is planned by Karen Marie Marshall of Lansing, Mich., and her fiance, Thomas Dietrich Burlage II, whose parents are the Thomas D. Burlages of Des Plaines. Karen's mother is Mrs. Frances Marshall; her father is the late Edwin A. Marshall.

A graduate of St. Viator High and John Carroll University, Cleveland, Tom is living in Manchester, N.H., where he is district manager for Westclox. Karen attended Lansing College and Western Michigan University and is a copy girl for the Lansing State Journal.

Nieman-Kinsella

The engagement of Laurie Lynne Nieman to Patrick Kinsella is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nieman, Mount Prospect. Laurie and Patrick, son of the Earl Kinsellas of Lexington, Ill., plan a November wedding.

Laurie, a '73 graduate of Prospect High School, is a senior in accounting at Illinois State University. Patrick graduated from Illinois State and is attending graduate school in agriculture economics at Southern Illinois University. He is also employed by BASF Wyandotte Company.

Willis-Zikomski

An area couple Patricia Ann Willis of Mount Prospect and Thomas A. Zikomski of Arlington Heights, are planning a Sept. 4 wedding. Their engagement is announced by Patricia's mother, Mrs. Pauline Willis.

A '70 graduate of Prospect High, the bride-to-be works in Arlington Heights for S. S. Kresge Co. Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Zikomski, graduated in '67 from St. Viator High and is with Walgreen's in Palatine.

Shanley-Murray

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shanley, Mount Prospect, announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathleen, to James Murray, son of the Thomas Murrays of Leavenworth, Kan. A spring wedding is planned.

Kathleen, graduated from Sacred Heart of Mary High School and the College of St. Teresa in Winona, Minn. She is a registed dietitian at the Veterans Administration Hospital in North Chicago. Her fiance earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Kansas and a master's in chemistry at the University of Wisconsin. He is working for Abbott Labs in North Chicago.

Weddings

Robin Nordli—John William Cleary

A bluff overlooking Grand Lake in Oklahoma was the setting for the June 26 wedding of Robin Nordli of Mount Prospect and John William Cleary of Tulsa. The ceremony was performed at 1:30 p.m. outdoors at the Joseph W. Clearys' lake cabin 80 miles northeast of their home in Tulsa.

Robin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Nordli, and Bill met a year ago when she was appearing in "Camelot" at Theatre Tulsa. Both are students at the University of Tulsa where she is a senior in music education and he is working on a master's in psychology. Robin graduated from Prospect High in 1973.

Wearing a street-length ivory jersey dress and a matching picture hat, Robin carried a bouquet of yellow roses and daisies.

HER MATRON OF honor was Karen Biggs, her sister from Shelbina, Mo., who wore a pale green jersey street-length dress, and bridesmaid was Juliet Bielawski, Mount Prospect, who wore rose jersey. Both girls carried daisies and carnations in their bouquets.

Eric Nightengale of Tulsa was Bill's best man, with Joseph Cleary, his brother, as groomsman.

A buffet reception followed at the groom's parents' cabin, after which the newlyweds said goodby to their guests and then remained for a short honeymoon. They are now back to classes at the university and living in an apartment nearby.

Sue Marie Jurs—Ronald S. Antor

St. Matthew Lutheran Church, Barrington, was the setting for the June 19 wedding of Sue Marie Jurs of Barrington and Ronald Steven Antor of Elk Grove Village.

Their 5:30 p.m. double ring ceremony was followed by a dinner-dance reception for 250 at Martinetti's in Crystal Lake. After a two-week honeymoon in Michigan and Wisconsin, the couple settled in Palatine.

Sue, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Jurs, is a graduate of Barrington High and Harper College and works for Clean Air Engineering, Inc., Palatine.

Ron's parents are Mrs. Arlene R. Antor, Elk Grove Village, and John Antor, Chicago. Since graduating from Elk Grove High and Harper, he is a firefighter with Hoffman Estates Fire Department.

WEARING A Victorian-style gown of white chiffon with Belgium lace appliques and a cathedral-length veil edged in the same lace, Sue was attended by her sister, Jody Ann Carlson, Cary, as matron of honor. Jody wore a yellow printed chiffon gown and carried a wicker umbrella filled with yellow and pink flowers.

Attired exactly like Jody but in pink printed chiffon were Sue's three bridesmaids: her cousin, Jane Albrecht, Crystal Lake; Karen Antor, sister of the groom; and Carmen Peletz, Barrington. They also carried umbrellas with the two shades of flowers

THERE WAS also a flower girl, 6-year-old Stacey Walker, Palatine, and two ringbearers, Craig and Christopher Carlson of Cary, 6 and 3 respectively, who are the bride's nephews. The flower girl appeared in a yellow ruffled chiffon dress and carried a basket of yellow and pink flowers.

The bride's bouquet was of white orchids, stephanotis and ivy. As "something old" she wore her great-grandmother's ruby locket.

Ron chose David Weide of Mount Prospect as best man. Jens Pedersen, Schaumburg, the groom's brother, Duane, and Thomas Hickey, Elk Grove, were groomsmen, and Ernest Carlson, Cary, and Thomas Ziffra, Elk Grove, ushered.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald S. Antor

Vickie Diane Dexter—Stephen A. Sucher

An area couple who didn't meet until they worked together in Chicago were married June 12 in St. John United Church of Christ, Arlington Heights.

The bride is Vickie Dianne Dexter, who formerly lived in Arlington Heights until her parents, the Allen Dexters, moved to Nashville, Tenn. Since then Vickie has been living in Rolling Meadows.

Her bridegroom is Stephen Anthony Sucher, son of the Thomas Suchers of Arlington Heights. Stephen is a '72 graduate of Hersey High and then earned a degree from Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology, Terre Haute, Ind. He has taken his bride to live in Flint, Mich., where he works for AC Sparkplugs.

The bride is a '72 graduate of Prospect High and attended Northern Illinois University and Harper College.

VICKIE AND STEPHEN were married by candlelight in a 6 p.m. ceremony, after which they greeted guests at a dinner reception at Henrici's O'Hare Inn.

The bride's sister, Sue Johnson, Nashville, was her matron of honor. Another sister, Joyce Mainiero, Buffalo Grove, was maid of honor and Kim Sucher, the groom's sister, was bridesmaid.

Also in the bridal party were Tricia Recknagel, 6, of Burlington, Wis., as flower girl and her brother, Brian, 8, ring bearer.

Gary Tucker, Argos, Ind., served as best man while Daniel Kuester, Evansville, and Scott Sucher, the groom's brother, were groomsmen. Ushers were the bride's three brothers, Mike, Tim and Greg Dexter.

Grant honors Mrs. Jenks

A $500 grant to the Educational Foundations' Centennial Fund of the American Association of University Women was recently given by Northwest Suburban Branch in honor of Mrs. Alice Jenks, who heads the local fund committee.

To raise additional funds for the program, which is used primarily for graduate study by women, the local committee hosted a salad luncheon and card party last week in the Jenks home for members and guests.

IN ANOTHER project by the local AAUW, members serve as volunteers at Northwest Suburban Day Care Center, the Des Plaines Dental Health Clinic and free English-speaking classes held at Des Plaines Library.

A series of get-acquainted parties are being planned for early September. Anyone interested in attending or in further information about the local branch may call Mrs. Julie Acker of Des Plaines, 299-3216.

Good food beautifully prepared doesn't have to mean dawn-to-dusk kitchen duty, nor must convenience food always be a culinary cop-out. When there's seafood on the menu you can have it both ways . . . fast and fabulous, too.

For cool kitchen cookery or campsite convenience, there's no need to defrost frozen Cod, Perch, Pollock or Sole fillets. Often you can have an entree or a whole meal on the table in 15 or 20 minutes.

GRILLED NORTH ATLANTIC FILLETS

- 2 pounds frozen Cod or Pollock fillets, thawed
- 2 cups bottled barbecue sauce
- ¼ cup salad oil
- Additional barbecue sauce for basting
- Green pepper slices for garnish (optional)

Combine barbecue sauce and salad oil in shallow baking dish. Place fillets in marinade; cover and let stand at least 30 minutes.

Grill over hot coals (using grill basket if desired) approximately 3 to 4 minutes on each side, brushing with additional barbecue sauce throughout cooking time. Fish is ready to serve when flesh flakes easily with a fork. Serve garnished with green pepper strips.

FUN FISH KA-BOBS

- 2 pounds frozen Sole or Perch fillets thawed and cut in 12 portions
- 1 jar (8 ounces) sweet and sour sauce
- 6 slices bacon cut in half
- 12 small onions
- 2 medium zucchini, cut in half lengthwise, then cut crosswise in 1" pieces
- 6 to 12 large cherry tomatoes

Marinate fish fillets, covered, in sweet and sour sauce in refrigerator for at least 30 minutes. Meanwhile, partially cook bacon and place on paper towels to absorb excess fat. Peel and par-boil onions; do not fully cook. Remove fish portions from marinade and reserve excess sauce. Place half piece of bacon on each portion of fillet and roll bacon and fish together, pinwheel fashion. Thread fish/bacon rolls and vegetables alternately on skewers, beginning and ending with vegetables. Barbecue over hot coals for 10 to 12 minutes, giving skewers a quarter turn every two to three minutes and brushing often with reserved marinade. Ka-bobs are ready to serve when fish flakes easily with a fork and bacon is delicately browned. Serves 6.

SEAFOOD COOKOUT

CAMPFIRE "POT-A-STEW"

- 1 can (46 ounces) chicken broth
- 3 cans (10¾ ounces) cream of shrimp soup
- 2 pounds frozen Cod, Pollock, Perch or Sole fillets
- 1 onion sliced
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon summer savory
- 4 ears corn cut in thirds or 1 can (12 ounces) corn
- 1 can (15 ounces) baby carrots
- 1 can (1 pound tomato wedges or 2 fresh tomatoes cut in wedges
- 2 large green peppers cut in 1" pieces

Combine chicken broth and cream of shrimp soup in 5 quart Dutch Oven or large camp cook-kettle. Bring to boil, then reduce heat and add frozen fish, sliced onion, salt and savory. Cook, covered, over low heat until fish defrosts (approx. 4-6 minutes). Separate fillets with a fork and break into large pieces. Add remaining vegetables, cover and cook another 6 to 8 minutes or until corn is tender. To serve, remove vegetables from broth with slotted spoon and ladle broth into individual cups. Or serve fish, vegetables and soup together in large soup bowls. Serves 8.

Donna Conlon's impossible recipe

Ingredients blend into a complete pie

by LOIS SEILER

The reaction Donna Conlon, Mount Prospect, receives from friends when she describes the method used to make her elegant coconut custard pie is "impossible."

"Everyone loves the pie, yet no one can believe the extraordinary recipe, I've given it to everyone I know."

For this pie, all the ingredients are mixed in a blender and poured into a pie plate. Incredible though it may seem, the mixture separates into three layers during the baking process, forming the crust, filling and golden coconut topping.

Donna has prepared this dessert for bridge groups, coffees and dinner parties, and recommends chilling the pie to improve its flavor. Her husband, Mike, and their 11-year-old daughter enjoy making it.

DONNA REGULARLY exchanges recipes with her sisters, all of whom live in central Illinois. One recipe has become a "must" for all family reunions. It is a light-textured and delicious choclate sheet cake, frosted with a fudgy chocolate and nut icing.

"Although made from scratch, it takes only about a half hour from start to finish," Donna said.

If you hustle, the ingredients can be mixed together in 10 minutes, and the batter is baked in a jelly roll pan for 15 minutes. While the cake bakes, Donna prepares the frosting, which is spread on the cake while hot. Cut in squares, it will serve at least 20 to 30 persons and is ideal for school functions, family picnics and bake sales.

"My family likes quantity," Donna remarked, "so this cake keeps them satisfied for a few days. I like to serve it with homemade ice cream during the summer months."

ANOTHER quantity recipe is Donna's Butter Coffee Cake, which is also made in a jelly roll pan. It makes the equivalent of three coffee cakes.

A time-saver is a packaged hot roll mix which Donna uses as the basis for this recipe, adding an egg and sugar for a sweet yeast dough. A gooey, buttery topping is spread over the dough, which stays sweet, soft and buttery even after baking.

A great favorite of her husband and four daughters, the coffee cake is also popular with friends and Donna often makes it for overnight guests.

Originally from Springfield, the Conlons have lived in Mount Prospect for seven years and will be moving to Washington, D.C. soon. A former nurse, Donna now enjoys cooking, sewing for her girls and working with crafts.

IMPOSSIBLE PIE
(Coconut Custard)

2 cups milk
1½ to 2 cups flaked coconut
½ cup flour
¾ cup granulated sugar
4 large eggs
1 stick softened margarine (or ½ cup soft tub margarine)

Put all ingredients in blender and blend for one minute. Pour into greased and floured 10-inch pie plate. Bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 50 minutes or until pie is golden brown on top and center of custard is set. (If a glass pie dish is used, bake at 325 degrees.) Cool and store in refrigerator. Serves 8 generously.

CHOCOLATE SHEET CAKE

2 cups granulated sugar
2 cups flour
¼ pound margarine
½ cup vegetable shortening
4 tablespoons cocoa
1 cup water
½ cup buttermilk
2 beaten eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 teaspoon baking soda

In a large mixing bowl, sift together the sugar and flour.

In a saucepan, bring to a boil the margarine, shortening, cocoa and water. Stir to blend and mix into the sugar and flour, beating well. Add the remaining ingredients and mix well. Turn into a greased and floured jelly roll pan and bake at 400 degrees for 15 minutes.

While cake is baking, prepare the following icing:

¼ pound margarine
4 tablespoons cocoa
1/3 cup milk
1 pound confectioner's sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
½ to ¾ cup chopped nuts (optional)

Bring to a rolling boil the margarine, cocoa and milk. Remove from heat and slowly add to the confectioner's sugar, beating well with electric mixer. Add vanilla and nuts. Spread icing over hot cake. When cool, cut in squares to serve. Serves 20 to 30.

(Cocoa may be omitted from the batter for a white cake.)

Butter Coffee Cake

1 package (13¾ ounces) hot roll mix
1 egg
¼ cup granulated sugar

Make yeast mixture as directed on package. To the yeast mixture add remaining ingredients and mix well with a fork until all flour disappears. Form into a ball, place in an oiled bowl and spread a little oil on top. Cover with waxed paper or a tea towel and let rise as directed on package, 30 to 45 minutes.

After rising, punch down dough and spread it into a greased and floured jelly roll pan, pushing and patting with the palms of your hands to cover entire pan. Crimp edges of dough up the sides of pan to hold the topping and keep it from running under the dough. Prepare the following topping:

1½ cups granulated sugar
1½ sticks margarine, softened
4 tablespoons nonfat dry milk
2 eggs
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon vanilla

Mix all ingredients together thoroughly and spread on dough. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Cool and cut in squares to serve. Serves 15.

CRUST, FILLING and topping are made in one easy step with Donna Conlon's recipe for an incredible, Impossible Pie.

How to choose melon

How can you recognize a ripe watermelon in popular varieties without plugging it? Easy, says the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Minnesota. Look for a light yellow color on the underside that indicates the melon is near maturity. It will also have a firm, cylindrical shape with fresh-appearing stem and make a dull, hollow sound when the rind is tapped.

Cookbook author

She's a low-calorie whiz

by BARBARA LADD

EATING RIGHT helps Maxine Toler Vaneven, author of "Luscious Low-calorie Recipes," maintain youthful agility and energy.

Especially as middle-age creeps up, it seems those few extra pounds become harder to take off and keep off. But one woman overcame the problem and is now promoting her method in a new low-calorie cookbook, "Luscious Low-calorie Recipes" (Totvan Co., $3.95).

"I wanted to lose 10 pounds fast and keep them off," said author Maxine Toler Vaneven during a recent interview in the Elk Grove Village home of her brother, Norman Toler.

"I TRIED FAD diets like the grapefruit one and Stillman's and Dr. Atkin's . . . We're all looking for magical, easy ways," she chuckled. "But I wanted something I could use for the rest of my life."

So, putting the grapefruit aside, the Wisconsin YMCA director began counting calories, which is the method most medical doctors and nutritionists recommend.

Seventeen days later the 10 pounds were gone and she has kept them off throughout the several years following.

The major problem she ran into was lack of tasty, low-calorie recipes for her new weight-conscious cooking, she said. So she developed her own and had them published. The book is in its second printing now.

"HAVING TO SAY they're low-calorie turns some people off the recipes," Maxine said. "But the recipes are all home-tested and I've served the foods to non-dieting guests."

Surprisingly, her book contains potato salad, ice cream and lasagne recipes — not the normal boiled egg-and-cottage cheese regime most low-calorie diets purport. But, then, Maxine admits she likes to eat.

She includes an entire chapter on snacks because "we're a snacking nation, so let's not exclude that from our diets."

And she said her recipes "must be quick and easy. It's not fashionable to stand over the stove anymore."

WHAT HER BOOK boils down to is the simple fact that nearly anything may be included in a weight-reduction diet as long as the day's calorie intake is under a certain level. Maxine advocates an 800-calorie a day diet for fast weight loss, 1200 calories per day for a slower drop and a maintenance diet to fit the individual. (Her maintenance diet has a 1600 to 1800 calorie allotment.)

What Maxine is hoping to accomplish through her cookbook and "poundage-conversation" scattered among the recipes is motivation.

"I feel you have to get the right attitude," she said. "First you have to want to lose weight, then you have to seek the knowledge by which to do it."

"WHERE MOST of us fall down is putting the knowledge into action. And even if you do put it into action and succeed in losing weight, you have to keep on with the diet, keep on watching what you eat. It doesn't last long," said Maxine.

"Buy beyond all that, you have to be doing something enjoyable. Too often, we feel deprived when on a diet."

Her book is distributed in the area through some of the YMCAs, as well as some newsstands. A couple of her favorite recipes follow.

DUTCH POTATO SALAD

2 cups diced boiled potatoes
2 hard-cooked eggs, diced
½ cup chopped celery
5 tablespoons of Maxine's low-cal dressing (below)
1 tablespoon mustard, prepared
Few drops liquid sugar substitute, if desired for taste
Salt

Mix potatoes, eggs, and celery together. Mix mustard with salad dressing, add sugar substitute if needed for taste. Combine potatoe mixture with salad dressing, add salt and toss lightly.

Serves 6 with 79 calories per serving.

MAXINE'S LOW-CAL LIKE MOM'S COOKED SALAD DRESSING

1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1 tablespoon salad oil
1 tablespoon mustard, prepared
1 cup water
4 tablespoons vinegar
Salt
White pepper
2 egg yolks

Mix sugar, flour, salad oil, mustard, salt, water and pepper together and cook, stirring constantly until mixture is slightly thickened. Beat egg yolks. Add hot mixture slowly, stirring constantly to blend. Pour mixture back into original cooking pan and return to heat and cook slowly for a few more minutes. Stir in vinegar, remove from heat and cool. This dressing may be used for many salads. Contains 15 one-tablespoon servings at 24 calories per serving.

Refrigerator freezer is important when cooking for a family of one

Cooking can be a wasteful and costly process for the single cook. Casseroles don't taste very good the fourth time around, fresh vegetables often can't be eaten up before they rot and some foods, like souffles, don't keep well for leftovers.

But there's a way for singles to enjoy the fancy flavors and economy of casseroles. The answer requires a small casserole dish, the refrigerator freezer and a good recipe which can be divided and frozen for later use.

To prepare a casserole for individual servings to be frozen, use only foods which will not lose their texture or taste in the freezer — tomato sauce, ground meats, vegetables like broccoli or spinach, and some cheeses are good.

This casserole recipe calls for a chicken breast to be stuffed with spinach and ricotta cheese and baked on a bed of rice. It's then topped with a tomato sauce that has been enhanced with chablis and mushrooms.

Stuffed Chicken Breasts en Casserole

STUFFED CHICKEN BREASTS EN CASSEROLE

1 bunch fresh spinach (about 8 ounces)
⅔ cup ricotta cheese
2 tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. nutmeg
2 whole boned chicken breasts (1½ to 1¾ pound each)
Seasoned salt and pepper
2 (8 ounce) cans tomato sauce
¼ cup chablis
1 (4 ounce) can sliced mushrooms, undrained
1 tsp. beef bouillon granules
2 cups cooked rice
1 Tbsp. minced parsley
4 to 6 pimiento stuffed olives, sliced

Pour boiling water over spinach in bowl; let stand 5 min. Drain; press very dry. Chop coarsely and combine in small bowl with ricotta, Parmesan, salt, pepper and nutmeg; mix well. Skin breasts, split into 4 pieces, pound with meat mallet to flatten. Sprinkle lightly with seasoned salt and pepper. Place spinach mixture in center of each. Roll up tightly. Place each in center of greased 1¾ cup shallow baking dish; set aside. Combine tomato sauce with chablis, mushrooms and beef bouillon. Combine rice, parsley, olives and half the sauce mixture. Spoon equal portions of rice mixture around sides of each stuffed breast; pour some of remaining sauce mixture over all. Bake at 400 degrees 25 to 30 minutes. Baste once or twice with remainder of sauce mixture. Makes 4 servings or if desired, serve 1 or 2, cover and freeze remainder to serve later.

Hints, helps by readers requested

Hello out there. Are you really there or is it just a fantasy of mine that people read this column? It would be fun to know. I'd like to know how you handle the problems that go along with holding a job and keeping a house.

What we need in this column is an exchange of ideas. There are a number of things you cook that I would never think of and lots of problem-solving approaches you use that would really help someone else if they knew about them.

In a few short weeks we'll be into September when many women will be trying a full-time job for the first time Let's all get together and lend encouragement. Send me your ideas and your recipes. If you have a lot to say, I'll even turn ove the whole column to you. We need to know that others are sharing our problems. Send whatever you have to me in care of The Herald, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

TODAY'S RECIPE uses soy beans, which are now being stocked by local supermarkets. They are usually on the shelf with all the other dried beans and rice. The more I work with these beans the more enthusiastic I am. They have a wonderfully satisfying "soul food" taste that is so much more than the bland flavor we are used to in beans. It's sort of nutty.

Soy beans are a complete protein food and as such are a good, low cost meat substitute. A pound of beans dry weight at a cost of about 55 cents will make a meal for six people.

THERE ARE TWO recipes here because if you cook the whole package, you're going to end up with a lot of beans. Follow the cooking directions on the package, being sure to include the step about boiling them in baking soda and water for 20 minutes. I have found that if I soak them 24 hours before cooking, I hate to cook them only about an hour after the soda water step Use a really big pot. They boil up all over the place, but it's worth the bother They are delicious!

This first recipe works well as a cold dish, the second is a complete meal using leftover meat, so plan a pot roast during the week.

SOY BEAN SALAD

3 cups cooked soy beans (½ pound dry beans)
1 pound can sliced green beans
½ cup sliced olives with pimiento
½ cup very thinly sliced onions
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon oregano
Pepper to taste
½ cup salad oil
Just mix it all together and serve. Makes enough for 6 people

BEANS 'N' MEAT

½ cup chopped bell pepper
½ cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ground cumin
3 cups cooked soy beans (½ pound dry weight)
Oil as needed
3 cups diced cooked meat (leftover pot roast
½ cup left over gravy or more
Saute first five ingredients in oil until pepper and onion are limp and beans are slightly brown. Add meat and gravy Heat through and correct seasonings It may need more salt or pepper depending on how your gravy was seasoned Serves 6.

Give blood, brothers.
It's so easy to give ... yet so precious. Help someone else with the gift of life. Today.

Cheese Souffle en Croute

Frozen foods pinch hit for cooks

When unexpected company comes, the imaginative hostess rummages through her freezer, comes out with some small French rolls, a package of frozen cheese souffle, ham slices and bacon In no time she's whipped together a cheese souffle en croute (cheese souffle in a crust) that looks as good as it sounds, tastes delicious and is amazingly easy to prepare

CHEESE SOUFFLE EN CROUTE

¼ cup melted butter or margarine
1 teaspoon Italian herb blend
8 small frozen French rolls
1 package (12 ounces) frozen cheese souffle thawed
½ cup chopped smoked ham
8 Slices crisp bacon, each slice broken in half

In a small bowl mix butter and herbs With a sharp knife, scoop out rolls, leaving a shell ½ inch thick (Use removed bread for a stuffing, to make croutons, bread pudding or bread crumbs) Brush each roll inside and out with butter mixture In a bowl mix cheese souffle and ham Place rolls on a cookie sheet Spoon cheese souffle mixture into each roll Bake in a preheated oven (350 degrees) for 30 to 35 minutes or until cheese is puffed and brown Top each roll with bacon and serve at once

It's fun to eat maple syrup, and we can thank the Indians from New England and the Great Lakes for teaching the early settlers how to get it. They tapped maple sugar trees by slashing the bark, on a slant, with their stone tomahawks From the sap that poured out they made sugar and syrup. Salt was scarce in the pioneer days of America, so maple syrup was a very important food to the Indians, who used it to season their wild rice, parched corn, squash, pumpkin and even boiled fish. But it took the white man to dream up a beverage called "Jersey milk." It's maple syrup mixed with milk and hard cider. Potent! Some say you're a sap to drink it.

Caribbean Bars

Butterscotch adds to banana bars

If you are looking for something just a little different but pleasing to nearly everyone, try these Caribbean bars. They are filled with butterscotch morsels, bananas and pecans.

Measurements are given in both metric and American Standard units. Usually dry ingredients are measured in grams in the metric system. But food and utensil manufacturers have developed cups and spoons for both liquid and dry ingredients to make conversion easier for cooks.

Cooking with metrics

CARIBBEAN BARS

625 milliliters or 2½ cups unsifted flour
5 milliliters or 1 tablespoon baking powder
3¾ milliliters or ¾ teaspoon salt
185 milliliters or ¾ cup butter, softened
375 milliliters or 1½ cups firmly packed brown sugar
5 milliliters or 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
3 eggs
250 milliliters or 1 cup fully ripened, mashed bananas
1 package (170 grams or 6 ounces) butterscotch morsels
250 milliliters or 1 cup chopped pecans

Preheat oven to 190 degrees Celsius (375 degrees Fahrenheit). In small bowl, combine flour, baking powder and salt; set aside. In large bowl, combine butter, brown sugar and vanilla extract; beat until creamy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Mix in bananas. Blend in flour mixture. Stir in butterscotch morsels and pecans. Spread evenly into greased 27.5 by 25 by 2.5 centimeter (15 by 10 by 1 inch) baking pan. Bake for 35 minutes. While still warm, drizzle top with glaze made from 185 milliliters (¾ cup) confectioners' sugar and 20 milliliters (4 teaspoons) water. Makes about 25 bars.

Array of kitchen gadgets shown

For those with an eye for kitchen gadgets, the recent National Housewares Exposition in Chicago was like a Christmas toyland.

Pretzel-making machines, electric crepe pans, coffee makers, hamburger appliances. . . the aisles were packed with new and not-so-new cooking aids.

"Consumer confidence in the economy's well-being during this presidential election year has accelerated throughout the past six months," said Dolph Zapfel, managing director of the sponsoring National Housewares Manufacturers Association. This "confidence-inspired spending of consumers" has resulted in midyear optimism among leaders of the $20 billion housewares business, he said.

"IT SEEMS THAT trends in housewares don't come and go. Instead, they come and grow, Zapfel said, citing the mushrooming growth of electric quick hamburger cookers, automatic electric drip coffeemakers, slow cookers and crepe pans.

Last July's Housewares Exposition had two electric quick hamburger cookers; this year there were more than a dozen — many of them double cookers to make two burgers at a time, and others with flip grids to fry bacon and eggs.

Last January there was only one electric crepe maker on display. At least half a dozen housewares manufacturers showed electric crepe pans this time.

Of special interest were the take-off items inspired by popular appliances. For example, a replacement carafe for automatic drip coffeemakers fits all popular brands of stand-type units.

AND ONE manufacturer displayed an oblong-shaped, electric slow cooker "plus" which also bakes, roasts, stews and grills. Its aluminum pot lifts off the heating base to become a serving piece, while the base turns into a mini-grill for cooking foods like eggs and bacon.

A mini-peanut butter maker has a control that turns automatically to help the flow of nuts into the grinding mechanism. And something called "Fry Baby" was designed for single people to deep fry foods.

Several displays related to food drying, a food preservation method growing in popularity. One manufacturer showed a "drying oven," which is merely a low-voltage, low-heat appliance with racks for the fruit and vegetables. A more enterprising entrepreneur from California was selling a screen window-type apparatus for outdoor drying.

CAST IRON cookware is making a big dent in the pots and pans market again — probably due to the Bicentennial.

And for those who are not handy with pins and needles, one company is marketing an egg piercer that punches a tiny hole in the egg shell to prevent boiled eggs from cracking.

Recipes gear for the grill

by RONALD E. COHEN

It is summer, when thoughts turn blithely to the backyard barbecue pit.

Many men who wouldn't dream of going near a stove during the winter months turn into cooking fools in summer.

They believe they have no peer when it comes to restling up a summer cookout.

Unfortunately, their horizons often are limited. Grab a steak, some hot dogs, some hamburgers or some chicken breasts, and toss them over the charcoals — or, increasingly, the gas or electric brazier.

Here are three different, delicious things you can do with chopped meat that will have your family crowning you "King of the Roast."

WINEBURGERS

Mix 2 pounds of ground beef with ½ cup each of burgundy wine and coarsely chopped stuffed green olives. Divide into 8 patties and cook as with regular hamburgers over hot coals about 3 minutes on each side, or to desired doneness. Serve on sesame seed hamburger buns.

PEANUTBURGERS

Mix 2 pounds of ground beef with ½ cup each of soft, fine breadcrumbs and chopped salted peanuts and 1 cup of smoky barbecue sauce. Form into 8 thick patties and cook as regular hamburgers, about 4 to 5 minutes each side, or to desired doneness. Brush with more barbecue sauce on both sides, serve on sesame seed hamburger buns.

GIANT TURNOVERS

Here's your shopping list for the best thing to happen to the basic hamburger since charcoal was invented.

Mix 2 pouds of ground chuck with 2 eggs, 1-½ teaspoons of seasoned salt, ¼ teaspoon each of seasoned pepper and garlic powder and 1 tablespoon of Worcestershire sauce. Divide into 6 portions.

On a sheet of wax paper, using a bowl or dish as a guide, draw a 7-inch circle. Place one meat portion in the center of the circle, then pat it down until it fills the circle. Spread the meat lightly with brown mustard. Using a total of 1 cup of diced cheddar cheese, and ½ cup each of iced pimiento and sour pickles, sprinkle 1/6 of each on half the patty, leaving about on inch at the edge.

Lift the waxed paper and fold the uncoated half of the meat onto the filled half. Press the edges together as tightly as possible to form a giant turnover.

Repeat with the remainder of the meat and fillings. Brush one side of each turnover with bottled smoky barbeque sauce. Cook over hot coals, turning once and brushing again with the sauce. Cook to desired doneness.

One of these will handle a normal appetite. The superhungry can consume two. Serve giant turnovers on a plate or split hero buns. The regular picnic items — beer, potato salad, coleslaw — go well.

One word of caution: Don't overstuff, or the meat will not be able to contain the goodies inside.

Muffins take advantage of seasonal blueberries

Blueberry season has arrived. Enjoy them at breakfast in Oatmeal Blueberry Muffins. If their eye-opening color doesn't wake you up, the taste will — especially combined with the toothsome texture the oats provide.

OATMEAL BLUEBERRY MUFFINS

1¼ cups quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
1 cup all-purpose flour
1/3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
1 egg
¼ cup vegetable oil
¾ cup blueberries

Combine oats, flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Add milk, egg and oil; mix just until dry ingredients are moistened. Fold in blueberries. Fill 12 greased medium-size muffin cups 2/3 full. Bake in preheated hot oven (425) about 20 to 25 minutes. Makes 1 dozen muffins.

Refrigerator freezer is important when cooking for a family of one

Cooking can be a wasteful and costly process for the single cook. Casseroles don't taste very good the fourth time around, fresh vegetables often can't be eaten up before they rot and some foods, like souffles, don't keep well for leftovers.

But there's a way for singles to enjoy the fancy flavors and economy of casseroles. The answer requires a small casserole dish, the refrigerator freezer and a good recipe which can be divided and frozen for later use.

To prepare a casserole for individual servings to be frozen, use only foods which will not lose their texture or taste in the freezer — tomato sauce, ground meats, vegetables like broccoli or spinach, and some cheeses are good.

This casserole recipe calls for a chicken breast to be stuffed with spinach and ricotta cheese and baked on a bed of rice. It's then topped with a tomato sauce that has been enhanced with chablis and mushrooms.

Stuffed Chicken Breasts en Casserole

STUFFED CHICKEN BREASTS EN CASSEROLE

1 bunch fresh spinach (about 8 ounces)
½ cup ricotta cheese
2 tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
¼ tsp. nutmeg
2 whole boned chicken breasts (½ to ¾ pound each)
Seasoned salt and pepper
2 (8 ounce) cans tomato sauce
¼ cup chablis
1 (4 ounce) can sliced mushrooms, undrained
1 tsp. beef bouillon granules
2 cups cooked rice
1 Tbsp. minced parsley
4 to 6 pimiento stuffed olives, sliced

Pour boiling water over spinach in bowl; let stand 5 min. Drain, press very dry. Chop coarsely and combine in small bowl with ricotta, Parmesan, salt, pepper and nutmeg; mix well. Skin breasts, split into 4 pieces, pound with meat mallet to flatten. Sprinkle lightly with seasoned salt and pepper. Place spinach mixture in center of each. Roll up tightly. Place each in center of greased 13" x 9" cup shallow baking dish; set aside. Combine tomato sauce with chablis, mushrooms and beef bouillon. Combine rice, parsley, olives and half the sauce mixture. Spoon equal portions of rice mixture around sides of each stuffed breast; pour some of remaining sauce mixture over all. Bake at 400 degrees 25 to 30 minutes. Baste once or twice with remainder of sauce mixture. Makes 4 servings or if desired, serve 1 or 2, cover and freeze remainder to serve later.

Still hoping for loans

NORTRAN gets reprieve for week

by LYNN ASINOF

The North Suburban Mass Transit District will continue to operate buses in the North and Northwest suburbs for at least one more week in hopes that local communities will provide needed operating funds through emergency loans.

The NORTRAN Board Wednesday night voted unanimously to ask the 21 NORTRAN communities to come up with $300,000 to fund bus operations through Sept. 7.

Des Plaines, one of the three largest NORTRAN communities is being asked to contribute $37,000. Wheeling is being asked for $8,300.

An estimated $100,000 is needed to keep the system operating past July 30. Without the funds the district, which serves 15,000 daily riders, will be forced to close its doors. A meeting is scheduled Wednesday to determine whether continued operations are possible.

THE REGIONAL Transportation Authority created the financial crisis when it failed to adopt its 1976-77 budget June 30 as required by law. Suburban directors blocked budget approval in an effort to force the resignation of Chairman Milton Pikarsky. This stopped the flow of needed subsidies to NORTRAN.

Although the budget was approved this week as part of a compromise agreement, the RTA cannot spend any part of its $177 million budget until the courts rule on the validity of the document.

NORTRAN Chairman Bart T. Murphy said a court ruling could come "anywhere from early next week to several months."

"The money to pay these bills is lying dormant in the bank. The monies are there and should be flowing to the carriers," Murphy said, noting the communities will be paid back once RTA funds are available.

NORTRAN EXECUTIVE Director Joseph DiJohn said Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel will support NORTRAN's funding request. A special city council meeting will be scheduled to consider the request, DiJohn said.

"He's been one of our best supporters," DiJohn said of Behrel.

The bulk of NORTRAN's service in the Northwest suburbs is in Des Plaines. The district also operates a commuter-feeder line from Buffalo Grove to Arlington Heights and a limited service from Wheeling to the Loop. A small portion of Mount Prospect also is served by NORTRAN buses.

Murphy said several village boards will meet early next week to vote on the emergency laons.

"BY NEXT Wednesday we should have a pretty good idea if the major contributors will provide the needed funds."

"If they don't we're right back to facing a shutdown next week," he said.

LOLA, THE DEVIL'S assistant in the musical comedy "Damn Yankees," invades the locker room to tempt baseball star Joe Hardy. Lola is played by Barbara Rasmussen and Hardy is played by Joe Schlanger in the play which will be psesented at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at Maine North High School Theatre, 9511 Harrison St., Des Plaines.

$12,000 still needed for center for the elderly

A Des Plaines senior citizens center will open in September if community groups and organizations rally to pay the estimated $12,000 needed to operate it for one year.

David Markworth, director of the Des Plaines Park District, Wednesday said a 14-member citizens committee has been organizing efforts to open the center in an old parsonage leased to the park district by Immanuel Lutheran Church, 1396 Thacker St. The church has leased the building to the park district for $1 a year.

"The committee, which has a broad representation of service groups and the senior citizen community here, has been meeting regularly for the last month," said Markworth. "They have organized several subcommittees which are studying what will be needed."

ALTHOUGH THE CITY has a senior citizen program, it currently does not have a center where the elderly can meet or take part in recreational programs.

Markworth said the committee has drawn up a rough budget detailing remodeling, furnishings and operational expenses. The committee estimates it will cost $4,000 for utilities, part of which the park district has agreed to pay.

Another $5,000 is needed for furnishings, including tables, chairs, a television, refrigerator and other appliances. Finally, about $2,500 to $3,000 is needed to remodel the building.

"These are really ball park figures," said Markworth, "We're trying to see how much of this will be donated before we actually know how much money we will need. Some of the expenses, such as furnishings, will be a one-time thing."

THE DES PLAINES Rotary Club already has agreed to contribute $2,000 to the cause, Markworth said. "When we have a better idea of what we'll need, we will start soliciting for money and articles which can be used in the center."

The church donated use of the four-bedroom house because the congregation is building a new house for its pastor, Rev. James Bouman. Although specifics still must be worked out, Markworth said the facility probably will have a TV room, crafts room and reading room, and will be equipped with card tables and pool tables.

Shuffleboard courts, picnic tables and horseshoe facilities also may be placed in the back yard he said.

"This is shaping up to be a real community event," said Markworth. "The center is something that's really needed."

Restructure of Dist. 59 evaluated

The reorganization of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59's administration, instituted this year, has placed more responsibility at the local school level, school officials said Wednesday night.

Supt. Roger Bardwell Wednesday night discussed the district's decentralization plan, which went into effect during the 1975-76 school year.

The plan recently has been criticized by parents of special education students who feared it would disrupt current programs.

"Decentralized managegment allows decisions to be made by persons closest to the problems," he said.

Under the reorganization, two levels of central office personnel -- assistant superintendent and consultants -- were replaced by the administrative council and school clusters.

THE ADMINISTRATIVE council, which includes principals and central office staff, acts as an advisory group to the superintendent and reviews district curriculum changes and resources.

A school cluster exists for each of the five junior high school areas and includes the feeder elementary schools and junior high school principals. Each cluster decides how the special services staff, such as music teachers and learning disability teachers, assigned to the cluster should be allocated to the individual schools.

Principals, instead of coordinators to the central office level, have been assigned the responsibility of overseeing 13 major subject areas. Specialists will be hired to conduct teacher workshops, rather than maintaining a person full-time.

Special education classes will remain under the jurisdiction of the central office.

ROBERT BROWER, associate superintendent, said the new organization has "reduced the amount of bureaucracy, reduced the amount of personnel, and reduced costs." The district has estimated a savings of about $100,000 in administration expenses through the reorganization.

Brower said schools can individualize the methods used to teach the districtwide curriculum but they will be monitored through the administrative council.

Each school also will be given about $35 per pupil next year for materials and supplies. Under the former organization, principals had bargained with the administration to receive such funds.

Tax hike referendum seen

Deficit looms in Harper budget

Harper College will spend $900,000 more than it receives in income during the 1976-77 school year and will need a tax increase in 1977 to keep from depleting its cash reserves, according to the 1976-77 tentative budget.

The budget, which will be reviewed by the Harper Board of Trustees tonight, calls for operating budget expenditures of $14,056,080, up 21.1 per cent from 1975-76 expenditures. Projected 1976-77 revenues will total $13,151,000, up 18.5 per cent from the projected 1975-76 revenues.

A 5.5-cent per $100 equalized assessed valuation tax increase will be needed in 1977, said William Mann, vice president of administrative services. Without an increase, which would have to be approved in a referendum, the college would deplete its reserves in the next two or three years he said. The 5.5-cent increase would add $5.50 to the tax bill on a home assessed at $10,000.

USE OF $905,080 from the college's invested cash surplus will balance the 1976-77 budget. However, when added to the $508,340 in reserve that the college used to balance its 1975-76 budget, Harper will spend more than $1 million than it received in income for the 1975-77 period.

The bulk of the college's expenditures will be made in its education fund, which covers costs such as teachers' salaries, administrative costs and student services.

Tuition is the major source of the anticipated $9,407,000 education fund revenues. The budget projects that 38.5 cents of each dollar in education-fund revenues will come from tuition. Tuition has been raised from $14 to $15 per credit hour for the coming year.

Local taxes account for 25.7 cents of every dollar, while state aid accounts for 25.1 cents.

The cost per student will increase by 4.5 per cent from $1,345 to $1,406.

Aid from the state will increase $464,000 over last year, totaling $4,184,000 for the college's education and building funds. State aid as a percentage of total income is declining however, Mann said. He said for schools it seems, "The recession is now."

MANN SAID THE college can expect state aid to decline while expenses continue to rise. That situation makes the projected 1977 tax increase necessary, he said.

The college's building funds expenditures are projected at $2,353,180, a 12.9 per cent increase over 1975-76 expenses. Expendetures in the bond and interest fund will increase 130 per cent to $1,410,300. The large increase is attributable to retirement of debts and interest on bonds.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administrative center, A Building on the Harper campus, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

Murphy said several village boards will meet early next week to vote on the emergency laons.

"BY NEXT Wednesday we should have a pretty good idea if the major contributors will provide the needed funds."

"If they don't we're right back to facing a shutdown next week," he said.

$12,000 still needed for center for the elderly

A Des Plaines senior citizens center will open in September if community groups and organizations rally to pay the estimated $12,000 needed to operate it for one year.

David Markworth, director of the Des Plaines Park District, Wednesday said a 14-member citizens committee has been organizing efforts to open the center in an old parsonage leased to the park district by Immanuel Lutheran Church, 1396 Thacker St. The church has leased the building to the park district for $1 a year.

"The committee, which has a broad representation of service groups and the senior citizen community here, has been meeting regularly for the last month," said Markworth. "They have organized several subcommittees which are studying what will be needed."

ALTHOUGH THE CITY has a senior citizen program, it currently does not have a center where the elderly can meet or take part in recreational programs.

Markworth said the committee has drawn up a rough budget detailing remodeling, furnishings and operational expenses. The committee estimates it will cost $4,000 for utilities, part of which the park district has agreed to pay.

Another $5,000 is needed for furnishings, including tables, chairs, a television, refrigerator and other appliances. Finally, about $2,500 to $3,000 is needed to remodel the building.

"These are really ball park figures," said Markworth, "We're trying to see how much of this will be donated before we actually know how much money we will need. Some of the expenses, such as furnishings, will be a one-time thing."

THE DES PLAINES Rotary Club already has agreed to contribute $2,000 to the cause, Markworth said. "When we have a better idea of what we'll need, we will start soliciting for money and articles which can be used in the center."

The church donated use of the four-bedroom house because the congregation is building a new house for its pastor, Rev. James Bouman. Although specifics still must be worked out, Markworth said the facility probably will have a TV room, crafts room and reading room, and will be equipped with card tables and pool tables.

Shuffleboard courts, picnic tables and horseshoe facilities also may be placed in the back yard he said.

"This is shaping up to be a real community event," said Markworth. "The center is something that's really needed."

Restructure of Dist. 59 evaluated

The reorganization of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59's administration, instituted this year, has placed more responsibility at the local school level, school officials said Wednesday night.

Supt. Roger Bardwell Wednesday night discussed the district's decentralization plan, which went into effect during the 1975-76 school year.

The plan recently has been criticized by parents of special education students who feared it would disrupt current programs.

"Decentralized management allows decisions to be made by persons closest to the problems," he said.

Under the reorganization, two levels of central office personnel — assistant superintendent and consultants — were replaced by the administrative council and school clusters.

THE ADMINISTRATIVE council, which includes principals and central office staff, acts as an advisory group to the superintendent and reviews district curriculum changes and resources.

A school cluster exists for each of the five junior high school areas and includes the feeder elementary schools and junior high school principals. Each cluster decides how the special services staff, such as music teachers and learning disability teachers, assigned to the cluster should be allocated to the individual schools.

Principals, instead of coordinators to the central office level, have been assigned the responsibility of overseeing 13 major subject areas. Specialists will be hired to conduct teacher workshops, rather than maintaining a person full-time.

Special education classes will remain under the jurisdiction of the central office.

ROBERT BROWER, associate superintendent, said the new organization has "reduced the amount of bureaucracy, reduced the amount of personnel, and reduced costs." The district has estimated a savings of about $100,000 in administration expenses through the reorganization.

Brower said schools can individualize the methods used to teach the districtwide curriculum but they will be monitored through the administrative council.

Each school also will be given about $35 per pupil next year for materials and supplies. Under the former organization, principals had bargained with the administration to receive such funds.

Tax hike referendum seen

Deficit looms in Harper budget

Harper College will spend $900,000 more than it receives in income during the 1976-77 school year and will need a tax increase in 1977 to keep from depleting its cash reserves, according to the 1976-77 tentative budget.

The budget, which will be reviewed by the Harper Board of Trustees tonight, calls for operating budget expenditures of $14,056,080, up 21.1 per cent from 1975-76 expenditures. Projected 1976-77 revenues will total $13,151,000, up 18.5 per cent from the projected 1975-76 revenues.

A 5.5-cent per $100 equalized assessed valuation tax increase will be needed in 1977, said William Mann, vice president of administrative services. Without an increase, which would have to be approved in a referendum, the college would deplete its reserves in the next two or three years he said. The 5.5-cent increase would add $5.50 to the tax bill on a home assessed at $10,000.

USE OF $905,680 from the college's invested cash surplus will balance the 1976-77 budget. However, when added to the $508,340 in reserve that the college used to balance its 1975-76 budget, Harper will spend more than $1 million than it received in income for the 1975-77 period.

The bulk of the college's expenditures will be made in its education fund, which covers costs such as teachers' salaries, administrative costs and student services.

Tuition is the major source of the anticipated $9,407,000 education fund revenues. The budget projects that 38.5 cents of each dollar in education-fund revenues will come from tuition. Tuition has been raised from $14 to $15 per credit hour for the coming year.

Local taxes account for 25.7 cents of every dollar, while state aid accounts for 25.1 cents.

The cost per student will increase by 4.5 per cent from $1,345 to $1,406.

Aid from the state will increase $464,000 over last year, totaling $4,184,000 for the college's education and building funds. State aid as a percentage of total income is declining however, Mann said. He said for schools it seems, "The recession is now."

MANN SAID THE college can expect state aid to decline while expenses continue to rise. That situation makes the projected 1977 tax increase necessary, he said.

The college's building funds expenditures are projected at $2,353,180, a 12.9 per cent increase over 1975-76 expenses. Expendetures in the bond and interest fund will increase 130 per cent to $1,410,300. The large increase is attributable to retirement of debts and interest on bonds.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administrative center, A Building on the Harper campus, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

Glenbrook annex would net Oakton $900,000 yearly

The Glenbrook High School Dist. 225 Board of Education has formally requested that it be annexed to the Oakton College District, a move which if approved, would bring Oakton $900,000 a year in added taxes and allow for program expansion.

The request for annexation must be approved by the Illinois Community College Board, a process which will take between three and 12 months, Oakton Pres. William A. Kochnline said.

Annexation means "gratification and anticipation of expanded monetary problems which we are well able to handle," he said.

Koehnline was referring to the fact that Oakton will lose $175,000 next spring if Glenbrook becomes part of the district by December.

The loss will result from Oakton's loss of charge-back fees currently paid by Glenbrook so that Glenbrook students can attend Oakton. Koehnline said approximately 26 per cent of Oakton's 5,751 students enrolled in credit programs live out of the district, and one-fourth of those live in the Glenbrook district.

Oakton will not receive tax revenues from Glenbrook until next summer, assuming annexation was approved by Dec. 31, 1976, Koehnline said.

THE LONGER the state college board waits to approve annexation, the more it will cost Oakton to educate Glenbrook students before tax revenues begin to cover costs, he said.

Koehnline's estimate of from three months to a year for the approval process to be completed includes a 30 day period when district residents may file petitions calling for a referendum on the annexation.

It will be at least two or three years before the majority of Glenbrook students attending community colleges are at Oakton, because many are enrolled at other community colleges, Koehnline said.

The Oakton Board of Trustees this week approved an agreement that will permit Glenbrook residents enrolled in other community colleges to complete their studies at colleges other than Oakton in the event of annexation.

KOEHNLINE SAID the addition of Glenbrook to the Oakton district will mean Oakton can offer programs that it presently does not have the community resources or sufficient student demand to offer.

"We will be able to serve the residents of Niles and Maine Township as well as the residents of Northfield Township (the Glenbrook district) better by having the larger population base and the larger financial base," Kuehnline said.

The site of Oakton's permanent campus, which will be built on Central Road west of the Tri-State Tollway, will be in the center of the Oakton district if Glenbrook is annexed, Koehnline said, so annexation will not necessitate building a satelite campus for Glenbrook students.

Annexation also will not increase the number of full-time faculty members in the next two years because Oakton usually adjusts its faculty to increased enrollment by hiring part-time instructors, he said. This procedure would change if enrollment increased by more than 10 per cent in one year, but Koehnline does not foresee annexation causing such a jump.

The annexation move by the Glenbrook Board of Education increases the likelihood that Evanston Township Dist. 202 will take similar action, Koehnline said.

"We will receive them with open arms whenever they wish to come," he said. Staying out of Oakton's district will be too expensive for Evanston, he said. A high school district that is not annexed to a community college district must pay the college the difference between in-district and out-district tuition for each of its students attending the college.

Special sewer levy to be studied

Des Plaines officials will meet tonight to consider a controversial proposal to assess 60 residents on the city's West Side for a $215,000 water main and sanitary sewer construction project.

The city council's water and sewer committee will consider the matter at 8 p.m. in the Des Plaines Civic Center, 1420 Miner St.

The special assessment, which was recommended by the Des Plaines Board of Local Improvements in May, has met stiff opposition from the residents who would be assessed for the improvements.

The property where the improvements are proposed is bounded on the north by Lincoln Avenue, on the south by Oakton Street, on the east by Ridge Lane and on the west by Elmhurst Road.

The area has been part of the city for some time, but much of it still is served by wells and septic systems. Sanitary sewers are lacking throughout the area, but only Lincoln Avenue and Short Terrace are without water mains.

Many of those opposing the improvements object to the cost and contend they are not necessary. BOLI members, however, say the work is necessary to eliminate health and flooding problems in the area.

Harold Kehrer, a member of BOLI, estimates that residents would be assessed about $25 per front foot for sanitary sewers and $25 per front foot for water mains. A property owner with 75 feet of frontage needing both sanitary sewers and water mains would be assessed about $3,750.

The water and sewer committee after reviewing the proposal will make a recommendation to the city council. Before the city can move ahead with the project, however, the equity of the special assessment must be approved by the Cook County Circuit Court.

Parks approve $1.3 million budget

The Des Plaines Park Board has passed a 1976-77 budget of $1,319,886 that is six per cent higher than last year's and reflects a 1.5 per cent increase in the park district's tax rate.

David Markworth, director of parks and recreation, said the budget, which is about $83,000 higher than last year's, is up primarily because of employe pay raises and the cost of liability insurance, employe retirement programs and programs for the handicapped.

The park board also has passed a 1976-77 appropriations ordinance of $1,434,406. The appropriations ordinance outlines the total amount of tax revenue available to the district during the fiscal year.

"The appropriations ordinance always is a little higher than the budget," Markworth said. "That way we can spent a little more money if something unforeseen comes up."

MARKWORTH SAID the park district tax rate this year will increase from 29.7 cents to 30.2 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

A property owner with a home assessed at $10,000 will pay $30.20 in property taxes to the park district this year compared to $29.70 last year.

Markworth said the park district's assessed valuation, which has been set at $338,719,287, is up about 1.5 per cent over last year.

The new budget reflects a 5.5 per cent salary increase given to the park district's 25 employes May 1. The raises will cost the park district about $48,000 a year.

Park district employes received a 6 per cent increase in 1975.

Man, 20, hurt in accident on Rand Road

A 20-year-old Des Plaines suffered minor injuries when his van was struck by a car in Arlington Heights early Wednesday.

Police said Jack M. Hays, 1344 Fargo Ave., had pulled out of Clarence Avenue onto Rand Road at 12:11 a.m. when his van was struck by a car driven by Kevin C. McCormick, 28, of 661 Baldwin Rd., Palatine.

Police said Hays drove to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, where he was treated for swelling of his right jaw.

McCormick was charged with driving without headlights and driving while intoxicated. He is to appear Aug. 6 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Vargo laid to rest with full honors

by JOE SWICKARD

Arlington Heights Police Patrolman Alan J Vargo was buried Wednesday.

It was three days and a few hours since Vargo, 24, was struck down while directing traffic around an accident early Sunday.

The notice was sent out over police teletypes onday afternoon Almost 100 cars from more than 80 departments answered and formed Vargo's escort

Led by five motorcycles, the procession rolled past with Mars lights twirling silently toward the church.

It was something not often seen — something not many want to see repeated

A POLICEMAN keeping the route clear said, "Have you ever seen anything like it? It's unbelievable."

More than a mile long, the line of cars rolled through Arlington Heights, cars from Blue Island, Oak Park, Chicago, Palatine, Des Plaines, Kane County, Aurora and Joliet.

The the hearse followed by the family cars came into view. Vargo's wife of 10 months, Teri, was barely visible as the family surrounded her in the big limousine.

Paramedics from the Arlington Heights Fire Dept., who had fought Sunday to save Vargo's life, passed by.

"VARGO'S PARTNERS, 40 patrolmen, stood at attention in the church driveway. Six others in dress uniforms and white gloves lifted him from the hearse. His muted bronze casket was covered with the village flag.

Inside, three priests, one from his old parish in Wilmette, celebrated the funeral mass. Men stared to stop the blinking and what that would bring.

The procession to the cemetery went through the village, past the municipal building, its entrance draped in purple and Vargo's star, 162, above the door.

By the time the last mourner's car passed the municipal building, the lead car was at Golf and Algonquin roads.

ALGONQUIN ROAD rises as it approaches St. Michael the Archangel Cemetery and the line of flashing lights blended into the shortened horizon.

It took more than 10 minutes for the escort to enter the cemetery and park four-abreast. Members of the honor guard raised their night sticks as Vargo's casket was carried past.

The priest's words were carried and lost in the wind A police radio was crackling with a call as the prayers were read.

The cars, lights now still, left the cemetery.

The family — an older member now turning her head in tears — remained.

Even while the squads had entered the cemetery, one had suddenly peeled off, siren activated. Even then, the work went on.

2 men charged with lumber theft

Palatine police early Wednesday arrested two area men who allegedly stole lumber from a construction site in the village.

Randall W. Seiler, 25, of 667 S. Middleton Ave , Palatine, and Keith L. Michehl, 18, of 1543 Walnut Ave., Des Plaines, were charged with stealing two 2-by-12-foot planks from a construction site at 850 W. Gilbert Ave., police said.

A police patrol reportedly spotted the pair loading planks into a van at the site. Police said Michehl fled on foot, and Seiler drove off in his van.

Police said they stopped the van in front of Seiler's home and arrested Seiler Another police patrol apprehended Michael at the corner of Hunting Drive and Middleton Avenue, police said

A representative of the Gilbert Avenue developer signed complaints against Seiler and Michehl, charging them with theft of goods valued at less than $150, police said.

Seiler and Michehl were released on $1,000 bond each and ordered to appear Aug. 12 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Lincolnwood man facing 3 charges

A Lincolnwood man was arrested by Des Plaines police Tuesday for possession of marijuana, unlawful use of a weapon and defacing the serial numbers of a firearm.

Police stopped a vehicle driven by Ralph Nagrodess, 19, Lincolnwood, at 2 a.m. at the corner of Potter and Dempster streets for having a loud muffler, police said.

Police then searched the car and found a bag of what later proved to be 20 grams of marijuana. In the trunk, police found a .22-caliber revolver with its serial numbers scratched out, police said.

Investigators also found 51 bullets for the gun, a holster and a pipe believed used to smoke marijuana, police said. Nagrodess was released on bond.

Residents hatch schemes to avoid sprinkling ban

Elk Grove Village residents are forbidden by law to sprinkle their lawns, but some residents have come up with their own alternative "schemes" for watering

One method led to the firing Tuesday of two truck drivers for Lawrence & Ahlman Inc., a landscaping company in Gilberts, Ill.

Richard Hults, assistant to the president of Lawrence & Ahlman, said the drivers were fired after it was discovered they had been watering backyards in Elk Grove Village while they were supposed to be watering new sod for Cook County along Devon Avenue, and Rohlwing and Nerge roads.

"THIS WAS NOT sanctioned by the management here and that is why we have two ex-truck drivers," Hults said. He said the residents allegedly approached the truck drivers with the request for water, offering to pay $5 and $10.

No village law was broken apparently by the "spray scheme," according to Village Administrative Asst. Garry E Parrin. The water was taken from a forest preserve reservoir and not village fire hydrants. The watering has stopped, however

A second method, called dishonest by Trustee Ronald L. Chernick, involves cheating to obtain new lawn sprinkling permits.

Chernick said he found instances in which residents put in only a small patch of new sod so they could obtain the permits and illegally sprinkle their entire lawns for up to 15 days. He said permits also were issued for shrubs, when they should not have been.

The village engineering department has begun in-person checks of lawns for which new lawn permits are being sought and has revoked several permits. Also, permits are no longer being issued for shrub watering.

CHERNICK SAID he particularly questioned new lawn permits requested for the older portions of the village where lawns should be well established.

Another sprinkling source is the backyard well, Village Mgr. Charles A. Willis said. Willis said he has received several requests asking if such private wells are permitted.

Trustee Theodore J. Staddler said surface water, usable for everything but drinking, can be obtained by driving a spike about 10 feet into the ground and attaching a pump at a cost of about $250.

Village Atty. Edward C. Hofert said such "water diggings" could not be prohibited as long as they did not interfere with the village's water supplies. Such interference is unlikely because the village draws its water from at least 1,000 feet below ground.

Assistant Village Engineer Pete Kaleta said the village's subdivision ordinance does require the village engineer to approve well construction.

Water rate hike bid draws residents' opposition

The president of the Euclid-Lake Homeowners Assn. and another Mount Prospect resident testified Wednesday before the Illinois Commerce Commission against a water and sewer rate increase sought by Citizens Utilities Co.

Marie L. Caylor, association president, presented several written customer complaints as evidence opposing the rate increase request. The complaints, accompanied by sworn affidavits, ranged from billing problems to the presence of impurities such as rust and oil in water.

"Naturally none of us approve of or favor the increases being asked," Mrs. Caylor said. "The rust problem has been a very major one and water odor continues to plague people both in the Waycinden area (near Des Plaines) and our area. These are problems which we believe must definitely be corrected certainly before any increases are granted."

CITIZENS UTILITIES, which serves about 2,300 residents in Mount Prospect's New Town area, earlier this year asked for a two-pronged rate increase totaling 70 per cent. The firm first requested an increase to offset its 1974 deficit estimated at $634,000.

A second increase is being sought to cover the investor-owned utlity's future costs. Walter J. Larson, general manager for the utility at the hearing stood by his previous justification for the higher rates. He said additional manpower needs, inflation and rising cost of chemicals make the request necessary.

If the commission approves the first rate hike, residents now paying $1.31 a month for 1,000 gallons of water would pay $1.81 a month. Should the second increase be granted, customers now using less than 8,000 gallons of water a month would be billed $2.25 per 1,000 gallons. Sewer rates are expected to nearly double.

Mrs. Caylor admitted she has observed two improvements in Citizens Utilities' service since the firm's last rate hike in 1974. "They have provided us with return envelopes for our bills and meter readers now wear emblems on their shirts for identification," she said.

THE COMMERCE Commission in February ordered the firm to improve water quality and customer service after a 14-month investigation showed the water contained rust, sand, oil and other impurities.

"People wouldn't object to an increase if it was a reasonable request and only if the quality of the water services were good," said Charles E. Frieberg, 1618 Burning Bush Ln., a second Mount Prospect resident offering opposing testimony.

"I can understand it will require additional monies for improvements, but under the present conditions of bad water and sewer service, increases are unjustified," Frieberg said.

Frieberg presented a water sample from his tap as evidence.

"First they must improve their services, then ask for the rate hike. They're trying to improve their profits without doing anything for their customers," he said. "Hopefully after today's meeting, the commerce commission will be aware of the fact that citizens are concerned."

Commerce Commission Examiner Mark Goldstein said more evidence has to be filed, customer complaints have to be reviewed and further hearings will be held before the commission rules on the rate increase request. Citizens Utilities filed its rate increase request in February.

The ICC will hear further testimony Aug. 5. The commerce commission will hear attorney's final arguments Sept. 1 and 2 and a final ruling on the rake hike request is expected Sept. 29.

"The way they're being presented," Larson said, "until we review these written complaints, I can't say whether they are valid or not, and if they are valid, when they were valid."

Slough's future embroiled in debate

by DIANE MERMIGAS

It is difficult to imagine one of nature's quiet refuges in the Northwest suburbs, a marshy, 27-acre slough in Prospect Heights, being the center of controversy.

It is a tranquil place amid the surrounding development that provides sanctuary for a variety of creatures — fish, muskrat, frogs, fowl and insects.

There is life in the thick undergrowth, cattails and muddy waters. Nature's island in the sprawling suburbs is a place to spend peaceful moments fishing, boating and walking.

The area has been a center of controversy in the past. Disputes have arisen between residents and conservation groups wishing to preserve the slough and developers who would rather see it the focal point of a development.

Efforts are afoot by the Prospect Heights Park Board to preserve the area with the support of those who make their homes on its shores.

"They are tearing down so much today that they don't even realize the importance of leaving some open space to nature," said Barbara Harris, 104 Mandel Ln., and a resident of the newly incorporated community who is concerned about the future of the slough.

The wetland, just west of Elmhurst Road and spreading northward past Willow Road, has special meaning to Mrs. Harris. Her parents have lived the past 30 years just a block away from the slough where she played as a child.

TODAY, MRS. Harris brings her three children to the slough to observe nature whenever she can.

The southern half of the slough, south of Willow Road and west of Hillside Avenue, is where Mrs. Harris and her childhood friends used to play. It is heavily vegetated and held by a trust at the Maywood Proviso State Bank, Maywood.

The Prospect Heights Park District filed a condemnation suit in 1974 to acquire that part of the slough. The district has received an Illinois Dept. of Conservation grant to help purchase the property if it is acquired.

The suit has been delayed in Cook County Circuit Court and attorneys for the park district are not sure when the case will be resolved.

The northern half of the slough, north of Willow Road and bounded on the west by Hillcrest Drive, is known as Hillcrest Lake and is owned by the Hillcrest Lake Homeowners Assn.

Area residents purchased the 13-acres more than 10 years ago to keep it out of the hands of developers.

The park district has made advances toward purchasing the lake, but it has not filed a condemnation suit for the northern half of the slough.

The park district owns 1.5 acres adjacent to the southern half of the slough off of Elmhurst Road. The Prospect Heights chapter of the Izaak Walton League constructed an $11,000 nature shelter there in 1975.

The league and other community groups, government agencies such as the park district and area residents have continually united to preserve the slough.

IT OFTEN HAS been a battle, not only against developers, but against the ravages of sewage overflow, soil erosion and dumping that could endanger the slough's wildlife.

Those with a technical understanding of the land say the slough is a "sponge" that soaks up storm runoff from the land around it rather than allowing the water to flood lowlying areas downstream. The slough is a link in the McDonald Creek tributary system that drains into the Des Plaines River.

But those whose homes border the slough say it is a place of tranquility that provides recreation and outdoor education.

"The people here are very concerned about the slough. It provides us with a magnificant view from our front rooms and kitchens. The small animals that crawl out onto our lawns once in awhile are more an asset than a "liability" said Eugene Bachara, 9 Hillside Ave.

"BUT, THE MOST rewarding thing is that it provides little boys, like my own, with a Huckleberry Finn-Tom Sawyer place to go barefoot and fish and sail a raft," he said.

Park district officials say they would like to make sure children in years to come have the same chance.

"At most, we might put in a few simple piers, maybe a walking and bicycling path around the edge. But, the park district just wants to preserve the slough and protect it," said William Kuhns, park board commissioner.

Food co-op to rent Dist. 26 room

A food cooperative organization will rent one classroom in Park View School, 805 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect in the 1976-77 school year.

The River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education has approved the rental of one classroom to the Good People's Food Co-op, currently based at Maryville Academy in Des Plaines.

The food co-op will pay the district $2,698 for the year, based on $3.50 per square foot. The co-op has 100 members and has operated in the area for several years.

PARK VIEW School was closed by the board at the end of 1975-76 school year to help offset declining enrollment and predicted budget deficits.

The food co-op is Park View's second tenant. The board agreed earlier to rent three classrooms to a Montessori school at a cost of $8,000.

Board member William Haase said rental fees from the two tenants will cover the cost of maintaining the building, which is estimated at about $10,000 for 1976-77.

"Anything we lease after tonight (Tuesday) will result in income for the district," Haase said. "At worst, there will be no economic cost to the district and at best, it will result in a profit."

Park View still has 14 classrooms available for rent.

Martin Rosinski, chairman of the citizens' committee in charge of the Park View rental, said several groups are still interested in leasing portions on the school. The groups include religious educational academies and medical personnel looking for space for a clinic.

Cleary named Plainfield chief

Mari Cleary is the new principal of Plainfield School, 1850 Plainfield Dr.

The Des Plaines Dist. 62 Board of Education appointed her to the post after a month-long search and screening of 12 candidates.

"Everyone feels that she's an outstanding teacher and there's no reason to think she won't be an outstanding principal," said Stuart Kusten, board president.

Kusten said Mrs. Cleary's experience at Plainfield, where she has taught sixth grade since 1969, was a factor in her selection.

Mrs. Cleary will replace Walter, who has been assigned to Iroquois Junior High School.

A Loyola University graduate, Mrs. Cleary served as a principal for two years in Lombard and a teaching assistant principal for six years in Hoffman Estates. Her teaching career began in 1956 when she taught in Chicago.

Water rate hike is 'only seed money': Zerkle

by LINDA PUNCH

Wheeling Village Mgr. Terry L. Zerkle Wednesday night said a proposed water rate increase would provide "only seed money" for improving the water system.

Zerkle told the 14 persons attending a water rate hearing that "the proposed rate adjustment won't in itself finance the total improvements" to the water system.

Village officials have recommended an 80 per cent increase to upgrade the village water system.

Zerkle urged village trustees to approve a water rate increase as soon as possible. "These improvements are necessary for the health and safety of the residents. The time to initiate them is now," he said.

Zerkle said residents still will pay a reasonable water rate if the rate is raised to 90 cents per 1,000 gallons.

The current rate is 50 cents per 1,000 gallons.

"IF YOU COMPARE that rate to other items you consume in the home, you'll find the village utilities are the lowest you can pay," he said.

Village officials estimate the average resident will use 20,000 gallons of water every three months at a cost of $17.50. Under the proposed rate the average user would pay $25.50 every three months.

Thomas Markus, assistant village manager, said the water rate increase would provide an additional $280,000 a year for water system improvements.

The village is reviewing water system improvements that would cost an estimated $5 million.

Some residents attending the hearing said they were opposed to the proposed 80 per cent rate increase. One resident said Wheeling taxpayers are "paying to supply water improvements that should have been carried out" when new developments were annexed to the village.

Helen Cason, 1056 Valley Stream Dr., questioned why the water system had not been improved earlier.

"I wonder if any consideration was given to the water problem before all the industry and apartment buildings came in," she said.

Private drive care opposed

Wheeling officials are recommending the village not take over maintenance of private streets in townhouse and condominium apartment developments.

In a report to the village board, Thomas Markus, assistant village manager, said the village staff does "not feel that the advantages of taking over these drives outweigh the disdvantages." The report was prepared by Markus and Larry Oppenheimer, director of public works.

Markus said the village could expect increased costs if the board agreed to provide maintenance for the private drives. He cited higher maintenance costs, including increased expenses for personnel, supplies and materials.

"We have determined that of the 15 planned developments in Wheeling, there would be an additional 17.6 miles of streets added. If all drives were taken over by the village, at least three more men would be needed and at least three more trucks," he said.

MARKUS SAID THE village also could expect increased costs for purchasing additional equipment and for street improvements in the planned developments.

"The village could expect increased liability for the streets. The increased frequency of incidents would have an effect on our insurance rates," he said.

Wheeling has 30.7 miles of streets maintained by the village at an annual cost of about $2,000 a mile, Markus said. The maintenance costs include street sweeping, snow plowing, salting, patching, tree care and repairs caused by accidents.

Wheeling officials, however, cited several advantages if the village assumed ownership of the private drives, including "absolute control over these streets." Markus said the village could set parking requirements and speed limits without the agreement now required between the homeowners' association and the village.

The quality of surface repairs to the drives and catch basins also would be controlled by the village, which has no jurisdiction over private drives.

The village takeover of private streets also would be more economical for homeowners in the private developments, Markus said.

Village trustees will discuss the report at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Driver charged with recklessness

A Wheeling man was arrested for reckless driving Tuesday after he drove his car on a sidewalk, nearly hitting two children, police said.

Richard E. Gronlund, 27, 140 N. Wolf Rd., was arrested after Wheeling police received eight reports of a reckless driver on Glendale Avenue at Wolf Road, police said. There, police found several skid marks and tire marks leading from the road to a parkway, up the sidewalk and then back to the road, police said. The Gronlund vehicle also reportedly rammed another vehicle, police said.

Gronland was released and is scheduled to appear Aug. 17 in Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Dist. 21 to decide on vote tonight

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education will decide tonight if a referendum will be held for a tax increase.

The board will meet at 8:15 p.m. at the administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The tax referendum was recommended two weeks ago by a citizens' committee studying district finances. The committee recommended a tax increase of 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation to help relieve the district's financial problems.

If a tax referendum is approved by the board it will be held in September in order to provide funds for the 1977 fiscal year, district officials said.

Other items on tonight's board agenda include adoption of a $12.7 million tentative budget for the 1976-77 school year, and the appointment of a new board member to fill the vacancy created by Jack Lane's resignation.

ONCE UPON A TIME. Nancy Grybash of the Wheeling Park District tells children about Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs. The children's storytime program keeps the kids occupied and gives their mothers a break in the summertime action.

Tax hike referendum seen

Deficit looms in Harper budget

Harper College will spend $900,000 more than it receives in income during the 1976-77 school year and will need a tax increase in 1977 to keep from depleting its cash reserves, according to the 1976-77 tentative budget.

The budget, which will be reviewed by the Harper Board of Trustees tonight, calls for operating budget expenditures of $14,056,080, up 21.1 per cent from 1975-76 expenditures. Projected 1976-77 revenues will total $13,151,000, up 18.5 per cent from the projected 1975-76 revenues.

A 5.5-cent per $100 equalized assessed valuation tax increase will be needed in 1977, said William Mann, vice president of administrative services. Without an increase, which would have to be approved in a referendum, the college would deplete its reserves in the next two or three years he said. The 5.5-cent increase would add $5.50 to the tax bill on a home assessed at $10,000.

USE OF $905,080 from the college's invested cash surplus will balance the 1976-77 budget. However, when added to the $508,340 in reserve that the college used to balance its 1975-76 budget, Harper will spend more than $1 million than it received in income for the 1975-77 period.

The bulk of the college's expenditures will be made in its education fund, which covers costs such as teachers' salaries, administrative costs and student services.

Tuition is the major source of the anticipated $9,407,000 education fund revenues. The budget projects that 38.5 cents of each dollar in education-fund revenues will come from tuition. Tuition has been raised from $14 to $15 per credit hour for the coming year.

Local taxes account for 25.7 cents of every dollar, while state aid accounts for 25.1 cents.

The cost per student will increase by 4.5 per cent from $1,345 to $1,406.

Aid from the state will increase $464,000 over last year, totaling $4,184,000 for the college's education and building funds. State aid as a percentage of total income is declining however, Mann said. He said for schools it seems, "The recession is now."

MANN SAID THE college can expect state aid to decline while expenses continue to rise. That situation makes the projected 1977 tax increase necessary, he said.

The college's building funds expenditures are projected at $2,353,180, a 12.9 per cent increase over 1975-76 expenses. Expendetures in the bond and interest fund will increase 130 per cent to $1,410,300. The large increase is attributable to retirement of debts and interest on bonds.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administrative center, A Building on the Harper campus, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

New rules for welfare payments

Social service personnel approving persons for general assistance payments in Wheeling Township will be guided by new rules adopted this week by township auditors.

The township's social service department had been using guidelines formulated by the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid. Many of those provisions were included in the township's policy for the distribution of $178,050 in the 1976-77 general assistance budget.

The new guidelines, containing several additions and corrections submitted by human services coordinator Charlene Hawthorne, now go to Township Atty. Richard Cowen for his review.

THE TOWNSHIP guidelines are divided into five categories: general assistance, medical care, medically indigent, rights of applicants and recipients, and respectable burial arrangements.

Much of the auditors' discussion centered on problems of youths and non-English speaking persons applying for general assistance.

The auditors deleted a sentence in the proposed guidelines that would have "urged" non-English speaking applicants "to obtain the assistance of an interpreter in completing the application form and the interview."

Auditor William Reed suggested the township should provide such an interpreter, but Auditor Ray DeMaertelaere questioned whether the guidelines "should saddle the township with the duty of finding an interpreter."

Township Supervisor Ethel Kolerus assured the auditors the township's social service workers "already make every effort to get an interpreter" for those unable to speak or understand English. Such help is often found at Northwest Opportunity Center.

ANOTHER QUESTION arose over the statement in the proposed guidelines that "parents are legally responsible for providing support for children under 21 years of age." DeMaertelaere, a lawyer in private practice, said his experience in divorce litigation shows that parents can be, but are not necessarily legally responsible for their children.

Mrs. Kolerus said the age support definition was used by the state in welfare matters and was necessary to discourage some adolescents from seeking public aid.

"More and more emancipated children are leaving home today and possibly could come here tomorrow (asking) to be set up by us in food and rent rather than take out the garbage and do a few things at home," Mrs. Kolerus said.

The age limits of parental support were referred to Cowen.

The township guidelines also include provisions requiring applicants to liquidate their capital assets such as boats, campers, valuables or jewelry to first meet their needs before applying for general assistance from the township.

The guidelines also provide for the township financing burial should the deceased not be covered by either veterans' benefits or Social Security.

Still hoping for loans

NORTRAN gets brief reprieve

by LYNN ASINOF

The North Suburban Mass Transit District will continue to operate buses in the North and Northwest suburbs for at least one more week in hopes that local communities will provide needed operating funds through emergency loans.

The NORTRAN Board Wednesday night voted unanimously to ask the 21 NORTRAN communities to come up with $300,000 to fund bus operations through Sept. 7.

Des Plaines, one of the three largest NORTRAN communities is being asked to contribute $37,000. Wheeling is being asked for $8,300.

An estimated $100,000 is needed to keep the system operating past July 30. Without the funds the district, which serves 15,000 daily riders, will be forced to close its doors. A meeting is scheduled Wednesday to determine whether continued operations are possible.

THE REGIONAL Transportation Authority created the financial crisis when it failed to adopt its 1976-77 budget June 30 as required by law. Suburban directors blocked budget approval in an effort to force the resignation of Chairman Milton Pikarsky. This stopped the flow of needed subsidies to NORTRAN.

Although the budget was approved this week as part of a compromise agreement, the RTA cannot spend any part of its $177 million budget until the courts rule on the validity of the document.

NORTRAN Chairman Bart T. Murphy said a court ruling could come "anywhere from early next week to several months."

"The money to pay these bills is lying dormant in the bank. The monies are there and should be flowing to the carriers," Murphy said, noting the communities will be paid back once RTA funds are available.

NORTRAN EXECUTIVE Director Joseph DiJohn said Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel will support NORTRAN's funding request. A special city council meeting will be scheduled to consider the request, DiJohn said.

"He's been one of our best supporters," DiJohn said of Behrel.

The bulk of NORTRAN's service in the Northwest suburbs is in Des Plaines. The district also operates a commuter-feeder line from Buffalo Grove to Arlington Heights and a limited service from Wheeling to the Loop. A small portion of Mount Prospect also is served by NORTRAN buses.

Murphy said several village boards will meet early next week to vote on the emergency laons.

"BY NEXT Wednesday we should have a pretty good idea if the major contributors will provide the needed funds."

"If they don't we're right back to facing a shutdown next week," he said.

The NORTRAN board also considered a temporary fare hike to raise operating funds, but DiJohn said this would not provide enough funds to cover either insurance or fuel costs.

Board members said they would like to sue the RTA for release of the funds, but said that is virtually impossible while the RTA budget is before the Illinois Supreme Court.

Vargo laid to rest with full honors

by JOE SWICKARD

Arlington Heights Police Patrolman Alan J. Vargo was buried Wednesday.

It was three days and a few hours since Vargo, 24, was struck down while directing traffic around an accident early Sunday

The notice was sent out over police teletypes onday afternoon. Almost 100 cars from more than 80 departments answered and formed Vargo's escort.

Led by five motorcycles, the procession rolled past with Mars lights twirling silently toward the church.

It was something not often seen — something not many want to see repeated.

A POLICEMAN keeping the route clear said, "Have you ever seen anything like it? It's unbelievable."

More than a mile long, the line of cars rolled through Arlington Heights, cars from Blue Island, Oak Park, Chicago, Palatine, Des Plaines, Kane County, Aurora and Joliet.

The the hearse followed by the family cars came into view. Vargo's wife of 10 months, Teri, was barely visible as the family surrounded her in the big limousine.

Paramedics from the Arlington Heights Fire Dept., who had fought Sunday to save Vargo's life, passed by.

"VARGO'S PARTNERS, 40 patrolmen, stood at attention in the church driveway. Six others in dress uniforms and white gloves lifted him from the hearse. His muted bronze casket was covered with the village flag.

Inside, three priests, one from his old parish in Wilmette, celebrated the funeral mass. Men stared to stop the blinking and what that would bring.

The procession to the cemetery went through the village, past the municipal building, its entrance draped in purple and Vargo's star, 162, above the door.

By the time the last mourner's car passed the municipal building, the lead car was at Golf and Algonquin roads.

ALGONQUIN ROAD rises as it approaches St. Michael the Archangel Cemetery and the line of flashing lights blended into the shortened horizon.

It took more than 10 minutes for the escort to enter the cemetery and park four-abreast. Members of the honor guard raised their night sticks as Vargo's casket was carried past.

The priest's words were carried and lost in the wind. A police radio was crackling with a call as the prayers were read.

The cars, lights now still, left the cemetery.

The family — an older member now turning her head in tears — remained.

Even while the squads had entered the cemetery, one had suddenly peeled off, siren activated. Even then, the work went on.

THE SCENE IS PEACEFUL, but the controversy which surrounds it is not. Linda Schwader, left, and Alison Schleiter walk through the Prospect Heights slough, oblivious to the ongoing debate about the land's future. Some wish to preserve it others want it developed.

Slough's future embroiled in debate

by DIANE MERMIGAS

It is difficult to imagine one of nature's quiet refuges in the Northwest suburbs, a marshy, 27-acre slough in Prospect Heights, being the center of controversy.

It is a tranquil place amid the surrounding development that provides sanctuary for a variety of creatures — fish, muskrat, frogs, fowl and insects.

There is life in the thick undergrowth, cattails and muddy waters. Nature's island in the sprawling suburbs is a place to spend peaceful moments fishing, boating and walking.

The area has been a center of controversy in the past. Disputes have arisen between residents and conservation groups wishing to preserve the slough and developers who would rather see it the focal point of a development

Efforts are afoot by the Prospect Heights Park Board to preserve the area with the support of those who make their homes on its shores

"They are tearing down so much today that they don't even realize the importance of leaving some open space to nature," said Barbara Harris, 104 Mandel Ln., and a resident of the newly incorporated community who is concerned about the future of the slough

The wetland, just west of Elmhurst Road and spreading northward past Willow Road, has special meaning to Mrs Harris Her parents have lived the past 30 years just a block away from the slough where she played as a child

TODAY, MRS. Harris brings her three children to the slough to observe nature whenever she can.

The southern half of the slough, south of Willow Road and west of Hillside Avenue, is where Mrs. Harris and her childhood friends used to play. It is heavily vegetated and held by a trust at the Maywood Proviso State Bank, Maywood.

The Prospect Heights Park District filed a condemnation suit in 1974 to acquire that part of the slough. The district has received an Illinois Dept. of Conservation grant to help purchase the property if it is acquired

The suit has been delayed in Cook County Circuit Court and attorneys for the park district are not sure when the case will be resolved

The northern half of the slough, north of Willow Road and bounded on the west by Hillcrest Drive, is known as Hillcrest Lake and is owned by the Hillcrest Lake Homeowners Assn.

Area residents purchased the 13-acres more than 10 years ago to keep it out of the hands of developers

The park district has made advances toward purchasing the lake, but it has not filed a condemnation suit for the northern half of the slough

The park district owns 15 acres adjacent to the southern half of the slough off of Elmhurst Road The Prospect Heights chapter of the Izaak Walton League constructed an $11,000 nature shelter there in 1975

The league and other community groups, government agencies such as the park district and area residents have continually united to preserve the slough.

IT OFTEN HAS been a battle, not only against developers, but against the ravages of sewage overflow, soil erosion and dumping that could endanger the slough's wildlife

Those with a technical understanding of the land say the slough is a "sponge" that soaks up storm runoff from the land around it rather than allowing the water to flood lowlying areas downstream. The slough is a link in the McDonald Creek tributary system that drains into the Des Plaines River

But those whose homes border the slough say it is a place of tranquility that provides recreation and outdoor education.

"The people here are very concerned about the slough It provides us with a magnificant view from our front rooms and kitchens The small animals that crawl out onto our lawns once in awhile are more an asset than a "liability" said Eugene Bachara, 9 Hillside Ave.

"BUT, THE MOST rewarding thing is that it provides little boys, like my own, with a Huckleberry Finn-Tom Sawyer place to go barefoot and fish and sail a raft," he said

Park district officials say they would like to make sure children in years to come have the same chance.

"At most, we might put in a few simple piers, maybe a walking and bicycling path around the edge But, the park district just wants to preserve the slough and protect it," said William Kuhns, park board commissioner.

NORTRAN still alive, gets 1-week reprieve

by LYNN ASINOF

The North Suburban Mass Transit District will continue to operate buses in the North and Northwest suburbs for at least one more week in hopes that local communities will provide needed operating funds through emergency loans.

The NORTRAN Board Wednesday night voted unanimously to ask the 21 NORTRAN communities to come up with $300,000 to fund bus operations through Sept. 7.

Des Plaines, one of the three largest NORTRAN communities is being asked to contribute $37,000. Wheeling is being asked for $8,300.

An estimated $100,000 is needed to keep the system operating past July 30. Without the funds the district, which serves 15,000 daily riders, will be forced to close its doors. A meeting is scheduled Wednesday to determine whether continued operations are possible.

THE REGIONAL Transportation Authority created the financial crisis when it failed to adopt its 1976-77 budget June 30 as required by law. Suburban directors blocked budget approval in an effort to force the resignation of Chairman Milton Pikarsky. This stopped the flow of needed subsidies to NORTRAN.

Although the budget was approved this week as part of a compromise agreement, the RTA cannot spend any part of its $177 million budget until the courts rule on the validity of the document.

NORTRAN Chairman Bart T. Murphy said a court ruling could come "anywhere from early next week to several months."

"The money to pay these bills is lying dormant in the bank. The monies are there and should be flowing to the carriers," Murphy said, noting the communities will be paid back once RTA funds are available.

NORTRAN EXECUTIVE Director Joseph DiJohn said Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel will support NORTRAN's funding request. A special city council meeting will be scheduled to consider the request, DiJohn said.

"He's been one of our best supporters," DiJohn said of Behrel.

The bulk of NORTRAN's service in the Northwest suburbs is in Des Plaines. The district also operates a commuter-feeder line from Buffalo Grove to Arlington Heights and a limited service from Wheeling to the Loop. A small portion of Mount Prospect also is served by NORTRAN buses.

Murphy said several village boards will meet early next week to vote on the emergency laons.

"BY NEXT Wednesday we should have a pretty good idea if the major contributors will provide the needed funds."

"If they don't we're right back to facing a shutdown next week," he said.

The NORTRAN board also considered a temporary fare hike to raise operating funds, but DiJohn said this would not provide enough funds to cover either insurance or fuel costs.

Board members said they would like to sue the RTA for release of the funds, but said that is virtually impossible while the RTA budget is before the Illinois Supreme Court.

Developers mull change in project

Developers of a townhouse complex near Busch and Mundelein roads, Buffalo Grove said Wednesday they are considering changing to a single-family development.

Al Frank and Salvatore Blasamo presented a preliminary plan to the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission Wednesday night to build 150 single-family homes on the 32 acre site.

Preliminary approval was given to the plan for 240 townhouses on the site in 1972 when few of the current members were on the commission.

The plan commission two weeks ago asked the developers to make changes in traffic patterns, sidewalk construction, parking space and open space.

FRANK AND BLASAMO said it would be economically unfeasible for them to make the recommended changes in the townhouse plans.

A dispute arose at the meeting two weeks ago over the extent to which the new commission can require changes in plans already approved in concept.

"We have no desire to get into any fight with the village," Frank said Wednesday.

He said he and Blasamo would proceed with plans for the single-family development if the commission indicated it would be receptive to the project.

Frank said it would cost him $15,000 to $25,000 to complete new plans.

"LET'S BE HONEST. The only way a single-family plan would be turned down is if it is terrible," said Comr. Howard Mendenhall.

Comr. Burton Harris said he was concerned about the effect the changeover would have on the school district.

"From a financial standpoint, I don't like it because my tax bill will go up if you build those single-family units," he said.

Commission Chairman Carl Genrich told Frank after the commission was polled that the village would be receptive to a single-family development if it is a "quality development."

The area is designed for single-family homes on the village master plan.

Genrich said the village will ask Frank for a park donation if the single-family proposal is pursued. Public hearings will be required.

The proposed units would sell for $70,000 to $80,000, Frank said.

A proposal to build a Fotomat booth in the Buffalo Grove Mall, Dundee and Arlington Heights roads, was approved Wednesday by the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission.

Commissioners approved the proposal on the condition that the booth be architecturally compatible with the proposed redesign of Buffalo Grove Mall.

The proposal is opposed by Paul Gerst, an official of the Camera Sound store in the Plaza Verde Shopping Center across the street.

Gerst said the Fotomat booth would be unattractive and contribute little to village tax revenues.

The commission vote was 4-3. Commission chairman Carl Genrich said he broke the tie vote to allow the village board to make a final decision.

Tax hike referendum seen

Deficit looms in Harper budget

Harper College will spend $900,000 more than it receives in income during the 1976-77 school year and will need a tax increase in 1977 to keep from depleting its cash reserves, according to the 1976-77 tentative budget.

The budget, which will be reviewed by the Harper Board of Trustees tonight, calls for operating budget expenditures of $14,056,080, up 21.1 per cent from 1975-76 expenditures. Projected 1976-77 revenues will total $13,151,000, up 18.5 per cent from the projected 1975-76 revenues.

A 5.5-cent per $100 equalized assessed valuation tax increase will be needed in 1977, said William Mann, vice president of administrative services. Without an increase, which would have to be approved in a referendum, the college would deplete its reserves in the next two or three years he said. The 5.5-cent increase would add $5.50 to the tax bill on a home assessed at $10,000.

USE OF $905,080 from the college's invested cash surplus will balance the 1976-77 budget. However, when added to the $508,340 in reserve that the college used to balance its 1975-76 budget, Harper will spend more than $1 million than it received in income for the 1975-77 period.

The bulk of the college's expenditures will be made in its education fund, which covers costs such as teachers' salaries, administrative costs and student services.

Tuition is the major source of the anticipated $9,407,000 education fund revenues. The budget projects that 38.5 cents of each dollar in education-fund revenues will come from tuition. Tuition has been raised from $14 to $15 per credit hour for the coming year.

Local taxes account for 25.7 cents of every dollar, while state aid accounts for 25.1 cents.

The cost per student will increase by 4.5 per cent from $1,345 to $1,406.

Aid from the state will increase $464,000 over last year, totaling $4,184,000 for the college's education and building funds. State aid as a percentage of total income is declining however, Mann said. He said for schools it seems, "The recession is now."

MANN SAID THE college can expect state aid to decline while expenses continue to rise. That situation makes the projected 1977 tax increase necessary, he said.

The college's building funds expenditures are projected at $2,353,180, a 12.9 per cent increase over 1975-76 expenses. Expendetures in the bond and interest fund will increase 130 per cent to $1,410,300. The large increase is attributable to retirement of debts and interest on bonds.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administrative center, A Building on the Harper campus, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

New rules for welfare payments

Social service personnel approving persons for general assistance payments in Wheeling Township will be guided by new rules adopted this week by township auditors.

The township's social service department had been using guidelines formulated by the Illinois Dept. of Public Aid. Many of those provisions were included in the township's policy for the distribution of $178,050 in the 1976-77 general assistance budget.

The new guidelines, containing several additions and corrections submitted by human services coordinator Charlene Hawthorne, now go to Township Atty. Richard Cowen for his review.

THE TOWNSHIP guidelines are divided into five categories: general assistance, medical care, medically indigent, rights of applicants and recipients, and respectable burial arrangements.

Much of the auditors' discussion centered on problems of youths and non-English speaking persons applying for general assistance.

The auditors deleted a sentence in the proposed guidelines that would have "urged" non-English speaking applicants "to obtain the assistance of an interpreter in completing the application form and the interview."

Auditor William Reed suggested the township should provide such an interpreter, but Auditor Ray DeMaertelaere questioned whether the guidelines "should saddle the township with the duty of finding an interpreter."

Township Supervisor Ethel Kolerus assured the auditors the township's social service workers "already make every effort to get an interpreter" for those unable to speak or understand English. Such help is often found at Northwest Opportunity Center.

ANOTHER QUESTION arose over the statement in the proposed guidelines that "parents are legally responsible for providing support for children under 21 years of age." DeMaertelaere, a lawyer in private practice, said his experience in divorce litigation shows that parents can be, but are not necessarily legally responsible for their children.

Mrs. Kolerus said the age support definition was used by the state in welfare matters and was necessary to discourage some adolescents from seeking public aid.

"More and more emancipated children are leaving home today and possibly could come here tomorrow (asking) to be set up by us in food and rent rather than take out the garbage and do a few things at home," Mrs. Kolerus said.

The age limits of parental support were referred to Cowen.

The township guidelines also include provisions requiring applicants to liquidate their capital assets such as boats, campers, valuables or jewelry to first meet their needs before applying for general assistance from the township.

The guidelines also provide for the township financing burial should the deceased not be covered by either veterans' benefits or Social Security.

Pet hospital rezoning approved

The rezoning of a half-acre parcel at Buffalo Grove and Mundelein roads in Buffalo Grove to permit construction of an animal hospital has been given final approval by the village board.

The approval came despite objections from a developer who proposes to build a 38-acre housing complex nearby.

Attorneys for developer Harold Friedman, asked the board to delay its decision on the rezoning for two weeks so they could meet with Dr. Ronald Price, the veterinarian who is building the hospital. Ronald Cope, Friedman's attorney, said it would be to the advantage of the village to delay action so a uniform zoning agreement could be reached. He said the rezoning could be detrimental to Friedman's development plans.

IT WAS the first time the developer came to the village with any plans.

The board rezoned the half-acre parcel from planned business center district to general business with a special use permit for an animal hospital.

Trustees turned Friedman down after briefly reviewing development plans. Trustee John Marienthal said it would be "unfair" to delay the rezoning since the board had given Price its preliminary approval. He said the developer should have raised objections at the rezoning at previous public hearings and workshop sessions.

Cope said Friedman was not aware of the rezoning request by Dr. Price until last week. Price said he did not want to delay the rezoning.

The hospital will replace an abandoned service station on the site.

Hawthorne to leave human service job

Charlene Hawthorne, coordinator of human services for Wheeling Township, will leave her job at the end of the month to go with her husband who has a new teaching position in Florida.

Mrs. Hawthorne, a registered nurse, has worked as coordinator the past year and a half. She will be replaced by Phyllis Gilson.

Kolerus' remarks in HEW study

Remarks from Wheeling Township Supervisor Ethel Kolerus will be included in a national evaluation of social services for senior citizens sponsored by the U.S. Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare.

Mrs. Kolerus was interviewed by a social science researcher from a firm in Rockville, Md., which is conducting the evaluation.

Hospital offers aid in flu-shot plan

Representatives from Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights have voiced cooperation in helping the township recruit paramedic help and in offering refrigeration for vaccine should the township sponsor a swine flu inoculation program in early fall.

Tax boost vote on Dist. 21 agenda

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education will decide tonight if a referendum will be held for a tax increase.

The board will meet at 8.15 p m. at the administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd , Wheeling.

The tax referendum was recommended two weeks ago by a citizens' committee studying district finances. The committee recommended a tax increase of 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation to help relieve the district's financial problems.

If a tax referendum is approved by the board it will be held in September in order to provide funds for the 1977 fiscal year, district officials said.

Other items on tonight's board agenda include adoption of a $12.7 million tentative budget for the 1976-77 school year, and the appointment of a new board member to fill the vacancy created by Jack Lane's resignation.

Police plan display at Grove Mall

The Buffalo Grove Crime Prevention Unit will set up a public display July 31 in the Buffalo Grove Mall Shopping Center, Arlington Heights and Dundee roads.

Officer Gary Del Re said the display will include a variety of locks for doors and windows. Police will be available to offer tips on home security and hand out pamphlets.

The display will be set up from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Residents sought to fill village posts

Buffalo Grove officials are looking for residents to fill vacancies on two village commissions

The appearance control commission needs an architect to help review proposed developments for architectural style and landscaping. The commission meets twice a month

The industrial development commission, which meets once a month, also needs an additional member.

Anyone interested in volunteering to fill a vacancy should contact the village hall, 537-8984

An 'Endeavor' to wage wave warfare

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Bill Kuhns will set out on a sailor's dream Saturday as part of a 10-man crew sailing in the annual Mackinac race between Chicago and Mackinac Island, Mich.

The two-day race across Lake Michigan is one of the top sailing events in the Midwest and draws 250 vessels annually

It will be the third Mackinac race for the 48 year-old Prospect Heights park commissioner. He will sail on a 41-foot sloop owned by a friend, Harold Sumi, of Racine, Wis

HE SAYS HE keeps coming back because of the adventure and challenge involved — because it's not often that the working man can tear himself away from his responsibilities and embark on a voyage

"Sailing puts me back into the natural environment and takes me out of the cities of buildings and concrete," said the advertising executive, who has been sailing since his boyhood days.

Kuhns, 9 N. Parkway, looks forward to racing each season in many of the Lake Michigan races, which take him from Chicago to Waukegan and Milwaukee to Muskegon, even though his crew has never placed among top finishers in any of the contests.

When he and "The Endeavor" crew take off at 2 p.m. Saturday from the Chicago Yacht Club on their 666-mile race, there's every chance that they could win or place, he said.

"EACH OF US HAS a job to do on the boat," says Kuhns, whose responsibility is "holding the ropes" and making sure the sails are trimmed properly to make the most of the wind land Kuhn said

Sailing is far from an easy job and involves alternating four hours of intense maneuvering with four hours of rest during long races like the Mackinac

Depending on the weather and winds, "The Endeavor" could dock Monday or Tuesday at Mackinac Island Kuhns said.

Perils could arise during that time, Kuhns said, like they have in the past.

His first bout in the Mackinac was with a severe thunderstorm, high winds and a near collision with another sailboat.

IN HIS 15 YEARS of sailing, he has contended with 12-foot waves, rain, fierce winds and even snow.

"Sixty-mile-per-hour winds can place the fear of death in you," Kuhns said, but they also spark the spirit of challenge in a man.

And Kuhns always is ready for a race because he jogs and exercises regularly. He just packs up his life jacket, storm gear, suntan lotion and camera and takes off.

"These races are a lot of fun, but someday I would love to sail from the United States to Europe," he said, "or sail on one of the tall ships that were in New York for the Bicentennial"

30-day halt on building gains OK

A 30-day moratorium on the issuance of new building permits that involve plumbing has been imposed by the Elk Grove Village Board.

The "emergency" interim moratorium is intended to halt any additional demands on the village's strained water system while an engineering study is made to determine the effect new building would have on the system.

One result of the study could be a limitation placed on the amount of new construction permitted each year in the village.

THE MORATORIUM was termed a "political move" by Trustee George T. Spees, who together with Trustee Michael J. Tosto, voted against the moratorium.

"I think the moratorium is a pacification move to a group of people who appeared at the board meeting and its need is not supported by the evidence," Spees said Wednesday.

The board's action in adopting the moratorium will have to be ratified at next Tuesday's village board meeting; however, the moratorium went into effect Wednesday. Voting for the moratorium Tuesday night were Village Pres. Charles J. Zettek and Trustees Nanci L. Vanderweel, Ronald L. Chernick and Theodore J. Staddler. Trustee Edward W. Kenna was absent from the meeting.

The board also authorized the hiring of the engineering firm of Greeley and Hansen to conduct the study.

TOSTO SAID HE did not see where that many buildings would be constructed, thus necessitating a moratorium.

"We've got to show these people we are doing something. They are worried (about the water supplies)," Zettek replied.

Earlier, Zettek said it is hard to explain to the residents — at least 400 of whom requested a building moratorium by signing a petition — how the village can ban lawn sprinkling while allowing construction to continue.

Village Atty. Edward C. Hofert said the purpose of the engineering study is "to see if there is a dire emergency" and to help prepare the village to defend any moratorium or building limit should it be challenged in court.

"WOULD YOU feel safe permitting unrestricted sprinkling?" Zettek asked. "Then we have an emergency. You're denying people the use of water. That is a dire emergency."

The village has had a total ban on lawn sprinkling, except for new lawn permits, since June 22. It came in response to residents' complaints of water pressure so low that they could not flush toilets or take showers.

Village Engineer Donald Ciaglia said the village is pumping slightly more water per day than it is using, but local low pressure areas of short duration do develop because of main breaks or heavy local water use. He said if two of the three wells shut down for repairs are put back in operation, the situation should be back to normal.

The board also authorized village engineers to proceed with plans for Well No. 12, which will be dug west of Ill. Rte. 53 at an estimated cost of $800,000. Construction of the well thus would be moved up at least one year.

Development annex stalled til well dug

Annexation of 80-acres west of Ill. Rte. 53 will be contingent upon the developers agreeing to delay construction of 267 single-family homes on the parcel until a new village well is operational.

The Elk Grove Village Board also may ask the developers, Ted Szywala and Alliance Service Corp., to agree to a limitation on the number of homes that could be built in any one year. A limit of 55 has been proposed.

Village Pres. Charles J. Zettek said both restrictions will be sought so that the village will be assured that the Szywala development will not "jeopardize" village residents' water supply.

CONSTRUCTION OF the well in question, No. 11 at Meacham and Nerge roads, is to start in six to eight weeks and be completed next summer.

During Tuesday's public hearing on the annexation by the village board, Szywala said he could wait until Sept. 1, 1977, for water and that a limit of 60 homes a year would be acceptable to him. However, Szywala wants to start construction of his first homes this fall.

After the hearing, Village Atty. Edward Hofert told the board he feels a safer legal ground would be to have the restriction tied to the well's operation relate to building permits rather than water usage. He said it would be more difficult for the village to withhold water from Szywala once building permits were issued.

During the hearing, Szywala said he would probably sell off some portions of the 80 acres so that different architectural styles could be used. He plans to sell his homes for $59,995 to $79,995.

THE DEVELOPERS have agreed to donate a 6.25-acre park site at the southern end of the property and $30,000 in cash instead of the remaining 1.44 acres of land donation required. The money tentatively is planned for two tennis courts and trees at the park site.

Sewage from the property will go through the nearby John E. Egan Water Reclamation Plant.

About 50 residents attended the hearing to protest development of the property while the village is still having water problems.

After the meeting, Zettek said he felt the Szywala case will be the precedent for future development during the water crisis.

"We have agreed we will look at each individual development and see how it will effect the water supply. We will allow development consistent with having an adequate water supply," he said.

Tax hike referendum seen

Deficit looms in Harper budget

Harper College will spend $900,000 more than it receives in income during the 1976-77 school year and will need a tax increase in 1977 to keep from depleting its cash reserves, according to the 1976-77 tentative budget.

The budget, which will be reviewed by the Harper Board of Trustees tonight, calls for operating budget expenditures of $14,056,080, up 21.1 per cent from 1975-76 expenditures. Projected 1976-77 revenues will total $13,151,000, up 18.5 per cent from the projected 1975-76 revenues.

A 5.5-cent per $100 equalized assessed valuation tax increase will be needed in 1977, said William Mann, vice president of administrative services. Without an increase, which would have to be approved in a referendum, the college would deplete its reserves in the next two or three years he said. The 5.5-cent increase would add $5.50 to the tax bill on a home assessed at $10,000.

USE OF $905,080 from the college's invested cash surplus will balance the 1976-77 budget. However, when added to the $508,340 in reserve that the college used to balance its 1975-76 budget, Harper will spend more than $1 million than it received in income for the 1975-77 period.

The bulk of the college's expenditures will be made in its education fund, which covers costs such as teachers' salaries, administrative costs and student services.

Tuition is the major source of the anticipated $9,407,000 education fund revenues. The budget projects that 38.5 cents of each dollar in education-fund revenues will come from tuition. Tuition has been raised from $14 to $15 per credit hour for the coming year.

Local taxes account for 25.7 cents of every dollar, while state aid accounts for 25.1 cents.

The cost per student will increase by 4.5 per cent from $1,345 to $1,406.

Aid from the state will increase $464,000 over last year, totaling $4,184,000 for the college's education and building funds. State aid as a percentage of total income is declining however, Mann said. He said for schools it seems, "The recession is now."

MANN SAID THE college can expect state aid to decline while expenses continue to rise. That situation makes the projected 1977 tax increase necessary, he said.

The college's building funds expenditures are projected at $2,353,130, a 12.9 per cent increase over 1975-76 expenses. Expendetures in the bond and interest fund will increase 130 per cent to $1,410,300. The large increase is attributable to retirement of debts and interest on bonds.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administrative center, A Building on the Harper campus, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

1st water rate hike in 20 yrs. near

by TOM VON MALDER

An across-the-board water rate hike in Elk Grove Village is imminent, and heavy water users will begin paying a higher per gallon rate for their water, according to Trustee Nanci L. Vanderweel.

Such a hike would be the first in about 20 years for the village. The rate structure has not been studied since 1963 when the village bought the system from Centex Homes Corp.

Last December, however, the village board hired John B. Black, consulting engineer, to conduct a rate study, the results of which were given to the village board this week.

Village Mgr. Charles A. Willis has refused to make a copy of the report public. However, The Herald has learned a series of alternative rate structures and changes in the current system are included in the report along with the costs of the alternatives and how much revenue they would produce.

MRS. VANDERWEEL said Wednesday she has heard the administration's recommendation will be an across-the-board rate increase for all users, an increase in tap-on fees for developers and a change in the rate structure that would have costs rise correspondingly with use.

Currently, the more water a customer uses, the less the per gallon rate. Buffalo Grove recently switched to higher rates for heavier users, and Wheeling is considering such a proposal.

Mrs. Vanderweel said she did not know what the suggested increases will be.

She said she also understands the study suggests the village encourage recycling of industrially used water. High rates would be one type of encouragement, she said.

Both Mrs. Vanderweel and Trustee George T. Spees said the board's action Tuesday in ordering the construction of Well No. 12, west of Ill. Rte. 53, will require a rate hike. The well will cost an estimated $800,000.

"We will have to raise the rates to pay for Well No. 12," Mrs. Vanderweel said.

One suggestion the board discussed was the issuing of revenue bonds for the well construction, but that would have the same effect as raising water rates.

"WATER IS BECOMING a more and more precious commodity," Spees said. He added charging more may decrease the use of water and help conserve it.

Spees said he would like to see the board schedule a committee-of-the-whole meeting to discuss the water rate study and rate hike proposals.

The year-end surplus in the village's water and sewer account has been dwindling the past several years, particularly because of large repair bills for the existing wells. The 1975-76 surplus was $1,010,596. However, the projected 1976-77 surplus was only $198,653 last May, and there have been significant well repairs since that time.

The village already has spent at least $227,568.94 for well repairs this year, in addition to the $231,950 approved for construction of Well Nos. 10 and 11. The 1976-77 budget included only $150,000 for well maintenance.

Dallas man robbed of $200 in cash

A Dallas, Tex., man was robbed Tuesday night of $200 when he got out of his car at 1340 Touhy Ave., Des Plaines.

Police said John B. Menton was leaving his car at about 11:05 p.m. when a man approached him from the rear, instructed him not to turn around and poked an object that Menton believed to be a gun barrel into his back, police said.

The robber took $200 in cash from Menton and fled on foot through a parking lot, police said. Menton described the robber as a male black about five feet nine inches tall, of stocky build, police said.

Still hoping for loans

NORTRAN gets brief reprieve

by LYNN ASINOF

The North Suburban Mass Transit District will continue to operate buses in the North and Northwest suburbs for at least one more week in hopes that local communities will provide needed operating funds through emergency loans.

The NORTRAN Board Wednesday night voted unanimously to ask the 21 NORTRAN communities to come up with $300,000 to fund bus operations through Sept. 7.

Des Plaines, one of the three largest NORTRAN communities is being asked to contribute $37,000. Wheeling is being asked for $8,300.

An estimated $100,000 is needed to keep the system operating past July 30. Without the funds the district, which serves 15,000 daily riders, will be forced to close its doors. A meeting is scheduled Wednesday to determine whether continued operations are possible.

THE REGIONAL Transportation Authority created the financial crisis when it failed to adopt its 1976-77 budget June 30 as required by law. Suburban directors blocked budget approval in an effort to force the resignation of Chairman Milton Pikarsky. This stopped the flow of needed subsidies to NORTRAN.

Although the budget was approved this week as part of a compromise agreement, the RTA cannot spend any part of its $177 million budget until the courts rule on the validity of the document.

NORTRAN Chairman Bart T. Murphy said a court ruling could come "anywhere from early next week to several months."

"The money to pay these bills is lying dormant in the bank. The monies are there and should be flowing to the carriers," Murphy said, noting the communities will be paid back once RTA funds are available.

NORTRAN EXECUTIVE Director Joseph DiJohn said Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel will support NORTRAN's funding request. A special city council meeting will be scheduled to consider the request, DiJohn said.

Restructure of Dist. 59 evaluated

The reorganization of Elk Grove Township Dist. 59's administration, instituted this year, has placed more responsibility at the local school level, school officials said Wednesday night.

Supt. Roger Bardwell Wednesday night discussed the district's decentralization plan, which went into effect during the 1975-76 school year.

The plan recently has been criticized by parents of special education students who feared it would disrupt current programs.

"Decentralized management allows decisions to be made by persons closest to the problems," he said.

Under the reorganization, two levels of central office personnel — assistant superintendent and consultants — were replaced by the administrative council and school clusters.

THE ADMINISTRATIVE council, which includes principals and central office staff, acts as an advisory group to the superintendent and reviews district curriculum changes and resources.

A school cluster exists for each of the five junior high school areas and includes the feeder elementary schools and junior high school principals. Each cluster decides how the special services staff, such as music teachers and learning disability teachers, assigned to the cluster should be allocated to the individual schools.

Principals, instead of coordinators to the central office level, have been assigned the responsibility of overseeing 13 major subject areas. Specialists will be hired to conduct teacher workshops, rather than maintaining a person full-time.

Special education classes will remain under the jurisdiction of the central office.

ROBERT BROWER, associate superintendent, said the new organization has "reduced the amount of bureaucracy, reduced the amount of personnel, and reduced costs." The district has estimated a savings of about $100,000 in administration expenses through the reorganization.

Brower said schools can individualize the methods used to teach the districtwide curriculum but they will be monitored through the administrative council.

Each school also will be given about $35 per pupil next year for materials and supplies. Under the former organization, principals had bargained with the administration to receive such funds.

Residents finding methods to avoid sprinkling ban

Elk Grove Village residents are forbidden by law to sprinkle their lawns, but some residents have come up with their own alternative "schemes" for watering

One method led to the firing Tuesday of two truck drivers for Lawrence & Ahlman Inc., a landscaping company in Gilberts, Ill.

Richard Hults, assistant to the president of Lawrence & Ahlman, said the drivers were fired after it was discovered they had been watering backyards in Elk Grove Village while they were supposed to be watering new sod for Cook County along Devon Avenue, and Rohlwing and Nerge roads.

"THIS WAS NOT sanctioned by the management here and that is why we have two ex-truck drivers," Hults said. He said the residents allegedly approached the truck drivers with the request for water, offering to pay $5 and $10.

No village law was broken apparently by the "spray scheme," according to Village Administrative Asst. Garry E. Parrin. The water was taken from a forest preserve reservoir and not village fire hydrants. The watering has stopped, however.

A second method, called dishonest by Trustee Ronald L. Chernick, involves cheating to obtain new lawn sprinkling permits

Chernick said he found instances in which residents put in only a small patch of new sod so they could obtain the permits and illegally sprinkle their entire lawns for up to 15 days. He said permits also were issued for shrubs, when they should not have been

The village engineering department has begun in-person checks of lawns for which new lawn permits are being sought and has revoked several permits Also, permits are no longer being issued for shrub watering.

CHERNICK SAID he particularly questioned new lawn permits requested for the older portions of the village where lawns should be well established.

Another sprinkling source is the backyard well, Village Mgr. Charles A. Willis said. Willis said he has received several requests asking if such private wells are permitted.

Trustee Theodore J. Staddler said surface water, usable for everything but drinking, can be obtained by driving a spike about 10 feet into the ground and attaching a pump at a cost of about $250.

Village Atty. Edward C. Hofert said such "water diggings" could not be prohibited as long as they did not interfere with the village's water supplies. Such interference is unlikely because the village draws its water from at least 1,000 feet below ground.

Assistant Village Engineer Pete Kaleta said the village's subdivision ordinance does require the village engineer to approve well construction.

Fireman claims no reason given for credit denial

An attorney for Richard Piccolo, the Elk Grove Village fireman who has filed a lawsuit against the village's police and fire commissioners for denying him points on a promotional examination, says that he never was told why the points were denied.

"The answers contradict themselves – they keep changing," he said Wednesday "First I was told that Piccolo did not notify the board within the specified time, that he wanted credit for his military experience. Then, that changed and he (the commissioner's attorney, Walter C. Wellman) said Piccolo did notify the board in the specified time, but he still refused to give me an answer," Feldman said.

Feldman said all of his inquiries have been made to Wellman, who was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

Piccolo, an Elk Grove Village fireman for five and a half years, has filed the suit asking for a court order requiring the commission to give him credit for previous military service on his test for promotion to the rank of lieutenant

THE SUIT was filed Monday in Cook County Circuit Court, Chicago.

The suit states that Piccolo scored seventh on a promotional exam earlier this year with a score of 80 1 Piccolo asked the fire and police board of commissioners on Jan. 31 — two days after the test results were posted — to add credit for his previous military services to his score, the suit says

However, the board has refused to add the credit

The suit contends the three fire and police board members — Gayle Banter, Alan Shapiro and H. Robert Golds – illegally denied Piccolo the extra points

"The points would merely place him higher in line for a promotion," Feldman said

The suit contends that Picolo complied with the board's rule that a person with military credit must notify the board of a desire for the credit to be added to a promotional test score five days after the test results are posted.

Patrolman Vargo buried with full police honors

by JOE SWICKARD

Arlington Heights Police Patrolman Alan J. Vargo was buried Wednesday.

It was three days and a few hours since Vargo, 24, was struck down while directing traffic around an accident early Sunday.

The notice was sent out over police teletypes Monday afternoon. Almost 100 cars from more than 80 departments answered and formed Vargo's escort.

Led by five motorcycles, the procession rolled past with Mars lights twirling silently toward the church.

It was something not often seen — something not many want to see repeated.

A POLICEMAN keeping the route clear said, "Have you ever seen anything like it? It's unbelievable."

More than a mile long, the line of cars rolled through Arlington Heights, cars from Blue Island, Oak Park, Chicago, Palatine, Des Plaines, Kane County, Aurora and Joliet.

The the hearse followed by the family cars came into view. Vargo's wife of 10 months, Teri, was barely visible as the family surrounded her in the big limousine.

Paramedics from the Arlington Heights Fire Dept., who had fought Sunday to save Vargo's life, passed by.

"VARGO'S PARTNERS, 40 patrolmen, stood at attention in the church driveway. Six others in dress uniforms and white gloves lifted him from the hearse. His muted bronze casket was covered with the village flag.

Inside, three priests, one from his old parish in Wilmette, celebrated the funeral mass. Men stared to stop the blinking and what that would bring.

The procession to the cemetery went through the village, past the municipal building, its entrance draped in purple and Vargo's star, 162, above the door.

By the time the last mourner's car passed the municipal building, the lead car was at Golf and Algonquin roads.

ALGONQUIN ROAD rises as it approaches St. Michael the Archangel Cemetery and the line of flashing lights blended into the shortened horizon.

It took more than 10 minutes for the escort to enter the cemetery and park four-abreast. Members of the honor guard raised their night sticks as Vargo's casket was carried past.

The priest's words were carried and lost in the wind. A police radio was crackling with a call as the prayers were read.

The cars, lights now still, left the cemetery.

The family — an older member now turning her head in tears — remained.

Even while the squads had entered the cemetery, one had suddenly peeled off, siren activated. Even then, the work went on.

Garage run illegally, firm told

An Elk Grove Village firm has been told by the building department that it is operating a garage illegally at 2100 Busse Rd.

Building Comr. Thomas F. Rettenbacher said Wednesday the Superior Tea and Coffee Co. has been operating the garage as an industrial use while the property has commercial zoning.

"They are in violation of the zoning ordinance and we have given them notice," Rettenbacher said. "I am to discuss the matter with the village attorney as soon as possible."

RETTENBACHER SAID the village could force the firm out of the building but added the matter is complicated because the firm requested a zoning change prior to the discovery of the illegal operation.

A hearing on the zoning change has been scheduled for Aug. 9 before the plan commission.

Sanford Cohen, head of operations for Superior, said the illegality is a technicality because his firm is using the building in the same way of the previous user, International Harvester, but to a lesser extent.

But although International Harvester used the building as a garage and in fact mostly serviced Superior trucks, it also sold parts and thus required the commercial zoning. Superior is not selling parts and by only servicing itself falls under the industrial zoning classification.

"WE MISUNDERSTOOD," Cohen said. "We certainly could have waited the few weeks until we got the zoning had we known."

Cohen said he hoped the village would let Superior operate the garage, or at least stay in the building, until the outcome of the rezoning request is decided.

Rettenbacher said it may be possible to allow continued operation of the garage as long as it is understood such operation would not prejudice the rezoning hearing. He added the attorney would make a recommendation.

AMONG WINNERS of Schaumburg Park District Olympics who will advance to the July 27-28 10th Annual Paddock Olympics are, left to right, Randy Parson, third place winner of the 100-yard dash, Chad Connell, first place winner of the 50-yard dash, and Bill King, who placed second in the kick ball competition. Schaumburg was first place winner in the 1975 Paddock Olympics.

House buffer zone to be asked of Grove builder

by PAT GERLACH

Schaumburg developer Eugene Matanky will be asked tonight to surround his proposed Sarah's Grove six-flat apartment complex with a circular road with houses on each side.

At the 8 p.m. meeting in Schaumburg Civic Center, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct., members of a special study committee also will ask Matanky to build three-story buildings only in the center of the development. The committee members will recommend two-story buildings at the outer edge of the project, planned for 26.5 acres on Schaumburg Road one-quarter mile west of Roselle Road.

The developer also will be asked to provide a wide buffer zone between the houses and the apartment buildings. In return, Matanky will be allowed to include a small commercial development at the eastern edge of the property.

THE DEVELOPER was not invited to participate in Wednesday's first meeting of the committee. It was decided that the committee would meet to formulate "a game plan" to present to the developer tonight.

The committee's decision was reached at a meeting Wednesday night when it also was agreed certain other concessions may be granted if Matanky agrees to modify plans.

Timbercrest resident Joy Kasper, 208 Sumac Ln., and Steve Allen, 205 Alder Ct. in the Woods subdivision, and Village Trustees Herbert Aigner, Alan Larson and Nels Hornstrom served on the special panel.

More than 200 residents of Timbercrest and the Woods subdivision which adjoin the Matanky property have objected to Matanky's proposed 64 six-flat buildings, saying the development would lower the values of their houses, which sell for between $60,000 and $127,000.

FOLLOWING FIVE public hearings, the zoning board in June failed to reach a recommendation on the complex, forcing the proposal to be decided by the village board.

When it became apparent that three village trustees also opposed the development, Village Pres. Raymond Kessell appointed the special committee to work with the builder to revise plans to produce a more acceptable project.

Committee members estimated the suggested changes would eliminate 20 six-flat buildings from the complex. They said the houses must be "comparable and compatible" in price and style with houses now being built in the village.

Tax hike referendum seen

Deficit looms in Harper budget

Harper College will spend $900,000 more than it receives in income during the 1976-77 school year and will need a tax increase in 1977 to keep from depleting its cash reserves, according to the 1976-77 tentative budget.

The budget, which will be reviewed by the Harper Board of Trustees tonight, calls for operating budget expenditures of $14,056,080, up 21.1 per cent from 1975-76 expenditures. Projected 1976-77 revenues will total $13,151,000, up 18.5 per cent from the projected 1975-76 revenues.

A 5.5-cent per $100 equalized assessed valuation tax increase will be needed in 1977, said William Mann, vice president of administrative services. Without an increase, which would have to be approved in a referendum, the college would deplete its reserves in the next two or three years he said. The 5.5-cent increase would add $5.50 to the tax bill on a home assessed at $10,000.

USE OF $965,080 from the college's invested cash surplus will balance the 1976-77 budget. However, when added to the $508,340 in reserve that the college used to balance its 1975-76 budget, Harper will spend more than $1 million than it received in income for the 1975-77 period.

The bulk of the college's expenditures will be made in its education fund, which covers costs such as teachers' salaries, administrative costs and student services.

Tuition is the major source of the anticipated $9,407,000 education fund revenues. The budget projects that 38.5 cents of each dollar in education-fund revenues will come from tuition. Tuition has been raised from $14 to $15 per credit hour for the coming year.

Local taxes account for 25.7 cents of every dollar, while state aid accounts for 25.1 cents.

The cost per student will increase by 4.5 per cent from $1,345 to $1,406.

Aid from the state will increase $464,000 over last year, totaling $4,184,000 for the college's education and building funds. State aid as a percentage of total income is declining however, Mann said. He said for schools it seems, "The recession is now."

MANN SAID THE college can expect state aid to decline while expenses continue to rise. That situation makes the projected 1977 tax increase necessary, he said.

The college's building funds expenditures are projected at $2,353,180, a 12.9 per cent increase over 1975-76 expenses. Expendetures in the bond and interest fund will increase 130 per cent to $1,410,300. The large increase is attributable to retirement of debts and interest on bonds.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administrative center, A Building on the Harper campus, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

Park board weighs expansion to 7

Expansion of the Hoffman Estates Park District Board from five to seven members is being considered by park commissioners.

The park board Tuesday directed Park Director Allen Binder to contact Park Atty. Donald Rose about the feasibility of the expansion.

"The need for seven commissioners is obvious," Comr. William Holmes said. "Because of illness, vacations and a number of other reasons, we simply don't have enough members at our board meetings."

Comr. Thomas Barber said he "wholeheartedly agrees" with Holmes and recommended the matter be discussed by the administration committee next Tuesday.

The board's plan to expand its membership comes at a time when a consulting team from the University of Illinois is still conducting a study into a proposed park district merger with the village.

THE TEAM now is interviewing citizens on the merger question.

The proposed merger study was initiated by Barber late last year and has been discussed several times by a joint committee of trustees and park commissioners.

Only three commissioners have been present at the last three park board meetings. Comr. Thomas McGuire has been on vacation and Board Pres. George Rush is recuperating from the heart attack he suffered last month.

Park board attendance was also affected for a month and a half by the February resignations of Commissioners Anthony Stompanato and Shirley Gibbons.

THEY WERE replaced by Wrobleski and Holmes in early April.

"It's important that we conduct business on time. The more commissioners would make us a lot more efficient. We would have more expertise to call on when we need it," Holmes said.

Barber said park business could be conducted efficiently by a five-member board, but vacations, job transfers, business trips and other scheduling problems make it difficult for five to be effective.

Binder said a commissioner is only required by law to attend a meeting every six months.

HOLMES SAID the board "should move quickly on this" because of the time it may take to legally get the two new members. Holmes said he hoped to have problems solved before the next park election in spring.

Barber, Holmes and Comr. Nancy Wrobleski said Tuesday they all would strongly support the move to add the two commissioners.

Rush said Wednesday he also would favor the membership increase "as long as they (new commissioners) are workers. We don't need seven administrators. We need seven workers."

RUSH SAID THE more persons involved in the park district the more work could be done. He said he also favored four-year terms rather than the current six-year terms.

McGuire was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

Barber said a state law approved earlier this year enables park district to expand their boards if they wish to do so. The state law would provide for four-year terms of office on an expanded board.

Hockey center buying decision seen Aug. 3

A decision on the purchase of the Woodfield Hockey Center by the Hoffman Estates Park District could come Aug. 3.

Comr. William Holmes, building and grounds committee chairman, said "hopefully" the final discussion on whether to purchase the center, 1130 E. Remington Rd., Schaumburg, will come at that time.

"We've spent a lot of time on it (a feasibility study) and I think it's time we came to a decision," Holmes said. Representatives of the Woodfield center and the Colonial National Bank and Trust, Chicago, will be asked to attend the Aug. 3 meeting, he said.

The building and grounds committee has met in closed session several times to discuss the purchase of the center. Bank and center officials have met with commissioners during the sessions.

"We're making progress on the study, slowly but surely," Holmes said Tuesday.

A Colonial Bank official said Wednesday the park board has made no offers for the property. The bank holds the Woodfield center mortgage, the official said.

Center owners were unavailable for comment Wednesday.

Safety panel for airport meets tonight

Members of Schaumburg Airport Safety Committee will meet at 7 p.m. today in the main hangar of Aviation Center Enterprises Inc., Schaumburg Airport, W. Irving Park Road and Wright Boulevard.

The committee was formed several months ago by Airport Mgr. Kenneth B. Wolmer to monitor the airport's operation and act as a liaison among pilots, the community and airport management.

In a recent statement of purpose, committee members said the group will promote "maximum safety to residents, passengers and pilots" and encourage citizens to become involved in the policy and operation of the airport.

Wolmer said committee members hope to provide the community with a better understanding of the airport's functions of air education and as a base for a Civil Air Patrol unit and sponsor of an Air Explorer Scout post and emergency air transport center.

RECOMMENDATIONS, suggestions or airport complaints may be submitted in writing to committee members or sent to the Schaumburg Civic Center, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct.; the Hoffman Estates Municipal Building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr.; the Roselle Village Hall, 31 S. Prospect St.; the Hanover Park Village Hall, 2121 W. Lake St.; the Streamwood Village Hall, 401 E. Irving Park Rd.; or the Bloomingdale Village Hall, 108 W. Lake St.

Committee members include Hoffman Estates Village Pres. Virginia Hayter, Hanover Park Village Pres. Louis F. Barone, Bloomingdale Village Trustee Joseph A. Dombrowski, Roselle Village Trustee Terry Marvin and John Joyner, who represents the Village of Schaumburg.

Other members include William Lang, Lloyd's Flying Service; Dave McGregor, representing the Village of Streamwood; David McPherson and Mel Rathbun, of Schaumburg Pilots Assn.; Vince Palermo, of Aviation Center Enterprises, Inc.

Roselle Chamber of Commerce, Centex-Schaumburg Businessmen's Assn. and the Northwest Suburban Assn. of Commerce and Industry also are represented on the airport safety panel.

Ex-cop's theft trial continued to Aug. 25

The theft trial of former Schaumburg patrolman James Regan was continued Wednesday to Aug. 25 in the Harwood Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

A spokesman for the court clerk's office said selection of jurors for Regan's trial is expected to begin Aug. 25. He said the prosecution requested the trial be moved from the Des Plaines branch of circuit court because of a backlog of cases in Des Plaines.

Regan was ordered to appear at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 25 in Harwood Heights.

Regan, who was fired by the Schaumburg Police and Fire Commission May 15, allegedly was involved in the theft of a lawnmower and air conditioner at the Walden Apartments, Schaumburg, in 1975.

Still hoping for loans

NORTRAN gets brief reprieve

by LYNN ASINOF

The North Suburban Mass Transit District will continue to operate buses in the North and Northwest suburbs for at least one more week in hopes that local communities will provide needed operating funds through emergency loans.

The NORTRAN Board Wednesday night voted unanimously to ask the 21 NORTRAN communities to come up with $300,000 to fund bus operations through Sept. 7.

Des Plaines, one of the three largest NORTRAN communities is being asked to contribute $37,000. Wheeling is being asked for $8,300.

An estimated $100,000 is needed to keep the system operating past July 30. Without the funds the district, which serves 15,000 daily riders, will be forced to close its doors. A meeting is scheduled Wednesday to determine whether continued operations are possible.

THE REGIONAL Transportation Authority created the financial crisis when it failed to adopt its 1976-77 budget June 30 as required by law. Suburban directors blocked budget approval in an effort to force the resignation of Chairman Milton Pikarsky. This stopped the flow of needed subsidies to NORTRAN.

Although the budget was approved this week as part of a compromise agreement, the RTA cannot spend any part of its $177 million budget until the courts rule on the validity of the document.

NORTRAN Chairman Bart T. Murphy said a court ruling could come "anywhere from early next week to several months."

"The money to pay these bills is lying dormant in the bank. The monies are there and should be flowing to the carriers," Murphy said, noting the communities will be paid back once RTA funds are available.

NORTRAN EXECUTIVE Director Joseph DiJohn said Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel will support NORTRAN's funding request. A special city council meeting will be scheduled to consider the request, DiJohn said.

"He's been one of our best supporters," DiJohn said of Behrel.

The bulk of NORTRAN's service in the Northwest suburbs is in Des Plaines. The district also operates a commuter-feeder line from Buffalo Grove to Arlington Heights and a limited service from Wheeling to the Loop. A small portion of Mount Prospect also is served by NORTRAN buses.

Murphy said several village boards will meet early next week to vote on the emergency laons.

"BY NEXT Wednesday we should have a pretty good idea if the major contributors will provide the needed funds."

"If they don't we're right back to facing a shutdown next week," he said.

The NORTRAN board also considered a temporary fare hike to raise operating funds, but DiJohn said this would not provide enough funds to cover either insurance or fuel costs.

Board members said they would like to sue the RTA for release of the funds, but said that is virtually impossible while the RTA budget is before the Illinois Supreme Court.

Three adventurers finish 6,000-mile 'fantasy trip'

by JUDIE BLACK

The shotgun Aleda Kresge and her two sailing companions kept on board their 35-foot sloop was there only for protection against drug pirates.

The gun ended up the reason the three were thrown in a Latin American jail, accused of running illegal guns.

The 60 hours Aleda, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph A. Kresge, of Arlington Heights, and her two male companions spent in jail in Belize, British Honduras, without food, proved the most harrowing experience in their 6,000-mile sailing trip. They began last November, leaving California where they bought and outfitted their $8,000 boat. Just last week they dropped anchor for the last time in Miami.

Dick Anderson, a sailing companion and high school teacher in Leadville, Colo., where 26-year-old Aleda was a practical nurse, said they were not the only American group victimized by police in local ports like Belize. He said American restaurant owners and other pleasure sailors were mistreated similarly.

"THE PLACE WAS a trap" for persons inexperienced in cruising, pleasure sailing with no set itinerary, Anderson said. He plans to write articles illustrated with photographs he took during the trip, to warn other sailors.

But the prison incident (the three were eventually released with the help of American embassy intervention and $500) didn't darken the remainder of the voyage.

"It was a pure fantasy trip," said Aleda, a 1968 graduate of Arlington High School.

The three began planning, organizing and studying 18 months before they cast off. They took 50 gallons of gasoline for their auxiliary engine, 45 gallons of drinking water, canned goods, powdered milk, corn meal (they all suffered from dysentery), an emergency locator beacon and inflatable emergency lifecraft. Outfitting the boat cost $7,000.

ANDERSON HAD SERVED in the Navy and was familiar with navigation techniques. Aleda had sailed often and the third, a member of a professional ski patrol in Aspen, Colo., spoke Spanish fluently. None had ever sailed, or cruised, long-distance.

But they were not alone, Aleda said. In one harbor they met three dozen other boats, piloted by sailors of varying experience. "The world's full of adventures," Anderson said. "It's just deciding when and what order to do them."

Anderson managed the Yukon River in a kayak and backpacked the more desolate trails in the Grand Canyon.

While cruising, one of the three sailors was always on watch. Sometimes they sailed all day and night, other times for only eight hours. They frequently "anchored out" and visited port cities, went scuba diving, snorkeling or sightseeing. It was a way to get away from each other and to explore.

"AFTER LEAVING LOS Angeles, they sailed south along the Baja coast of California, down the western Mexican coast to Salina Cruz, then to Guatemala shortly after the earthquake there, then on to El Salvador, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and to Panama, where they stayed two weeks to repair their boat.

They sailed through the canal zone, on to the San Blas Islands and eventually to the island of Providencia, an island Anderson said is "200 to 300 years behind" the rest of civilization.

They spent three weeks in Honduras, encountered the local police in Belize, then sailed to the Mujers Islands, Key West and finally Miami, where the boat is up for sale.

But they're not done yet. Anderson, 41, could envision a similar trip, longer and with a larger boat, to the Marquesas Islands in the Pacific Ocean, then on to Pango Pango, Australia, maybe New Zealand, "and once you're there, you might as well go around the world," he said.

"A fast trip" spanning the globe would take three years, Aleda said. Anderson figures between five and 10 years for such a trip "to stop along the way to look, to work and to repair the boat."

Twirlers to compete next week

The Teasers and Firecats Baton Twirling Corps, sponsored by the Hoffman Estates Park District, will compete for national championships next week at the University of Notre Dame, South Bend, Ind.

The corps was awarded the state twirling title for the fourth consecutive year, at state competition recently at Buffalo Grove High School, 1100 W. Dundee Rd.

The corps placed first in juvenile dance-twirl. The small team placed first in the junior division while the Tiny Teasers (5-year-olds) placed second in the beginning division.

The twirl team and the dance-twirl team took second in the junior small categories.

Individual awards were given to Mimi Renfro, first place; Jan Waggoner, Paula Scholtes, Jeannie Renfro and Debbie Carney, second place; Donna Dittman and Jeannie Renfro, third place; Lynda Pemberton, Lisa Dittman, Jenell Jacobs, Karen Joyce and Cathy Childers, fourth place.

'Endeavor' to wage war on the waves

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Bill Kuhns will set out on a sailor's dream Saturday as part of a 10-man crew sailing in the annual Mackinac race between Chicago and Mackinac Island Mich

The two-day race across Lake Michigan is one of the top sailing events in the Midwest and draws 250 vessels annually

It will be the third Mackinac race for the 48 year-old Prospect Heights park commissioner. He will sail on a 41 foot sloop owned by a friend, Harold Sumi of Racine, Wis

HE SAYS HE keeps coming back because of the adventure and challenge involved — because it's not often that the working man can tear himself away from his responsibilities and embark on a voyage

'Sailing puts me back into the natural environment and takes me out of the cities of buildings and concrete," said the advertising executive, who has been sailing since his boyhood days

Kuhns 9 N Parkway, looks forward to racing each season in many of the Lake Michigan races which take him from Chicago to Waukegan and Milwaukee to Muskegon even though his crew has never placed among top finishers in any of the contests

When he and 'The Endeavor" crew take off at 2 p m Saturday from the Chicago Yacht Club on their 666-mile race there's every chance that they could win or place he said

'EACH OF US HAS a job to do on the boat," says Kuhns, whose responsibility is 'holding the ropes" and making sure the sails are trimmed properly to make the most of the wind Land Kuhn said

Sailing is far from an easy job and involves alternating four hours of intense maneuvering with four hours of rest during long races like the Mackinac

Depending on the weather and winds "The Endeavor" could dock Monday or Tuesday at Mackinac Island Kuhsn said

Perils could arise during that time, Kuhns said like they have in the past

His first bout in the Mackinac was with a severe thunderstorm high winds and a near collision with another sailboat

IN HIS 15 YEARS of sailing he has contended with 12-foot waves, rain, fierce winds and even snow

Sixty mile per-hour winds can place the fear of death in you " Kuhns said but they also spark the spirit of challenge in a man

And Kuhns always is ready for a race because he jogs and exercises regularly He just packs up his life jacket storm gear, suntan lotion and camera and takes off

These races are a lot of fun, but someday I would love to sail from the United States to Europe " he said, "or sail on one of the tall ships that were in New York for the Bicentennial "

Blood still needed for village program

Hoffman Estates still has 465 pints of blood to collect before it qualifies for the 4 per cent blood program

The village collected 174 pints of blood Sunday bringing the total to 735 pints donated in blood drives since February

Once the village collects 1 200 pints, residents and their families automatically will be eligible for free emergency blood anywhere in the nation, under the 4 per cent program

The next blood draw will be Aug 11 from 1 to 8 p m in the Barrington Lakes Apartment complex south of the Northwest Tollway near Barrington Road

Woman's club baby contest set

The Schaumburg Woman's Club is sponsoring a baby contest Aug 1-31 to find the king and queen of the village's annual Labor Day Septemberfest celebration

Contest winners will ride in the Septemberfest parade

Children 3 years old and younger are eligible for the contest and may be registered by calling 529 1939 or 882 6552 by July 31

Parents of contestants are asked to donate an empty can with a picture of the child pasted to it The can must have a securely fastened top and a slot for money because votes will be cast at a penny a vote

The cans will be placed in various locations in the village

The boy and girl receiving the most votes will be crowned king and queen Proceeds will go to local projects

First place prize will be a silver engraved cup Second-place prize will be a starter bank account and third-place prize is a Baskin Robbins ice cream gift certificate

Police honor guard gives a final salute to Alan J. Vargo.

Patrolman Vargo buried with full police honors

A moment of prayer for the widow, Teri.

by JOE SWICKARD

Arlington Heights Police Patrolman Alan J. Vargo was buried Wednesday.

It was three days and a few hours since Vargo, 24, was struck down while directing traffic around an accident early Sunday.

The notice was sent out over police teletypes Monday afternoon. Almost 100 cars from more than 80 departments answered and formed Vargo's escort

Led by five motorcycles, the procession rolled past with Mars lights twirling silently toward the church.

It was something not often seen — something not many want to see repeated.

A POLICEMAN keeping the route clear said, "Have you ever seen anything like it? It's unbelievable."

More than a mile long, the line of cars rolled through Arlington Heights, cars from Blue Island, Oak Park, Chicago, Palatine, Des Plaines, Kane County, Aurora and Joliet.

The the hearse followed by the family cars came into view. Vargo's wife of 10 months, Teri, was barely visible as the family surrounded her in the big limousine.

Paramedics from the Arlington Heights Fire Dept., who had fought Sunday to save Vargo's life, passed by.

"VARGO'S PARTNERS, 40 patrolmen, stood at attention in the church driveway. Six others in dress uniforms and white gloves lifted him from the hearse. His muted bronze casket was covered with the village flag.

Inside, three priests, one from his old parish in Wilmette, celebrated the funeral mass. Men stared to stop the blinking and what that would bring.

The procession to the cemetery went through the village, past the municipal building, its entrance draped in purple and Vargo's star, 162, above the door.

By the time the last mourner's car passed the municipal building, the lead car was at Golf and Algonquin roads.

ALGONQUIN ROAD rises as it approaches St. Michael the Archangel Cemetery and the line of flashing lights blended into the shortened horizon.

It took more than 10 minutes for the escort to enter the cemetery and park four-abreast. Members of the honor guard raised their night sticks as Vargo's casket was carried past.

The priest's words were carried and lost in the wind. A police radio was crackling with a call as the prayers were read.

The cars, lights now still, left the cemetery.

The family — an older member now turning her head in tears — remained.

Even while the squads had entered the cemetery, one had suddenly peeled off, siren activated Even then, the work went on.

Here's one way to cut use of water

Now that sprinkling restrictions have been ordered in Hoffman Estates, one resident has volunteered an idea for eliminating possible water shortages.

John O'Brien, 1761 Queensbury Cir., told the village board Monday that local restaurants should not serve glasses of water unless they are requested

"It's a labor-saving device," O'Brien told the trustees Not only is water conserved, but extra glasses don't need washing, which requires more water and labor, he said.

"Restaurants always give you water whether you want it or not," he added.

The suggestion was turned over to Trustee Ralph Lycrla for consideration by the public health and safety committee.

In a related matter, village resident Mina Ablin told the board Monday she has a problem of much water, the result of improper street drainage near her newly purchased home at 253 Harper Ln

Mrs. Ablin's problem a large pool of water which takes several days to evaporate in front of her parkway, was referred to the public works committee.

A CONSTRUCTION worker puts the finishing touches on one stretch of curbing on Kirchoff Road between Hicks and Plum Grove roads in Rolling Meadows. Completion of the $1 million project is scheduled for October.

Kirchoff work nearly complete

The widening of Kirchoff Road to four lanes between Hicks and Plum Grove roads in Rolling Meadows is nearing completion and the road is scheduled to reopen in October.

Francine Stewart, of the Cook County Highway Dept., said Wednesday that crews are "practically finished" with the repaving and are working on curbs and gutters.

The project, which will cost about $1 million, includes the widening of Kirchoff to four lanes and signal improvement at Kirchoff and Plum Grove roads.

A four-foot-wide mountable median also will be built.

With the widening, existing traffic will be better channeled and additional traffic in the future will be more easily accommodated, county highway department officials have said.

Planning for the project began three years ago. Contractor for the project is Milburn Brothers Inc. of Mount Prospect.

The section to be widened runs alongside the Plum Grove Countryside subdivision, Winthrop and Plum Grove Village subdivisions and Brookwood apartments.

During construction, Kirchoff has been closed to through traffic, although access to local traffic has been provided. The detour reroutes westbound vehicles from Kirchoff to Hicks Road to Euclid Avenue to Plum Grove Road. Eastbound vehicles have been routed in the reverse on the detour.

City newsletter to explain ways to save water

by DAVE GALANTI

Rolling Meadows' growing water problem will be explained to city residents in a special newsletter to be mailed within the next two weeks.

Acting City Mgr. Charles Green said he is preparing the newsletter, which will contain an explanation of the problem and ways to conserve water in the home. He said the printing and circulation of the newsletter will take from seven to 10 days.

Much of the newsletter material will be taken from a report given to city officials by City Engineer James J. Muldowney. Muldowney termed the water situation "serious" and recommended immediate attention by the city.

In his report, Muldowney said two of the city's wells were dangerously close to being shut down because of low water levels. He said water levels only reached 85 feet above pumping level in Well No. 4 and 43 feet above pumping level in Well No. 6 as of Monday. These levels were dangerously near the 35-foot level necessary for pump operation.

WELL NO. 4 HAS just been lowered an additional 60 feet in an emergency move. Without the lowering, Muldowney said, the well would have had to be shut down.

A third well, No. 3, currently is not operational because of repairs. Other water levels ranged from 129 feet in Well No. 2 to 229 feet in Well No.1.

Muldowney said an average of 2,200,000 gallons of water is pumped each day. He said pumping can reach a peak 3,520,000 gallons on some days. He added the total possible rate of pumpage from the city's six pumps is 6,552,000 gallons per day.

Although pump capacity is sufficient to handle normal water demand, Muldowney said problems result when sprinkling during a short period of time occurs on a peak day. When this happens, he said, demand will exceed the capacity of the city's water system and storage will be depleted.

HE SAID THIS happened Sunday on the south side of Kirchoff Road and residents there were told by police to turn off their sprinklers because of a severe water storage shortage.

Muldowney said if sprinkling is permitted over a seven-day period, the impact on the system will be less severe but that the overall problem of lowering water tables will not be solved. He estimated total usage of water from the deep limestone layer which supplies Rolling Meadows and other Northwest suburbs at about 150 million gallons of water per day.

The estimated maximum capacity of the layer to replenish itself is estimated at only 50 million gallons per day.

Since Rolling Meadows only draws a little more than 2 million gallons per day from the layer, he said, it alone has little effect on the total water situation. He stressed regional cooperation would be necessary for any permanent improvement.

MULDOWNEY recommended three long-range methods of alleviating the Rolling Meadows water problem.

- Obtain Lake Michigan water.
- Add to the existing well system and add storage.
- Rewrite codes and ordinances to encourage alternate water sources and reduce water usage through elimination of water wasting devices.

Muldowney said efforts by Northwest suburban communities to obtain Lake Michigan water are progressing very slowly and that Chicago water would not be available to the city by the time the existing Rolling Meadows water system is expected to reach its capacity in 1978.

He recommended construction of Well No. 7 on a city-owned site in the Meadow Edge subdivision and a one million gallon storage tank at Well No. 6, Golf and Wilke roads, to alleviate the problem until Lake Michigan water becomes available. Cost of the two projects could reach an estimated $555,000.

Muldowney said the city had been waiting to make water system improvements until a decision on Lake Michigan water is reached, because much of the new construction might not be compatible with a Lake Michigan water system. However, he said the system would be needed before lake water arrives.

MULDOWNEY ALSO recommended the following steps to conserve water:

- Require smaller flush tanks (about three gallons) on all new projects and remodeling work in the city.
- Adopt ordinances forbidding the use of cooling and cleaning machines that do not recycle water.
- Force large commercial and industrial sites to drill shallow wells for irrigation to alleviate demands on the city's deep well system.
- Install fillers in all the existing toilet tanks which have a greater capacity than three or four gallons.
- Install shower heads that don't use more water than necessary.
- Consider the adoption of an inverted water rate schedule charging more instead of less for high water use.
- Increase the general water rate structure to decrease consumption.

The report was sent for review to the city building, zoning and public works committee.

Level of Well No. 6 increases slightly

Water in Rolling Meadows Well No. 6 Wednesday rose slightly above the dangerously low level that threatened its shutdown.

City Public Works Supt. John P. Hennessey said the water level in the well was "a little better" than Tuesday, when it was measured at 38 feet above pump level, only three feet above the minimum level needed for operation.

Hennessy said the city was operating Well No. 6 and Well No. 4 as little as possible, helping water levels rise. Well No. 4 also has been threatened by low water levels and had to be dropped an additional 60 feet recently.

Tax hike referendum seen

Deficit looms in Harper budget

Harper College will spend $900,000 more than it receives in income during the 1976-77 school year and will need a tax increase in 1977 to keep from depleting its cash reserves, according to the 1976-77 tentative budget.

The budget, which will be reviewed by the Harper Board of Trustees tonight, calls for operating budget expenditures of $14,056,080, up 21.1 per cent from 1975-76 expenditures. Projected 1976-77 revenues will total $13,151,000, up 18.5 per cent from the projected 1975-76 revenues.

A 5.5-cent per $100 equalized assessed valuation tax increase will be needed in 1977, said William Mann, vice president of administrative services. Without an increase, which would have to be approved in a referendum, the college would deplete its reserves in the next two or three years he said. The 5.5-cent increase would add $5.50 to the tax bill on a home assessed at $10,000.

USE OF $905,080 from the college's invested cash surplus will balance the 1976-77 budget. However, when added to the $500,340 in reserve that the college used to balance its 1975-76 budget, Harper will spend more than $1 million than it received in income for the 1975-77 period.

The bulk of the college's expenditures will be made in its education fund, which covers costs such as teachers' salaries, administrative costs and student services.

Tuition is the major source of the anticipated $9,407,000 education fund revenues. The budget projects that 38.5 cents of each dollar in education-fund revenues will come from tuition. Tuition has been raised from $14 to $15 per credit hour for the coming year.

Local taxes account for 25.7 cents of every dollar, while state aid accounts for 25.1 cents.

The cost per student will increase by 4.5 per cent from $1,345 to $1,406.

Aid from the state will increase $464,000 over last year, totaling $4,184,000 for the college's education and building funds. State aid as a percentage of total income is declining however, Mann said. He said for schools it seems, "The recession is now."

MANN SAID THE college can expect state aid to decline while expenses continue to rise. That situation makes the projected 1977 tax increase necessary, he said.

The college's building funds expenditures are projected at $2,353,130, a 12.9 per cent increase over 1975-76 expenses. Expendetures in the bond and interest fund will increase 130 per cent to $1,410,300. The large increase is attributable to retirement of debts and interest on bonds.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administrative center, A Building on the Harper campus, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

Parks OK half-season pool pass

A reduced price half-season pass for use at the Rolling Meadows Park District pool has been approved by the park board.

Cost of the new pass, approved this week, will be $20 for a resident family and $10 for an individual resident. Non-resident passes will be sold at $40 for families and $20 for individuals.

The change was made because of a drop in pool pass revenue this year. Steve Person, director of parks and recreation, said the district has sold 33 fewer pool passes than last year resulting in about a $1,000 loss in revenue.

PERSON SAID the decision to make the half-season passes available had not been made in the past. It was made this year to offset the drop in revenue, which he said is necessary to finance pool operation. He said the board would probably not approve such a pass next year.

A full year pass for the pool costs $33. Person said residents can save about 40 per cent with the half-season pass.

August traditionally is the best month for pool use, Person said, adding the decreased rates are a "bargain." The passes will be good until the pool closes on Labor Day, Sept. 6.

Person attributed the decrease in the sale of pool passes to an increase in weekend travel for the Bicentennial. He said surveys show weekend traffic is up compared to last year, and adding these weekend trips may have caused residents to think they would not get their money's worth out of a full year pass.

Passes for individual days still will be available for $1 per session, Person said.

The half-season passes will be available starting today at the park district's administration office, 1 Park Meadow Pl.

Still seeking loans

NORTRAN still alive — but not exactly kicking

by LYNN ASINOF

The North Suburban Mass Transit District will continue to operate buses in the North and Northwest suburbs for at least one more week in hopes that local communities will provide needed operating funds through emergency loans.

The NORTRAN Board Wednesday night voted unanimously to ask the 21 NORTRAN communities to come up with $300,000 to fund bus operations through Sept. 7.

Des Plaines, one of the three largest NORTRAN communities is being asked to contribute $37,000. Wheeling is being asked for $8,300.

An estimated $100,000 is needed to keep the system operating past July 30. Without the funds the district, which serves 15,000 daily riders, will be forced to close its doors. A meeting is scheduled Wednesday to determine whether continued operations are possible.

THE REGIONAL Transportation Authority created the financial crisis when it failed to adopt its 1976-77 budget June 30 as required by law. Suburban directors blocked budget approval in an effort to force the resignation of Chairman Milton Pikarsky. This stopped the flow of needed subsidies to NORTRAN.

Although the budget was approved this week as part of a compromise agreement, the RTA cannot spend any part of its $177 million budget until the courts rule on the validity of the document.

NORTRAN Chairman Bart T. Murphy said a court ruling could come "anywhere from early next week to several months."

"The money to pay these bills is lying dormant in the bank. The monies are there and should be flowing to the carriers," Murphy said, noting the communities will be paid back once RTA funds are available.

NORTRAN EXECUTIVE Director Joseph DiJohn said Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel will support NORTRAN's funding request. A special city council meeting will be scheduled to consider the request, DiJohn said.

"He's been one of our best supporters," DiJohn said of Behrel.

The bulk of NORTRAN's service in the Northwest suburbs is in Des Plaines. The district also operates a commuter-feeder line from Buffalo Grove to Arlington Heights and a limited service from Wheeling to the Loop. A small portion of Mount Prospect also is served by NORTRAN buses.

Murphy said several village boards will meet early next week to vote on the emergency laons.

"BY NEXT Wednesday we should have a pretty good idea if the major contributors will provide the needed funds."

"If they don't we're right back to facing a shutdown next week," he said.

'Superstars' registration ends Saturday

Registration ends Saturday for the Rolling Meadows Park District superstars competition.

Men and women 18 years of age and over will compete in eight of 12 athletic events to test the mettle of potential superstars. The winners will compete against winners from neighboring communities.

Events from which contestants may choose include:

- Tennis, one six-game set.
- Archery, 10 arrows judged on total points.
- Canoe Dash, 100 yards, judged on time.
- Distance run, half-mile for men 18 to 29 and quarter-mile for women and for men over 30.
- Basketball shoot, 12 shots from six marked locations.
- Swimming, free-style 50 yards.
- Running obstacle course.
- Golf approach shooting, six shots at a flag marker with a nine-iron.
- Horse shoes, 12 pitches judged on total points.
- Softball throw for women, one throw for distance and accuracy using a 12-inch softball.
- A 100-yard dash, judged on time.
- Bowling, judged on total points.

The contest will be divided into two age categories, 18 to 29 and 30 and over.

The Superstar events will take place July 30 and 31 at various park district locations. The fee is $6 with trophies and awards presented to first through fifth-place winners.

$1.5 million bond issue

Golf course vote planned Sept. 25

A referendum to finance the Arlington Heights Park District golf course at the former Nike Base has been tentatively scheduled for Sept. 25.

If the referendum to approve about $1.5 million in general-obligation bonds is successful, construction of the 18-hole course will be started this year, park officials said.

A public meeting to explain, and possibly expand the referendum is set for Aug. 17 at the Arlington Heights Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

THOMAS THORNTON, parks director, told a meeting of park commissioners Tuesday the referendum might be expanded to include development of six park sites and improvements at existing facilities at a cost of an additional $1.25 million.

The development and improvement package includes projects already planned for, but not yet undertaken because of lack of funds, Thornton said.

Commissioners said the decision to possibly include the other developments in a referendum will be based on citizen reaction at the public meeting.

Letters of invitation to the meeting are being sent to homeowners' organizations and other civic groups and service clubs.

The land for the golf course, which will double as a village flood-control project, was donated to the park district by the U.S. Army after it was declared surplus.

The land, valued in excess of $1 million by park district attorney Charles K. Bobinette, must be developed by the district for recreational uses as part of the Army agreement to deed it over.

Roarin' West Fest here Aug. 19-22

The Roarin' West Fest, an annual weekend of events sponsored by the Rolling Meadows Shopping Center Assn., will be held Aug. 19 to 22 at the center, Kirchoff Road and Meadow Drive.

This year the setting for the event will be a large corral, similar to a western ranch. Several community organizations will operate fundraising booths, selling items such as hot dogs, bratwurst, beer, corn-on-the-cob and used books.

Also included will be a carnival by McDermott Amusements and an old-fashioned sidewalk sale, live music, magicians, square dancing, clowns and a free drawing for bicycles.

Any person interested in providing entertainment during West Fest Days should call Phyllis Peszek at the shopping center office, 253-1334.

9 p.m. closing time for Waverly Park

The Rolling Meadows Park District Board has approved an ordinance to close Waverly Park at 9 p.m. instead of 11 p.m.

Neighborhood residents had complained that youths were congregating in the park, located on Maple Lane between Oak Lane and Cedar Street insouthoast Rolling Meadows, between dusk and the 11 p.m. closing time. The residents said the youths were causing noise and vandalism problems in the park and surrounding homes.

The ordinance is effective immediately.

Builder asks annex for project

Plans for the proposed annexation and development of a three-acre site on Kirchoff Road at California Avenue in unincorporated Palatine Township have been presented to Rolling Meadows officials.

Charles Patrone, contract buyer of the property, said he went to the city's building, zoning and public works committee Tuesday to get a preliminary reaction to his plans to build two- and three-unit apartments on the site.

Patrone is seeking annexation of the property as a planned-unit development under zoning which permits multiple-family housing.

The lot is located on the south side of Kirchoff across from the Mitchell Woods subdivision. Under the city's R-3 zoning requirements, Patrone would be allowed to build from 21 to 38 units on the site.

PATRONE SAID the development would be of a "low density" character, with no building taller than two stories. He said he would seek no variation from the zoning ordinance to increase the site's density if the project were approved by the city.

Currently, the property is zoned for single-family residences by Cook County. Patrone said a previous owner of the property tried to develop it as zoned, but found the project unfeasible.

Several residents appeared before the committee to oppose the measure, saying that the development would mar the predominantly single-family character of the area. They also said the development would put additional strain on water and drainage conditions in the city and area.

ONE RESIDENT requested that the city hold no more hearings on the subject. However, Rolling Meadows Mayor Roland J. Meyer, who attended the meeting, said Patrone had a right to be heard before a special zoning commission and added that the city should not halt all development only because of the current water situation.

He said if that were to happen, the city would cease to grow and prosper.

In other action, the committee discussed a potential move by the city to install sewers in a section of the Tenona Woods subdivision, west of Plum Grove Road and south of the Dawngate subdivision.

RUSSELL HALE, spokesman for the group, said there were many senior citizens on fixed incomes in the area who were concerned about the cost of the project. He said he also was concerned about a timetable for installation of the sewers.

City Engineer James J. Muldowney told Hale that the total cost per lot in the area probably would be about $2,000. He said, however, that the exact amount would have to come after bids were accepted on the project, which would be after a special assessment district was established.

He estimated the completion of the project would take 12 to 15 months.

Palatine police early Wednesday arrested two area men who allegedly stole lumber from a construction site in the village.

Randall W. Seiler, 25, of 667 S. Middleton Ave., Palatine, and Keith L. Michehl, 18, of 1543 Walnut Ave., Des Plaines, were charged with stealing two 2 by-4 foot planks from a construction site at 850 W. Gilbert Ave., police said.

A police patrol reportedly spotted the pair loading planks into a van at the site. Police said Michehl fled on foot and Seiler drove off in his van.

Police said they stopped the van in front of Seiler's home and arrested Seiler. Another police patrol apprehended Michael at the corner of Hunting Drive and Middleton Avenue, police said.

A representative of the Gilbert Avenue developer signed complaints against Seiler and Michehl, charging them with theft of goods valued at less than $150, police said.

Seiler and Michehl were released on $1,000 bond each and ordered to appear Aug. 12 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Countryside Center plans balloon ascent

Dozens of balloons will be sent airborne Friday by students at the Countryside Center for the Handicapped in Palatine in a special Spirit of '76 Balloon Ascension.

The event is a summer activity for the students aimed at helping people get to know people, center officials said.

Attached to each balloon will be a postcard with the date, the name of the center and a place for signatures. Officials ask persons who find the cards to sign them and return them to the center.

Police honor guard gives a final salute to Alan J. Vargo.

Patrolman Vargo buried with full police honors

A moment of prayer for the widow, Teri.

by JOE SWICKARD

Arlington Heights Police Patrolman Alan J. Vargo was buried Wednesday.

It was three days and a few hours since Vargo, 24, was struck down while directing traffic around an accident early Sunday.

The notice was sent out over police teletypes Monday afternoon. Almost 100 cars from more than 80 departments answered and formed Vargo's escort.

Led by five motorcycles, the procession rolled past with Mars lights twirling silently toward the church.

It was something not often seen — something not many want to see repeated.

A POLICEMAN keeping the route clear said, "Have you ever seen anything like it? It's unbelievable."

More than a mile long, the line of cars rolled through Arlington Heights, cars from Blue Island, Oak Park, Chicago, Palatine, Des Plaines, Kane County, Aurora and Joliet.

The the hearse followed by the family cars came into view. Vargo's wife of 10 months, Teri, was barely visible as the family surrounded her in the big limousine.

Paramedics from the Arlington Heights Fire Dept., who had fought Sunday to save Vargo's life, passed by.

"VARGO'S PARTNERS, 40 patrolmen, stood at attention in the church driveway. Six others in dress uniforms and white gloves lifted him from the hearse. His muted bronze casket was covered with the village flag.

Inside, three priests, one from his old parish in Wilmette, celebrated the funeral mass. Men stared to stop the blinking and what that would bring.

The procession to the cemetery went through the village, past the municipal building, its entrance draped in purple and Vargo's star, 162, above the door.

By the time the last mourner's car passed the municipal building, the lead car was at Golf and Algonquin roads.

ALGONQUIN ROAD rises as it approaches St. Michael the Archangel Cemetery and the line of flashing lights blended into the shortened horizon.

It took more than 10 minutes for the escort to enter the cemetery and park four-abreast. Members of the honor guard raised their night sticks as Vargo's casket was carried past.

The priest's words were carried and lost in the wind. A police radio was crackling with a call as the prayers were read.

The cars, lights now still, left the cemetery.

The family — an older member now turning her head in tears — remained.

Even while the squads had entered the cemetery, one had suddenly peeled off, siren activated. Even then, the work went on.

The cookout is for persons 18 and older and replaces the normal public swim at the pool.

Correction

The Herald incorrectly reported Monday that the address of two Palatine men arrested for an alleged sale of marijuana to an undercover agent was 20 S. Pine St., Palatine.

Metropolitan Enforcement Group agents and Palatine police Saturday arrested Mike D. Buck, 19, of 115 S. Hickory St., Palatine, and Edward L. Owca, 18, of 43 Pleasant Hill Blvd., Palatine, on Pine Street in front of the 20 S. Pine St. address, a MEG representative said Wednesday.

The two Palatine men and John J. Bertucci, 19, of 4466 Shady Ct., Rolling Meadows, allegedly sold marijuana valued at $800 to a MEG agent Saturday afternoon.

Census delay seen; backlog cited by official

A special census authorized by the Palatine Village Board last month probably will be delayed until November because of a backlog of requests to the U S Census Bureau from communities seeking new population counts

June Boston deputy village clerk, said a letter has been sent to the federal agency requesting a special census However she anticipates a several month wait before census officials will be available

Once the census is scheduled, however Mrs Boston said preliminary results of the count usually are available within two weeks A full accounting usually is available within three to four weeks, she said

The federal agency coordinates the project using local residents who are paid to act as census takers Each census taker must pass a test and go through a training session before doing fieldwork

MRS BOSTON said she estimated about 100 persons will be needed for the Palatine census The village will advertise for census takers as soon as official word is received from the U S Census Bureau on the timetable for the Palatine count

The special census will cost the village about $10 000, money appropriated earlier this year in the 1976-77 budget

Village officials believe the census will reveal the population has increased by as much as 5 700 persons The higher figure will mean more revenue for the village in the form of motor fuel tax funds and state income tax money The current population is 28 800

Both funds are based on village population and Village Mgr Anton H. Harwig has said the village could realize an additional $138 000 annually from both sources based on a $22 98 per capita rebate

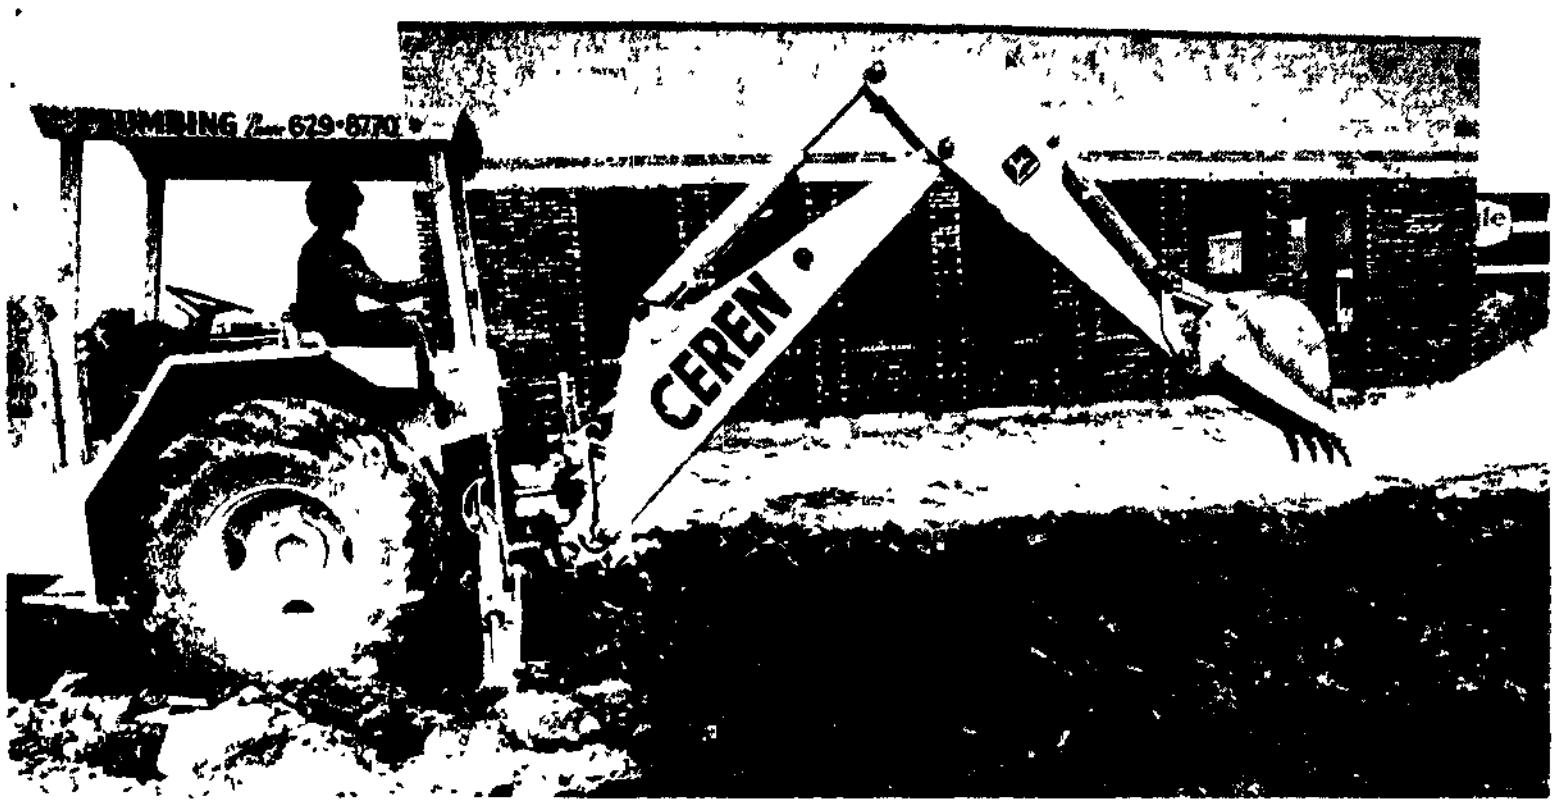
Officials believe the census is worthwhile because of the new construction and annexations that have taken place in Palatine since the last special census in 1973

Harwig said he estimates an additional 1 518 dwelling units have been added to the village in the three years since the last count, including residences in the Countryside development and newly annexed areas such as the 68-home Palatine Park subdivision

A SPECIAL CENSUS is under way in Arlington Heights, where officials estimate an increase of 4 000 persons over the current population ~~of 69,204~~.

Officials in the Village of Inverness had planned a special census recently but last week decided to postpone the count until next year because the project could not be scheduled by federal officials until September

Inverness officials decided to wait until next summer to hold the census in order to include college students who will be home from school



Tax hike referendum seen

Deficit looms in Harper budget

Harper College will spend $900 000 more than it receives in income during the 1976-77 school year and will need a tax increase in 1977 to keep from depleting its cash reserves according to the 1976-77 tentative budget

The budget which will be reviewed by the Harper Board of Trustees tonight calls for operating budget expenditures of $14 056 080 up 21 1 per cent from 1975-76 expenditures Projected 1976-77 revenues will total $13 151 000 up 18 5 per cent from the projected 1975-76 revenues

A 5 cent per $100 equalized assessed valuation tax increase will be needed in 1977 said William Mann vice president of administrative services Without an increase which would have to be approved in a referendum the college would deplete its reserves in the next two or three years he said The 5 5 cent increase would add $5 50 to the tax bill on a home assessed at $10 000

USE OF $905 000 from the college's invested cash surplus will balance the 1976-77 budget However when added to the $508 340 in reserve that the college used to balance its 1975-76 budget Harper will spend more than $1 million than it received in income for the 1976-77 period

The bulk of the college's expenditures will be made in its education fund which covers costs such as teachers salaries, administrative costs and student services

Tuition is the major source of the anticipated $9 407 000 education fund revenues The budget projects that 88 5 cents of each dollar in education fund revenues will come from tuition Tuition has been raised from $14 to $15 per credit hour for the coming year

Local taxes account for 25 7 cents of every dollar while state aid accounts for 25 1 cents

The cost per student will increase by 4 5 per cent from $1 345 to $1 406

Aid from the state will increase $164 000 over last year totaling $4,184,000 for the college's education and building funds State aid as a percentage of total income is declining however Mann said He said for schools it seems The recession is now "

MANN SAID THE college can expect state aid to decline while expenses continue to rise That situation makes the projected 1977 tax increase necessary he said

The college's building funds expenditures are projected at $2 353 180, a 12 9 per cent increase over 1975-76 expenses Expendetures in the bond and interest fund will increase 1 30 per cent to $1 110 100 The large increase is attributable to retirement of debts and interest on bonds

The board will meet at 8 p m in the administrative center A Building on the Harper campus, Algonquin and Roselle roads Palatine

Dry weather big help in battle against weeds

by LUISA GINNETTI

The annual summer battle between man and weeds is on in Palatine but this year village officials say dry weather has helped reduce the problem to a manageable skirmish

Cecil Kistler, village health director, said Wednesday the village has received several complaints about weeds growing to unsightly heights in some vacant lots, but for the most part the matter has not created many problems

It's pretty much under control Kistler said "We've issued a few citations, but in all the cases we've gotten compliance without having to issue fines"

Kistler said in each of the cases in which citations have been issued the weeds are located in vacant lots where the owners are not residents of the village

WHEN THE village receives a complaint about weeds a health department inspector is sent to the site to determine whether the village ordinance is being violated

The ordinance calls for property owners to be notified if weeds reach 12 inches in height

The owner is given one week to take care of the problem and if the weeds remain uncut the owner is sent a second notice If the second notice also is ignored after another week the village will issue a citation requiring an appearance in court where fines between $1 and $10 per day can be assessed

Kistler said in most cases the weeds are cut before the court appearance is needed and fines are rarely leveled No fines or court appearances have been required so far this year despite the issuance of citations the health director said

THE ENTIRE process between the first written notification and the issuance of a citation takes between two and three weeks Kistler said

August could be a problem if we get more rain and the pollen increases Kistler said The village receives most of its complaints about overgrown weeds during the pollen and hayfever season

Village officials' greatest concern about controlling weed growth is for pollen and esthetics Kistler said

"We're just glad that we have the manpower and personnel to take care of it" he said

Proposal passes 3-1

Panel recommends use of plastic pipes in homes

The Palatine planning, building and zoning committee, by a 3-to-1 vote, has recommended the village board adopt an amendment to the building code that would allow the use of plastic piping in single-family homes.

The use of plastic piping which is not allowed in the present village building code, became an issue recently when a village plumbing inspector, Russell Bass, was suspended for one day for approving the use of plastics in several model houses in the Whytecliffe subdivision.

Administration officials said the building department had been considering recommending the amendment to the building code before the incident occurred.

A special three-member committee, which included an architect, a builder and a plumber, appointed to study the merits of allowing plastic piping recommended to the board that the amendment be adopted.

Trustee Robert Guss, committee chairman, voted against the recommendation.

"I FEEL WE ARE reacting to a situation which was forced upon us and there is not sufficient information from the committee studying it," Guss said. "We do not have the wherewithall to make this decision."

Guss said that the National Building Code does not recommend the use of plastic piping. He said the village should not take the step until it is included in the national code.

The use of plastic piping is allowed in the state building code.

The full village board will consider the committee's recommendation at its meeting Monday night.

Blood drive over half-way mark

The 1976 Palatine blood drive has passed the half-way mark following the most successful drawing of the year Saturday, which totaled 221 pints.

The Rev. Donald Keck, chairman of the program, said Saturday's effort was the smoothest of the four sponsored this year.

The drive pushed the village's total collection to date to 796 pints, more than half the amount needed to meet the village quota of 1,350 pints for the year.

Two more drives are scheduled. The Rev. Keck said if the final drives are as successful as Saturday's, the village should be able to collect the remaining 554 pints needed to reach the quota.

The 221 figure was "right on the mark" of what drive officials had hoped for, the Rev. Keck said. However, poor collections in the March drive must be made up at the end of the year if the village is to meet its goal, he said.

If the quota is reached, all village residents and members of their families will be assured of free blood replacement for one year.

The next drive is scheduled for Sept. 15 at Fremd High School, 1000 S. Quinten Rd. The Rev. Keck said he is concerned about the September drive because volunteer nurses may be unavailable to assist in the program if they are involved in the possible swine-flu inoculation project.

"We'll just have to wait and see what happens," he said.

Jesus rally Saturday

The nondenominational Galilean Ministry will sponsor a concert and Jesus Rally at 7 p.m. Saturday at Community Park, 262 E. Palatine Rd.

The Everlord, a four-member band, will perform at the free concert.

Still hoping for loans

NORTRAN gets brief reprieve

by LYNN ASINOF

The North Suburban Mass Transit District will continue to operate buses in the North and Northwest suburbs for at least one more week in hopes that local communities will provide needed operating funds through emergency loans.

The NORTRAN Board Wednesday night voted unanimously to ask the 21 NORTRAN communities to come up with $300,000 to fund bus operations through Sept 7

Des Plaines, one of the three largest NORTRAN communities is being asked to contribute $37,000. Wheeling is being asked for $8,300

An estimated $100,000 is needed to keep the system operating past July 30 Without the funds the district, which serves 15,000 daily riders, will be forced to close its doors. A meeting is scheduled Wednesday to determine whether continued operations are possible

THE REGIONAL Transportation Authority created the financial crisis when it failed to adopt its 1976-77 budget June 30 as required by law. Suburban directors blocked budget approval in an effort to force the resignation of Chairman Milton Pikarsky. This stopped the flow of needed subsidies to NORTRAN.

Although the budget was approved this week as part of a compromise agreement, the RTA cannot spend any part of its $177 million budget until the courts rule on the validity of the document.

NORTRAN Chairman Bart T. Murphy said a court ruling could come "anywhere from early next week to several months."

"The money to pay these bills is lying dormant in the bank. The monies are there and should be flowing to the carriers," Murphy said, noting the communities will be paid back once RTA funds are available.

NORTRAN EXECUTIVE Director Joseph DiJohn said Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel will support NORTRAN's funding request. A special city council meeting will be scheduled to consider the request, DiJohn said.

"He's been one of our best supporters," DiJohn said of Behrel.

The bulk of NORTRAN's service in the Northwest suburbs is in Des Plaines. The district also operates a commuter-feeder line from Buffalo Grove to Arlington Heights and a limited service from Wheeling to the Loop. A small portion of Mount Prospect also is served by NORTRAN buses.

Murphy said several village boards will meet early next week to vote on the emergency laons.

Correction

The Herald incorrectly reported Monday that the address of two Palatine men arrested for an alleged sale of marijuana to an undercover agent was 20 S. Pine St., Palatine.

Metropolitan Enforcement Group agents and Palatine police Saturday arrested Mike D. Buck, 19, of 115 S. Hickory St., Palatine, and Edward L. Owca, 18, of 43 Pleasant Hill Blvd., Palatine, on Pine Street in front of the 20 S. Pine St. address, a MEG representative said Wednesday.

The two Palatine men and John J. Bertucci, 19, of 4486 Shady Ct., Rolling Meadows, allegedly sold marijuana valued at $800 to a MEG agent Saturday afternoon.

Police honor guard gives a final salute to Alan J. Vargo.

Patrolman Vargo buried with full police honors

A moment of prayer for the widow, Teri.

by JOE SWICKARD

Arlington Heights Police Patrolman Alan J. Vargo was buried Wednesday.

It was three days and a few hours since Vargo, 24, was struck down while directing traffic around an accident early Sunday

The notice was sent out over police teletypes Monday afternoon Almost 100 cars from more than 80 departments answered and formed Vargo's escort.

Led by five motorcycles, the procession rolled past with Mars lights twirling silently toward the church

It was something not often seen — something not many want to see repeated.

A POLICEMAN keeping the route clear said, "Have you ever seen anything like it? It's unbelievable."

More than a mile long, the line of cars rolled through Arlington Heights, cars from Blue Island, Oak Park, Chicago, Palatine, Des Plaines, Kane County, Aurora and Joliet

The the hearse followed by the family cars came into view. Vargo's wife of 10 months, Teri, was barely visible as the family surrounded her in the big limousine.

Paramedics from the Arlington Heights Fire Dept., who had fought Sunday to save Vargo's life, passed by

"VARGO'S PARTNERS, 40 patrolmen, stood at attention in the church driveway Six others in dress uniforms and white gloves lifted him from the hearse. His muted bronze casket was covered with the village flag.

Inside, three priests, one from his old parish in Wilmette, celebrated the funeral mass. Men stared to stop the blinking and what that would bring.

The procession to the cemetery went through the village, past the municipal building, its entrance draped in purple and Vargo's star, 162, above the door.

By the time the last mourner's car passed the municipal building, the lead car was at Golf and Algonquin roads

ALGONQUIN ROAD rises as it approaches St. Michael the Archangel Cemetery and the line of flashing lights blended into the shortened horizon.

It took more than 10 minutes for the escort to enter the cemetery and park four-abreast. Members of the honor guard raised their night sticks as Vargo's casket was carried past.

The priest's words were carried and lost in the wind. A police radio was crackling with a call as the prayers were read.

The cars, lights now still, left the cemetery.

The family — an older member now turning her head in tears — remained

Even while the squads had entered the cemetery, one had suddenly peeled off, siren activated. Even then, the work went on.

2 men arrested on charges of stealing lumber

Palatine police early Wednesday arrested two area men who allegedly stole lumber from a construction site in the village

Randall W Seiler, 21 of 867 S Middleton Ave, Palatine, and Keith L Michehl II of 1511 Walnut Ave Des Plaines were charged with stealing two 2 by 12 foot planks from a construction site at 850 W Gilbert Ave, police said

A police patrol reportedly spotted the pair loading planks into a van at the site Police said Michehl fled on foot, and Seiler drove off in his van

Police said they stopped the van in front of Seiler's home and arrested Seiler Another police patrol apprehended Michael at the corner of Hunting Drive and Middleton Avenue, police said

A representative of the Gilbert Avenue developer signed complaints against Seiler and Michehl, charging them with theft of goods valued at less than $150, police said

Seiler and Michehl were released on $1,000 bond each and ordered to appear Aug 12 in the Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court

2 testify against utility rate hike before state unit

The president of the Euclid-Lake Homeowners Assn. and another Mount Prospect resident testified Wednesday before the Illinois Commerce Commission against a water and sewer rate increase sought by Citizens Utilities Co.

Marie L. Caylor, association president, presented several written customer complaints as evidence opposing the rate increase request. The complaints, accompanied by sworn affidavits, ranged from billing problems to the presence of impurities such as rust and oil in water.

"Naturally none of us approve of or favor the increases being asked," Mrs. Caylor said. "The rust problem has been a very major one and water odor continues to plague people both in the Waycinden area (near Des Plaines) and our area. These are problems which we believe must definitely be corrected certainly before any increases are granted."

CITIZENS UTILITIES, which serves about 2,300 residents in Mount Prospect's New Town area, earlier this year asked for a two-pronged rate increase totaling 70 per cent. The firm first requested an increase to offset its 1974 deficit estimated at $634,000.

A second increase is being sought to cover the investor-owned utility's future costs. Walter J. Larson, general manager for the utility at the hearing stood by his previous justification for the higher rates. He said additional manpower needs, inflation and rising cost of chemicals make the request necessary.

If the commission approves the first rate hike, residents now paying $1.31 a month for 1,000 gallons of water would pay $1.81 a month. Should the second increase be granted, customers now using less than 8,000 gallons of water a month would be billed $2.25 per 1,000 gallons. Sewer rates are expected to nearly double.

Mrs. Caylor admitted she has observed two improvements in Citizens Utilities' service since the firm's last rate hike in 1974. "They have provided us with return envelopes for our bills and meter readers now wear emblems on their shirts for identification," she said.

THE COMMERCE Commission in February ordered the firm to improve water quality and customer service after a 14-month investigation showed the water contained rust, sand, oil and other impurities.

"People wouldn't object to an increase if it was a reasonable request and only if the quality of the water services were good," said Charles E. Frieberg, 1618 Burning Bush Ln., a second Mount Prospect resident offering opposing testimony.

"I can understand it will require additional monies for improvements, but under the present conditions of bad water and sewer service, increases are unjustified," Frieberg said.

Frieberg presented a water sample from his tap as evidence.

"First they must improve their services, then ask for the rate hike. They're trying to improve their profits without doing anything for their customers," he said. "Hopefully after today's meeting, the commerce commission will be aware of the fact that citizens are concerned."

Commerce Commission Examiner Mark Goldstein said more evidence has to be filed, customer complaints have to be reviewed and further hearings will be held before the commission rules on the rate increase request. Citizens Utilities filed its rate increase request in February.

The ICC will hear further testimony Aug. 5. The commerce commission will hear attorney's final arguments Sept. 1 and 2 and a final ruling on the rake hike request is expected Sept. 29.

"The way they're being presented," Larson said, "until we review these written complaints, I can't say whether they are valid or not, and if they are valid, when they were valid."

Tax hike referendum seen

Deficit looms in Harper budget

Harper College will spend $900,000 more than it receives in income during the 1976-77 school year and will need a tax increase in 1977 to keep from depleting its cash reserves, according to the 1976-77 tentative budget.

The budget which will be reviewed by the Harper Board of Trustees tonight, calls for operating budget expenditures of $14,056,080, up 21.1 per cent from 1975-76 expenditures. Projected 1976-77 revenues will total $13,151,000, up 18.5 per cent from the projected 1975-76 revenues.

A 5.5-cent per $100 equalized assessed valuation tax increase will be needed in 1977, said William Mann, vice president of administrative services. Without an increase, which would have to be approved in a referendum, the college would deplete its reserves in the next two or three years he said. The 5.5-cent increase would add $5.50 to the tax bill on a home assessed at $10,000.

USE OF $805,080 from the college's invested cash surplus will balance the 1976-77 budget. However, when added to the $508,340 in reserve that the college used to balance its 1975-76 budget, Harper will spend more than $1 million than it received in income for the 1975-77 period.

The bulk of the college's expenditures will be made in its education fund, which covers costs such as teachers' salaries, administrative costs and student services.

Tuition is the major source of the anticipated $9,407,000 education fund revenues. The budget projects that 38.5 cents of each dollar in education-fund revenues will come from tuition. Tuition has been raised from $14 to $15 per credit hour for the coming year.

Local taxes account for 25.7 cents of every dollar, while state aid accounts for 25.1 cents.

The cost per student will increase by 4.5 per cent from $1,345 to $1,406.

Aid from the state will increase $464,000 over last year, totaling $4,184,000 for the college's education and building funds. State aid as a percentage of total income is declining however, Mann said. He said for schools it seems, "The recession is now."

MANN SAID THE college can expect state aid to decline while expenses continue to rise. That situation makes the projected 1977 tax increase necessary, he said.

The college's building funds expenditures are projected at $2,353,180, a 12.9 per cent increase over 1975-76 expenses. Expendetures in the bond and interest fund will increase 130 per cent to $1,410,300. The large increase is attributable to retirement of debts and interest on bonds.

Sliding water rates called unfair

Philip Burnegi representing the Huntington Commons Condominium Assn., has told the Mount Prospect Village Board the sliding water rates are "unfair and discriminatory."

Water rates, which went into effect April 1, range from 90 cents quarterly for residents using less than 50,000 gallons of water to $1.30 for residents consuming more than 500,000 gallons per quarter. Previously, all residents were charged 75 cents per 1,000 gallons.

Burnegi said condominium apartment owners have seen a 60 per cent increase in their water bills compared to a 20 per cent hike felt by homeowners. Several complexes have common water meters whereby residents collectively use more than 500,000 gallons and are charged the higher rate. About 50 condominium apartment owners attended the meeting.

"We are homeowners," Burnegi said. "I feel we should be assessed the same as homeowners. We're in kind of a limbo as condominium owners and I feel strongly some adjustment should be made."

A SLIDING WATER schedule the brainchild of Trustee E. F. Richardson, was intended to help conserve water by charging higher rates to larger consumers. Richardson told Burnegi his alternative would be to install individual meters. Burnegi said it is too expensive to add more meters and suggested dividing each water bill by the number of owners using each meter.

"The ordinance is constant, clear and concise," said Trustee Edward B. Rhea, Jr. "When you boil it all down we're into the problems of planned unit developments."

Kerson J. DeJong, president of Crystal Towers Homeowners Assn., said the increase in the village water rates is neither rational nor reasonable. Owners have said a class action suit against the village is possible if the ordinance is not amended.

Trustees Richard N. Hendricks and Michael H. Minton were sympathetic with the condominium apartment owners. Minton received a rousing applause when he said, "I for one would like to review the matter again. I agree you are in a situation that is totally unfair. We, as a board, have an obligation to treat each homeowner in Mount Prospect equally whether they live in a home or a condominium."

AMID RESIDENTS' shouts of "We want you to be fair," "We're homeowners too," and "Are you in the meter business?" Mayor Robert D. Teichert threatened to clear the village board chambers.

Teichert then referred the matter to the village building committee. Minton, committee chairman, will review the water rate schedule at his August meeting.

The public works committee last month recommended no changes be made to the existing ordinance.

Food co-op to rent room in Park View for $2,698

A food cooperative organization will rent one classroom in Park View School, 305 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect in the 1976-77 school year.

The River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education has approved the rental of one classroom to the Good People's Food Co-op, currently based at Maryville Academy in Des Plaines.

The food co-op will pay the district $2,698 for the year, based on $3.50 per square foot. The co-op has 100 members and has operated in the area for several years.

PARK VIEW School was closed by the board at the end of 1975-76 school year to help offset declining enrollment and predicted budget deficits.

The food co-op is Park View's second tenant. The board agreed earlier to rent three classrooms to a Montessori school at a cost of $8,000.

Board member William Haase said rental fees from the two tenants will cover the cost of maintaining the building, which is estimated at about $10,000 for 1976-77.

"Anything we lease after tonight (Tuesday) will result in income for the district," Haase said. "At worst, there will be no economic cost to the district and at best, it will result in a profit."

Park View still has 14 classrooms available for rent.

Martin Rosinski, chairman of the citizens' committee in charge of the Park View rental, said several groups are still interested in leasing portions on the school. The groups include religious educational academies and medical personnel looking for space for a clinic.

The Prospect Heights City Council has approved an appropriations ordinance totaling $615,070 for the 1976-77 fiscal year.

The appropriations ordinance is based on a $399,572 budget approved by the council earlier this month. The appropriations ordinance is required by state law and details the maximum amount of tax revenue the city can receive during the fiscal year.

The anticipated revenues will come from existing federal, state and county tax sources, city license fees and police fines. No municipal real estate tax will be levied.

The budget includes the cost of providing police protection, road maintenance and other services in addition to the city's operation expenses.

Voter registration at center

The Gary Morava Recreation Center, 110 W. Camp McDonald Rd., will be open Wednesday evenings from Aug. 18 to Oct. 6 for voter registration.

The Prospect Heights City Council has designated the center as a temporary city hall until permanent facilities can be found.

City Clerk Nancy Lambert will conduct registration at the center from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. on Wednesdays.

Talbot named mayor's assistant

Thomas S. Talbot, 8 Mayberry Dr., has been appointed by the city council as administrative assistant to Prospect Heights Mayor Richard E. Wolf.

He will research issues for the mayor, assist in designing and implementing new programs, and represent the mayor in dealings with outside groups and agencies.

Talbot, an eight-year resident of the city, is a financial and management consultant for Continental Financial Management Corp., Chicago.

"It will be an unpaid position and he will investigate matters that I don't have time to investigate myself," Wolf said.

Wolf has encouraged the city's eight aldermen to seek their own administrative assistants.

Dujmovic on plan panel

Carole Dujmovic, 10 N. Wheeling Rd., has been appointed to the Prospect Heights Plan Commission.

She is among seven residents who serve on the panel that will develop a comprehensive land plan for the newly incorporated city.

Mrs. Dujmovic was a candidate who withdrew from the May 22 municipal race before the election.

Statute books, typewriter donated

The city has received two donations — an electric typewriter and the collection of 1975 Illinois Revised Statutes.

DeSoto Inc., Des Plaines, has given the city's elected officials and staff unlimited use of an IBM electric typewriter. Mayor Wolf is a research scientist for the firm.

Bengt Arne Nilsson, 6 Mayberry Dr., has purchased a set of 1975 statutes for the new city for legal reference purposes. Nilsson is the husband of Harriett Nilsson, city treasurer.

Prospect Hts. OKs building codes

The Prospect Heights City Council has ended a temporary moratorium on construction with the passage of city building codes.

One of two ordinances passed by the city council sets requirements for the design, construction, alteration, enlargement, repair, demolition and maintenance of all buildings in the city.

The building code ordinance governs the issuing of permits, collection of fees, penalties for violations and inspections of all city structures. The ordinance also offers guidelines for electrical, plumbing, drainage and gas piping in buildings.

The building code generally is based on standards of the Building Official and Code Administration. The electrical code generally is based on the National Electrical Code, and the plumbing and drainage codes generally are based on Cook County building requirements.

The city council also approved a second ordinance, a mechanical code which establishes standards for heating, air conditioning and ventilation in all city structures.

THE MECHANICAL code also is based on the BOCA international codes.

The city council will continue to supplement its building codes with other ordinances governing specialized building for such construction as subdivisions.

Although the city now has control over building within its limits, Cook County continues to have zoning jurisdiction in Prospect Heights until the city council adopts its own zoning laws.

The state's attorney's office has ruled that, according to state law, the county must continue to provide review of building plans in Prospect Heights to make sure they comply with Cook County zoning.

BUILDING PLANS must be submitted to the Prospect Heights city clerk or the city's building official, James Deal, and then forwarded to county building and zoning officials.

Deal, 305 E. School Ln., was appointed by the city council Monday to serve in the volunteer position of overseeing the city's building situation. Dean is an independent architect.

The city imposed a moratorium on building several weeks ago because it had no codes to safeguard against substandard construction.

Dist. 21 to decide on vote tonight

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education will decide tonight if a referendum will be held for a tax increase.

The board will meet at 8:15 p.m. at the administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The tax referendum was recommended two weeks ago by a citizens' committee studying district finances. The committee recommended a tax increase of 30 cents per $100 assessed valuation to help relieve the district's financial problems.

If a tax referendum is approved by the board it will be held in September in order to provide funds for the 1977 fiscal year, district officials said.

Other items on tonight's board agenda include adoption of a $12.7 million tentative budget for the 1976-77 school year, and the appointment of a new board member to fill the vacancy created by Jack Lane's resignation.

Community concert Thursday at gazebo

Selections from "Hello, Dolly," tangos and marches are among the tunes the Mount Prospect community band will perform today at a free outdoor concert.

Under the direction of Prospect High School Band Director Ralph Wilder, the 7 p.m. concert will be at the Bicentennial gazebo in the southeast end of the village hall parking lot, 100 S. Emerson St.

Wilder estimated more than 3,000 spectators heard the newly formed band's debut performance July 4.

Free concerts are scheduled on Thursday nights through July. Wilder hopes to collect donations at the concerts for those Prospect High students having to pay tuition for summer band this year because of cutbacks in state funding of the program.

by DIANE MERMIGAS

It is difficult to imagine one of nature's quiet refuges in the Northwest suburbs, a marshy, 27-acre slough in Prospect Heights, being the center of controversy.

It is a tranquil place amid the surrounding development that provides sanctuary for a variety of creatures — fish, muskrat, frogs, fowl and insects.

There is life in the thick undergrowth, cattails and muddy waters. Nature's island in the sprawling suburbs is a place to spend peaceful moments fishing, boating and walking.

The area has been a center of controversy in the past. Disputes have arisen between residents and conservation groups wishing to preserve the slough and developers who would rather see it the focal point of a development

Efforts are afoot by the Prospect Heights Park Board to preserve the area with the support of those who make their homes on its shores.

"They are tearing down so much today that they don't even realize the importance of leaving some open space to nature," said Barbara Harris, 104 Mandel Ln , and a resident of the newly incorporated community who is concerned about the future of the slough.

The wetland, just west of Elmhurst Road and spreading northward past Willow Road, has special meaning to Mrs. Harris. Her parents have lived the past 30 years just a block away from the slough where she played as a child.

TODAY, MRS. Harris brings her three children to the slough to observe nature whenever she can.

The southern half of the slough, south of Willow Road and west of Hillside Avenue, is where Mrs. Harris and her childhood friends used to play. It is heavily vegetated and held by a trust at the Maywood Proviso State Bank, Maywood.

The Prospect Heights Park District filed a condemnation suit in 1974 to acquire that part of the slough. The district has received an Illinois Dept. of Conservation grant to help purchase the property if it is acquired

The suit has been delayed in Cook County Circuit Court and attorneys for the park district are not sure when the case will be resolved.

The northern half of the slough, north of Willow Road and bounded on the west by Hillcrest Drive, is known as Hillcrest Lake and is owned by the Hillcrest Lake Homeowners Assn

Area residents purchased the 13-acres more than 10 years ago to keep it out of the hands of developers

The park district has made advances toward purchasing the lake, but it has not filed a condemnation suit for the northern half of the slough

The park district owns 1 5 acres adjacent to the southern half of the slough off of Elmhurst Road. The Prospect Heights chapter of the Izaak Walton League constructed an $11,000 nature shelter there in 1975

The league and other community groups, government agencies such as the park district and area residents have continually united to preserve the slough.

IT OFTEN HAS been a battle, not only against developers, but against the ravages of sewage overflow, soil erosion and dumping that could endanger the slough's wildlife

Those with a technical understanding of the land say the slough is a "sponge" that soaks up storm runoff from the land around it rather than allowing the water to flood lowlying areas downstream. The slough is a link in the McDonald Creek tributary system that drains into the Des Plaines River

But those whose homes border the slough say it is a place of tranquility that provides recreation and outdoor education.

"The people here are very concerned about the slough It provides us with a magnificant view from our front rooms and kitchens. The small animals that crawl out onto our lawns once in awhile are more an asset than a "liability" said Eugene Bachara, 9 Hillside Ave

"BUT, THE MOST rewarding thing is that it provides little boys, like my own with a Huckleberry Finn-Tom Sawyer place to go barefoot and fish and sail a raft," he said

Park district officials say they would like to make sure children in years to come have the same chance.

"At most, we might put in a few simple piers, maybe a walking and bicycling path around the edge But, the park district just wants to preserve the slough and protect it," said William Kuhns, park board commissioner

Police honor guard gives a final salute to Alan J. Vargo.

Patrolman Vargo buried with full police honors

A moment of prayer for the widow, Teri.

by JOE SWICKARD

Arlington Heights Police Patrolman Alan J. Vargo was buried Wednesday.

It was three days and a few hours since Vargo, 24, was struck down while directing traffic around an accident early Sunday.

The notice was sent out over police teletypes Monday afternoon. Almost 100 cars from more than 80 departments answered and formed Vargo's escort.

Led by five motorcycles, the procession rolled past with Mars lights twirling silently toward the church.

It was something not often seen — something not many want to see repeated.

A POLICEMAN keeping the route clear said, "Have you ever seen anything like it? It's unbelievable."

More than a mile long, the line of cars rolled through Arlington Heights, cars from Blue Island, Oak Park, Chicago, Palatine, Des Plaines, Kane County, Aurora and Joliet.

The the hearse followed by the family cars came into view. Vargo's wife of 10 months, Teri, was barely visible as the family surrounded her in the big limousine.

Paramedics from the Arlington Heights Fire Dept., who had fought Sunday to save Vargo's life, passed by.

"VARGO'S PARTNERS, 40 patrolmen, stood at attention in the church driveway. Six others in dress uniforms and white gloves lifted him from the hearse. His muted bronze casket was covered with the village flag.

Inside, three priests, one from his old parish in Wilmette, celebrated the funeral mass. Men stared to stop the blinking and what that would bring.

The procession to the cemetery went through the village, past the municipal building, its entrance draped in purple and Vargo's star, 162, above the door.

By the time the last mourner's car passed the municipal building, the lead car was at Golf and Algonquin roads.

ALGONQUIN ROAD rises as it approaches St. Michael the Archangel Cemetery and the line of flashing lights blended into the shortened horizon.

It took more than 10 minutes for the escort to enter the cemetery and park four-abreast. Members of the honor guard raised their night sticks as Vargo's casket was carried past.

The priest's words were carried and lost in the wind. A police radio was crackling with a call as the prayers were read.

The cars, lights now still, left the cemetery.

The family — an older member now turning her head in tears — remained.

Even while the squads had entered the cemetery, one had suddenly peeled off, siren activated. Even then, the work went on.

NORTRAN draws brief reprieve

by LYNN ASINOF

The North Suburban Mass Transit District will continue to operate buses in the North and Northwest suburbs for at least one more week in hopes that local communities will provide needed operating funds through emergency loans.

The NORTRAN Board Wednesday night voted unanimously to ask the 21 NORTRAN communities to come up with $300,000 to fund bus operations through Sept. 7.

Des Plaines, one of the three largest NORTRAN communities is being asked to contribute $37,000. Wheeling is being asked for $8,300.

An estimated $100,000 is needed to keep the system operating past July 30. Without the funds the district, which serves 15,000 daily riders, will be forced to close its doors. A meeting is scheduled Wednesday to determine whether continued operations are possible.

THE REGIONAL Transportation Authority created the financial crisis when it failed to adopt its 1976-77 budget June 30 as required by law. Suburban directors blocked budget approval in an effort to force the resignation of Chairman Milton Pikarsky. This stopped the flow of needed subsidies to NORTRAN.

Although the budget was approved this week as part of a compromise agreement, the RTA cannot spend any part of its $177 million budget until the courts rule on the validity of the document.

NORTRAN Chairman Bart T. Murphy said a court ruling could come "anywhere from early next week to several months."

"The money to pay these bills is lying dormant in the bank. The monies are there and should be flowing to the carriers," Murphy said, noting the communities will be paid back once RTA funds are available.

NORTRAN EXECUTIVE Director Joseph DiJohn said Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel will support NORTRAN's funding request. A special city council meeting will be scheduled to consider the request, DiJohn said.

"He's been one of our best supporters," DiJohn said of Behrel.

The bulk of NORTRAN's service in the Northwest suburbs is in Des Plaines. The district also operates a commuter-feeder line from Buffalo Grove to Arlington Heights and a limited service from Wheeling to the Loop. A small portion of Mount Prospect also is served by NORTRAN buses.

Irish music, dance at Willow Plaza

An outdoor show of Irish music and dance will be presented free to the public Saturday at the Willow Park Plaza Shopping Center, Prospect Heights.

Eamon O'Malley, editor of the Irish News, will emcee the entertainment provided by the Sheila Tully Dancers, the Invermich Bagpipe Band and the Irish Singers.

The program will begin at 11 a.m. and continue through the early afternoon at the shopping center, Milwaukee Avenue and Willow Road.

Irish soda bread and pastries also will be sold by The Messengers of Mary Immaculate Queen.
